A HAPPY NEW YEAR TO EVERYONE

ALFRED RANDS, ALLIANCE CHOSEN AS CCF CANDIDATE

Mr. Alfred Rands of Alliance, and former Secretary of the constituency CCF organization, was the popular choice of the annual convention as the contestant for that party in the next provincial election.

Mr. Kenneth Sparks of Sedgewick is the new Secretary of the CCF group in the constituency.

Mr. Cooke addressed the meeting at some length, touching particularly on the prospects of the party at the next election. He remarked that unofficially many prominent Liberals and Social Crediters think that the CCF can win the next election.

ELKS BRING SANTA TO LOUGHEED KIDDIES

Tuesday, December 23rd was a day long to be remembered by scores of children residing in Lougheed and district, for on the evening of that day the local Elks Lodge sponsored a gala Christmas concert in the town hall, the climax of which was the anticipated appearance of Santa Claus and the distribution of a bag of sweets to every child in the town and surrounding community.

The spacious and modern hall was jammed to overflowing with smiling parents and eager children, all filled with the joyous spirit of Christmas.

The lengthy program, consisting of seventeen separate numbers which ranged from recitations to pageants, was carried through without a hitch and spoke well for the talents of the performers and the ability of those who directed the show. The entire program was a great credit to the community and was most thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present.

To the strains of, Santa Claus Is Coming To Town, that jolly old fellow himself bustled in amid the oh's and ah's o' the youngsters.

Each child was presented with a generous bag containing candy, nuts and oranges, after which Santa left for parts unknown to bring cheer to other eager children

HOCKEY LEAGUE NOTES

A triple round robin is to be played with the top two teams playing off a 3-game series to decide the league champion. It has been suggested that a banquet for the league members be held at the close of the season in the town winning the league. The league opened on Dec. 15th the first round drew as follows:

January 5— Killam at Lougheed; Dayland at Forestburg.

January 8th— Lougheed at Dayland; Killam at Forestburg.

January 12th— Forestburg at Lougheed; Dayland at Killam.

POPULAR RESIDENTS FAREWELLED AT SEDGEWICK

A large crowd, representing every section of the Sedgewick community gathered at the Legion Hall, Sedgewick on Monday night to bid farewell to four of the town's valued citizens who are leaving this month to make their homes elsewhere. The people honored were: Mr. and Mrs. George Clarence Crooks and their son Albert, and Mr. Mickey Baker.

A session of cards was enjoyed, after which a short musical program was presented, all of which was followed by a sumptuous lunch.

Popular Hockey Player

Mickey Baker, known to everyone as Mick, is a native born son and during his years in Sedgewick has contributed much to the town in the way of sport. A keen hockey player and member of the Sport Society, he has alays worked hard to keep the town on the map in a sporting way. Mickey has been for some time a very popular member of the staff of the Sedgewick Hardware. It is with regret that we see him leave for Edmonton where he will be employed by Northern Hardware Ltd.

Good Community Workers

The Crooks' family is well known in this section o' the province as a family which is generally found near the front line whenever anything is afoot to improve the town. About twenty-four years ago George came to town and almost at once took an active part in organizing baseball and hockey. Since that time he has had a finger in nearly every improvement that has been made here. He has been a tower of strength to the community and his leaving will cause a deep feeling of regret. Mrs. Ellen Crooks, familiarly known as Toots, has been an active member of the various ladies societies and member of the Lougheed Rebekah Lodge. Her younger days she was a basket ball player of ability and excelled at tennis. She is a local girl in the real sense of the word, having been born in the district, and before her marriage was a member of the local staff of the Bank of Montreal.

Albert, who is completing his high school this year, has been active in the younger groups and is a budding hockey and baseball player who will be an asset to Chilliwack B.C. where the family will be living in future.

Mayor H. B. Hay, in his usual pleasant manner, spoke highly of the Crooks family, in presenting them with a suitable gift on behalf of the entire community, while Mr. Dick Desirato paid glowing tributes to Mickey in presenting him with a similar token of esteem.

The Community Press joins with a host of friends in wishing these fine old people the best of everything.

FARMER BONSPIEL WAS VOTED THE BEST EVER

With nineteen rinks competing in keen competition and the prizes considered above the usual, the annual Farmer Bonspiel at Sedgewick last week was voted to be the best ever yet staged. While the ice was not too keen on Saturday, it thickened up for Monday, the third day.

Many of the games were in doubt right down to the last rock and many unexpected upsets were recorded.

Winners in the three competitions were as follows:

GRAND CHALLENGE

1st—Percy Smith; 2nd Ernie Knoblauch; 3rd—Ron Galletly; 4th Bob Simpson.

MERCHANTS

1st— Geo. Anderson; 2nd— Nelson Bergum; 3rd— Harry O'Brien; 4th Grant McGregor.

BRITISH CONSOL

1st— James Hallum; 2nd— James Baker; 3rd—Art Smith and 4th J. W. Barty.

LETTER OF THANKS

Any of our farmers who may have acquired an overload of good Xmas cheer, had little difficulty in warding it off, at least, not if they were taking an active part in the annual Sedgewick Farmer Bonspiel on the 26th and 27th of December. The unusually mild weather made the going on a par with the past season's grain. It was both damp and tough.

Twas hard sledding and toting up hill. Some fell beneath the weight of the load. It was a contest of mere strength than skill for the prizes at the end of the road.

The many valuable and useful prizes donated were not only typical of the joyous Xmas spirit prevailing and the generosity of Sedgewick's business men, but of the friendly relations existing between the Merchants and Farmers of the district.

To all those who in any way (including the ladies) helped to maintain the fine reputation this bonspiel has acquired over the years since its inception, we, the farmers tenders you our most hearty thanks.

PERSONAL STUFF

—by A. W. E.—

Once more Christmas has come and gone and the joyous spirit which prevails at that time is giving way to the more sober thoughts of what lies before us in the coming year. We have no means, save guessing, of knowing what the future holds in store for us, and it is indeed well that the Almighty Father foresaw the wisdom of withholding from us the talent of reading the future, for not indeed would be mankind's lot were he able to do so. Man has the ability to meet most of his exingencies as they appear before him, but imagine the consternation were he to know all in advance that anyone of them was actually going to happen.

Last night as we witnessed the demise of that old and weary fellow with the long gray beard for whom the sands of time had run out, to the strains of, Old Lang Syne, we knew that he had tried to do his best for us in 1947, and we wondered if the young chap (1948) who took his place, would be able to do any better. Reflecting thus, we concluded that his task will indeed be an arduous one. Unless we, his helpers, show the inclination to lend him more assistance than we saw fit to render to his predecessor.

Today, as we celebrate the first day of a new and vigorous year, have we stopped for a moment in our pursuit of happiness and our clamour for worldly possessions, to ponder a bit on just what this new year can do for us and for the world if we will but give it an even chance.

We believe that the year 1948 can give us the answer to many of our present problems. The year can see the establishment of genuine peace and goodwill in the world if heads of the nations will but put more emphasis on the needs of others and less on personal ambitions. This year can see the hungry peoples of the world well nourished if ample supplied nations will put humanity ahead of monetary enrichment. This year can see a return to normalcy in Canada and in the world if the people of Canada and the world so will it.

All these things are inter-dependent, and indeed dependent on the peoples most involved in each case, for equally true it is, that from the individual to large groups, that which ye sow that also shall ye reap. We shall derive in benefits in direct proportion to the effort we put forth to obtain them.

Whatever else 1948 may hold for each of us, may it fill us with much thanksgiving for what we have, compassion for those who have not, and may it instil in our hearts the equality of men throughout the world. Thus will we truly come to know the meaning of Peace on Earth Goodwill Toward Men.

Aitcheson of [illegible] to Norman William Hincks, Alta., to Norman William Hincks, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Hincks, Toronto. Albert A. Fastie played the wedding music, and Mrs. Frank St. John was soloist. Given in marriage by her cousin, Howard Becker, the bride wore a basque-style gown of white corded silk with a sweetheart neckline and train, her only ornaments a pearl necklace and earrings. Her train-length veil was held by a halo of orange blossoms and she carried a cascade of coral roses and white bouvardia. She was attended by Mrs. Howard Becker and Margaret Hincks, in matching gowns of olive-green crepe with headdress of midget mums and carrying cascades of bronze and yellow mums. # Weather Control

DURING THE LAST HALF CENTURY farming has become a more and more highly specialized vocation, as scientific and mechanical progress have gradually given the farmer wider knowledge and better tools with which to carry on his work. In the days when the West was first opened up for cultivation, little was known of means to control rust, drought, insects, early frosts, and all the many hazards which threatened the crop each season. During the intervening years, however, these problems have been wholly or partially solved, and efforts are continually being made to bring about further advances in scientific methods of farming.

Weather Always Great Hazard

One of the greatest difficulties of farmers everywhere and one of the hardest for them to control, is the weather. Agricultural scientists have, in the past, tried to offset the effects of early frosts by developing early-maturing varieties of wheat, and to fight drought by various means of moisture conservation. There is still much to be done, however, to lessen the threats which hail and lack of moisture now constitute to prairie farming. At their recent annual meeting, Saskatchewan Wheat Pool delegates passed a resolution calling upon their provincial departments of agriculture and natural resources, the insurance branch and the Dominion government weather bureau, to collect reports on research which is being done in Australia and the United States on weather control, particularly in regard to methods of scattering dry ice by airplane to break up potential hail storms and to produce snow and rain.

* * * *

Progress Made During The War

It was further suggested that summaries of such reports should, from time to time, be made public and also that some experimental work should be done in Saskatchewan on this problem. As in many other fields of knowledge, rapid progress was made during the war in the study of weather conditions and much information was gained by scientists on this important subject. It seems desirable, indeed, that such knowledge should, in time of peace, be used for the benefit of agriculture, and that consideration should be given to the making of further studies along these lines throughout the West. Drought and hail have been responsible for untold damage to crops and subsequent financial losses to farmers, and there should be wide interest in any new methods which may be found to combat them.

Urge Completion Of Modern Road Across Canada

Chamber Of Commerce Delegation Believes Present Facilities Are Inadequate

OTTAWA—Completion by Federal and Provincial governments of an up-to-date highway system from the Atlantic to the Pacific, to be begun when conditions are opportune, was urged by a delegation representing the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, which waited upon Mines and Resources Minister J. A. Glen recently.

"The chamber," said the spokesman for the delegation, "believes the present across-Canada road facilities are inadequate.

"A modern hard-surfaced highway would be a great asset in helping to unify the United States and Canada, increasing tourist traffic and for purposes of national defence," said the delegation.

The delegation also discussed with Mr. Glen, immigration and forestry. The chamber believed every effort should be made to retain Canadians in Canada, and the government should help ensure a national income and standard of living comparing favorably with that offered by any other country.

The chamber recommended creation of a separate ministry of immigration.

It was recommended provincial authorities consider calling a conference on national forestry. If the provinces agreed the Dominion Government should call one without delay.

MANITOBA TO MODERNIZE ITS NORTH TOWNS

FLIN FLON, Man.—The Manitoba government is going to modernize the northern towns—in the not too distant future—with an automatic telephone service and radio transmission stations.

Peter Miller, commissioner of telephones, in outlining the plan, says it will depend on growth of the towns and increase in population.

Present plans call for installation of an automatic telephone service at Flin Flon and Dauphin, and for radio transmitters at Swan Lake, Lynn Lake, and other outlying northern mining areas . . . when development warrants. The two will be the central radio link between the northern outposts and will be connected with a Winnipeg radio station.

Miller says such companies as the Manitoba Hog Mill metal fragmentizer in their outposts and in the large scrilled areas the government will install necessary equipment.

ROSETOWN PLANS NEW WATER SYSTEM

ROSETOWN, Sask. — New buildings valued at $250,000 have been built in this town of 1,800 people during the last year and residents hope they'll soon be watering dirt-bigger by supply for the first time in its history.

Rosetown, lying in the middle of a rich wheat-growing district, has always bought its water from door-to-door vendors, but now it has contracted for the development of a water supply on Eagle Creek, 4½ miles from here and has been guaranteed a flow of 100 gallons a minute.

Water has always been the key to the town's problems. Lack of wells held down its development and lack of rain plunged it into the depths of depression during the '30s. Return of rains and growth of farm techniques to conserve water made its present prosperity possible.

The town is symbolic of the importance of agriculture to Saskatchewan—every new business started in the last year is connected with farming and even its housing boom of 70 new homes in one year is attributed to movement of farmers into town during the winter season.

Boom crops of the past few years have done much for the town, 70 miles southwest of Saskatoon. Year by year it has carried out a tree-planting program, until now hundreds of elms line its streets. It has a city-owned playground covering a full city block, and a local service club is busy on a swimming-pool project.

Ed Wicket, local justice of the peace, claims the day is not far off when Saskatoon "will be just a suburb of Rosetown."

BARGAINS THAT WERE REALLY SOMETHING

"Ladies' fine shoes $2 a pair," one advertisement read. Another promised all-wool yard goods, 60 inches wide at 72 cents a yard.

Also listed were men's white shirts at 57 cents and men's dress shoes at $2 and $3 a pair.

The newspaper heralding such unheard of bargains turned up in a scrap paper campaign, a copy of the Athens, Ohio, Journal of Sept. 12, 1893.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

"Mary," said Mrs. Smythe, making final strong morals for a big party, "I want you to stand at the door, greet your guests and call the guests' names as they enter."

"Thank you, madam," said Mary. "I've been wanting to do that for years."

* * * *

An old lady was buying a radio.

"Now do you definitely assure me," she asked, looking anxiously at the knobs of wires, "that I shall not get a shock?"

"Madam," said the assistant, impressively, "I assure you that you won't get a shock until you hear some of the programs."

* * * *

A farmer wrote to a rural paper to ask: "How long cows should be milked?"

Why the same as short cows, of course," advised the editor.

* * * *

"Of course, I must ask you for a deposit," said the landlady.

"Certainly," replied the new tenant, handing over the required sum.

"Thanks. Now, shall we treat each other or do you want a receipt?"

* * * *

"I hear he married her because her uncle left her half a million dollars."

"That's not all! She had married her no matter who left it to her."

* * * *

Henny Youngman, New York wit, claims he was stopped by a parkmeter who asked him: "Brother, can you spare ten dollars till pay-day?"

"Why, you're pay-day?" Henny asked.

"You ought to know," answered the bum. "You're the one that's working."

* * * *

Johnny came home from a party and said to his mother: "Ma promised me a shilling if I behaved myself."

"Yes, dear."

"Well—you've saved a bob!"

* * * *

"How did your wife like the diamond ring you gave her for her birthday?"

"Delighted. She was so fully nice for a couple of days. But she's herself again now."

* * * *

They were discussing a mutual friend.

"Brown is a good fellow, really," said one, "but he's a trifle in your wife unfriendly."

"What do you mean?" the other asked. "Does he beat her?"

"No, no! He just refuses to argue with her."

* * * *

"And what is your reason for wishing to marry my daughter?" asked the father.

Puzzled, the young man scratched his head, pondered a second, then answered: "I have no reason, I'm in love."

* * * *

"Don't you enjoy listening to the hook of a wild goose?"

"Not when he's driving an automobile."

Atom Age Wonderful If Wars Outmoded

NEW YORK—Robert M. Hutchins, chancellor of the University of Chicago, writes in a December magazine article that atomic bombs can annihilate all life on earth—but that if war ceases, atomic energy can make man live as long as Methuselah.

"Atomic energy makes all our conceptions of daily living obsolete, eradicates virtually all our limitations, cures all our maladies, and opens the door to a way of life as uncomplicated as that of a South Sea native basking in the sun and picking his food from the breadfruit tree," he writes.

CENSUS SHOWS VANCOUVER IS GROWING RAPIDLY

SEEDTIME AND HARVEST

By DR. P. J. GETSAEVY, Director, Low Electrons Farm Service, Winnipeg, Manitoba.

On Agricultural Chemicals

A chemical revolution is taking place in the agricultural world. It is probably unrivalled in any of the three great sciences in agriculture. Today, for the first time, man can change the very pattern of plant growth. With the current efforts to broaden the growth and development of plants by the application of synthetic growth controlling hormones and other chemicals, we enter an important new era in agricultural practice.

Chemical Aids. In crop production, even now, artificial or chemicals can aid the farmer in every operation from seed-bed to the storage of the crop. Weather conditions, fertilizers, and fungicides, weed killers, insecticides, growth-promoting agents, insecticides, fungicides, weed killers, and storage fumigants are available to protect the crop in all stages and to minimize the risk in farming.

Chemical Progress. The agricultural chemicals now in use are but the crude beginnings. More and better fertilizers, better fungicides, better growth control agents, better fumigants, and weed killers are just around the corner. Low Electron Farm Service confidently predicts that, in the future, agriculture chemicals will play an ever-increasing part in making possible the economic production of crops in Western Canada. We believe that better utilization and application of fertilizers, and the wider use of other agricultural chemicals, will enable prairie farmers not only to benefit from improved agricultural practices, but also to maintain their rightful position in the competitive fields of the post-war world.

A month "Seedtime and Harvest" will attempt to keep farmers up to date, and other items informed of new developments in the agricultural chemical field.

Manitoba, In Heart Of Continent, Expanding In Industrial Wealth

Manitoba, with a total area of 246,512 square miles, of which 26,789 square miles is water surface, has a population of 728,744, is a well-developed province. Only 75 years ago it was on the very rim of civilization —Winnipeg was a few scattered buildings sprinkled on the edge of the prairie, a small fur-trade hamlet isolated in the heart of the continent, living vigorously on the crumbs from the Canadian west. Before the great steamwheelers plied the Red River and ox-carts rattled over the trails, its mail was carried once a week by horse in the summer and by dog train in the winter to St. Cloud, Minnesota, from the railway brought immigrants in thousands to the great western plains and the boom began.

Manufacturing

Quick to take advantage of its abundant hydro-electric resources, Manitoba is constantly increasing the output of manufactured goods. All types of plants—differing in variety from its 37 flour mills to glass works, rolling mills, bus-building plants, textile factories, iron and steel works, printing and publishing houses — add to Manitoba's industrial wealth. Products manufactured in the Province range from cement to mining machinery, from biscuits to aircraft. Each year sees new industries established in the Province to utilize its wealth of raw materials.

Manitoba has approximately 1,350 manufacturing establishments. During the past year the value of manufactured products rose to over $300,000,000 and the payroll was estimated at over $50,000,000.

Manitoba's largest industry—meat packing is centered in Winnipeg and St. Boniface, the latter city being the largest stockyards in the British Empire. The two cities draw their raw materials from the rich western farmlands.

Sugar refining has opened up a new field in Manitoba industry. The $1,000,000 sugar refining plant in Fort Garry employs over 300 men.

Mining

In little more than a decade mining in Manitoba has forged ahead to become a major industry, producing an output valued at approximately $16,000,000 annually. The great mines have been the key to northern development, for with the discovery of minerals came the need for transportation, modern towns and, above all, supplies.

Today, 100 miles north of the International Boundary, the $20,000,000 mining plant of the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company Limited produces copper, zinc, gold, silver and cadmium, and supports a vigorous town of 9,500 people. Forty miles northeast of Flin Flon, the fifteenth Gordon Mine produces copper, zinc, gold and silver. One hundred and twenty-five miles northeast of Winnipeg, the San Antonio Mine produces gold and silver.

Manitoba's great mining resources have hardly been touched. The northland, Canada's last frontier, is awaiting vast new developments.

This is the parade of an exclusive class of Geisha, who catered only to the highest ranking Samurai or war lords, and it affords the tourist public an opportunity to see the very elaborate and rich kimonos worn by these girls. This festival started over 300 years ago and is held annually. The girls walk very slowly through the streets, followed by an umbrella bearer. Prevailing fashions in nomic and customs are derived from this group, it is said. Occupation personnel in the Kyoto area were invited to attend the ceremony.

Health LEAGUE of CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES VITAL FOR HEALTH

The recently placed import restriction on U.S. fresh fruits and vegetables will reduce our supply of foods which are vital for health.

Canada's Food Rules state that one serving of citrus fruit (orange, grapefruit) or tomatoes or their juices is needed daily for health. We cannot say that health considerations have been swept aside, because, here in our own area we have grown foods which are high in the same nutrients, e.g. rose hips, cabbage, turnips, tomatoes (canned), spinach, potatoes, green peppers, parsley. Other good sources which are still available are sauerkraut, parsnips, strained vegetable baby foods, asparagus, canned raspberries, canned blueberries, marrow, peas. These foods must be properly stored and carefully prepared so that the food value is not destroyed by heat and air. Some of these foods should be eaten daily.

Suggestions for the preparation of these foods:

1. Eat raw vege. bles as often as possible. Serve them in salads, as turnip sticks and cabbage wedges.
2. Prepare ve- ables just before serving.
3. Serve baked potatoes frequently.
4. Avoid the soaking of vegetables.
5. Cook vegetables in a small amount of boiling water (salted) till tender. Avoid stirring air into them. Serve them immediately.
6. Vitamins and minerals are dissolved in the vegetable cooking water. Use this vegetable water when making soups, gravies and sauces.
7. Frozen vegetables should be cooked immediately before thawing.

"If we make wise selections from our Canadian grown vegetables we can obtain the food values which are necessary for wholesome, happy and efficient living. Let us do our part to save United States dollars and at the same time keep Canada healthy and strong.

MAKE IT A PARTY WITH WAFFLES—Whether it's a "just family" potal, a special Sunday brunch, or a guests-in-for supper affair, make it a party for your diners with crisp Egg Waffles. For sure as anything, you've never heard a person say, "I don't like waffles!" Everyone does! Your waffle iron is probably been gathering dust through the warm days of summer, but now you should whisk that dust off. Then whisk the golden brown goodness of a waffle onto your menus. Serve them with broiled Canadian Bacon and juicy, freshly-stewed peaches, flavored with raisins. Your platter will be pretty as the picture. Be sure to serve plenty of butter, syrup or a sweet jam, and its a certainty you'll only need a light dessert with hot tea or coffee.

EGG WAFFLES

3 eggs separated
½ cup all-bran
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons melted butter
½ cup sifted flour
½ teaspoons salt

Beat egg yolks with milk. Add bran. Stir in melted butter. Add sifted flour and salt. Stir until batter is smooth. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake on hot waffle iron until no steam is visible. Note: The use of eggs in place of baking powder gives a waffle hinting of the flavor and texture of a puffy omelet.

New Bridge Replaces One Of Few Remaining Links With Old West

REGINA Sask.—If plans of the provincial government go through, one of the most contentious of subjects in all Saskatchewan will be settled. Premier Douglas has announced his government has plans for building a six-span bridge across the South Saskatchewan river at Saskatchewan Landing. At a meeting in Swift Current the premier got a hearty endorsation from the hearers when he outlined plans for the bridge.

Members of the audience from north of the river and made a personal canvassing of an overhead project since no one was not strong enough to take the weight of traffic. Were the river as open, a primitive but experienced ferry makes the crossing, sometimes scores of times a day in the busy season.

Back about the time of the Riel rebellion in 1885, the people of the Swift Current and Kyle districts began talking about a bridge. At that time troops and supplies needed to put an end to the rebellion were ferried over the river, and the crossing was something of a bottleneck. As settlement progressed, contact with their horses and wagons outfits used the ancient ferry. Then a ripped along a cable across the river, the downward current controlled by a sideways thrust that would send the clumsy craft to the other side of the stream.

Last summer, the ferry ran day and night, sometimes carrying across as between 200 and 300 vehicles in 24 hours. Tourists were asked at long days when they went on the other bank upwards of an hour at times.

The Saskatchewan Landing ferry will not be an interesting tale, if it could. A man who talks for R. Shewaroid Jim smart, says he could write a long book if he ever had the time. Smart is a rancher living three miles upstream from the landing and is one of the first customers, and says the ferry was "plenty of fun and excitement."

He recalls on one occasion the spring floods carried the craft down and the cable along with it. He managed to get the ferry back to the landing, but the cable was gone. An enterprising cowboy found the cable on horseback, could pack a few hours later from the direction of the floating school him parts and yards of shiny new wire. The single man was stranded on a wagon-trail was quickly put into service as a new cable. Says Smart: "I didn't ask questions, but it looked to me as if a mile or so of the telephone wire there had been cut from the line into Kyle."

Flood Quits A Crossing

Mr. Smart, who that newspaper reporters are always looking for a good yarn to strengthen his suspicion, in the early days, wayfarers paid for their ferry crossing, but there is little point in the arrangement, since traffic today is one-sided with most north of the river was "pretty poor."

As farm settlers moved in the government ferry went operation, a free ferry crossing was free. But the primitive craft gave rise to a few complications on the part of the people who used it, and as far back as the first Great War they were

Foresees Heavy Fruit Crops For Canada

Dominion Agriculture Department Recommends Potato Acreage Increase

OTTAWA.—Possibility of increased production of most Canadian fruit crops was foreseen by the Dominion horticulture department in its report on the 1948 outlook for fruits and vegetables was prepared for presentation to the Dominion-Provincial Conference on Agriculture.

The report envisaged "rather significant" increase in apples, peaches and cherries, increases up to six per cent. for other fruits except strawberries and grapes, expected to decline by small amounts.

It also recommended a slight increase in acreage needed to potatoes, and anticipated increased acreage for tomatoes and beans, with some possible decline in corn and peas.

Recovery in Canadian apple production from the "947 level of 14,- 518,000 bushels was seen, with expected crops topping the long-time averages except in Nova Scotia, where pulling of old trees and those of undesirable varieties was said to be "hardly offset" by new plantings. The industry, however, was expanding in British Columbia, Quebec and New Brunswick and was in a stable producing position in Ontario.

Prospects now were that there would be an adequate export outlet to the United Kingdom and only limited amounts of surplus available.

The 1947 production for B.C. was listed as 8,919,000 bushels.

Pear production increasing in the three producing provinces, British Columbia, Ontario and Nova Scotia. The 1947 production of 975,- 000 bushels was 25 above the long-term average of 589,000.

A slight increase expected in plum production in British Columbia, Ontario and Nova Scotia would seem to offset a somewhat smaller crop. Production in 1947, estimated at 771,- 000 bushels, compared with a 5,000- 38 average of 222,000 bushels.

Estimated Canadian production in 1947 of other fruits, with long-term averages bracketed, were reported as: Apricots, 150,000 bushels (50,- 000); cherries, 370,000 bushels (210,- 000); strawberries, 23,945,000 quarts (10,049,000); raspberries, 10,760,000 quarts (9,107,000); grapes, 74,319,000 pounds (42,818,000); loganberries, 1,728,000 pounds (1,353,000).

Canning crops suffered in 1947 and while considerable increase was expected for tomatoes and beans in 1948, some decline might occur in corn and peas. On the other hand, Alberta and Manitoba were increasing its importance as canning areas and were expected to show large acreage, as were those in British Columbia and the Maritimes were stable.

MINING GRADUATE MINES ARSENIC AT FLIN FLON

FLIN FLON, Man. — Allwood Knight, Colorado School of Mining graduate, is convinced he's solved a problem which has baffled mining engineers in Northern Manitoba for almost a quarter of a century.

The engineers have been trying for years to find some medium-grind properties into production but have had to admit defeat because of the high percentage of arsenic in the ore. These attempts were reported to have cost more than $1,000,000 in the last 18 years.

Knight believes he has the problem licked. The big headache to the engineers has been the cost of removing the ore to get rid of the arsenic which is too great to permit profitable operation.

However, Knight in two years of grueling work tackled the problem from a different angle. Instead of trying to get rid of the arsenic, he is just as interested in recovering it as he is in recovering the gold.

He has directed expenditure of some $500,000 in making extensive and successful tests and on erecting a mill and refinery at the Douglas Lake site, a few miles west of Flin Flon.

The process, he says, is too intricate for a layman to understand. The ore yields about 6½ pounds of arsenic and just under ½ ounce of gold to the ton. After the refinery process is completed the white arsenic is 99 per cent. pure.

Before going to work on the problem Knight made sure there would be a ready market for the arsenic. He has since received tentative offers from South America, Japan, Australia, France and several parts of the United States and Canada.

Pure arsenic has a number of uses, chief of which are in the manufacture of insecticides, the making of a new type of glass, and in drugs.

GRAVELBOURG VETERANS RUN OWN BUSINESS

GRAVELBOURG, Sask. — Eighty per cent. of Gravelbourg's veterans who returned to this town of 3,200 people operate their own businesses here.

Some 60 miles southwest of Moose Jaw, Gravelbourg has been described as a portion of Quebec transplanted to the Saskatchewan Prairie—thoroughly French in every way the citizens observe a holiday of their own, the Feast of the Epiphany, on January 6.

The town was founded early in the 1900's by Father Pierre Gravel, a young missionary who gave it its name. Now some of its schools and colleges are affiliated with the University of Ottawa.

There are 296 men returned from Gravelbourg who enlisted in the Second World War. Included in this total is one doctor—assessed at more than $35,- 000—started by returning veterans, are two restaurants, dry cleaning and tailoring, radio and electrical repairs, automotive parts, a shoe store and a quick-freeze plant.

But of its stalwart band anything the easiest job is held by Ken Morrison, a former captain in the provost corps, now an R.C.M.P. constable stationed here. Although Gravelbourg is a judicial centre and the assize court sits twice a year, there hasn't been a case on the docket for 10 years.

Another Old Belief Has Been Discounted

OTTAWA — Nutritionists in the National Health services, push-pooh the belief that certain foods, taken together, will "fight" in the stomach. They say that there is no reason why a meal shouldn't include both lobster and ice-cream, for example.

Nutritionists don't create mysterious poisons, simply because they are mixed. People with robust constitutions may eat most foods quite happily. However, any low figure hard to digest will naturally cause just that much extra distress if eaten together in large quantities. The secret, say the experts, is to eat in moderation and not to choose foods for nutritive value.

Life Span Up During Century

NEW YORK.—The average length of life in the western world has increased 25 years in the last century, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. reported.

The increase was more than had occurred in all prior centuries since the Romans, it was 25 years; in the 18th century, 35 years, and now is 65 years.

In about 10 or 20 years, it should rise to the Biblical three-score and ten, the company estimated.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

BIG JIM COLLECTS

By WALTER E. KLEIN

BIG JIM blew a cloud of smoke into the air, derisively stared at his cigar, then delicately flicked the long ash into a waiting tray.

"I said I wanted the money today," he said, and darted a sharp look at the nervous, pretty girl before him. She sat, small and timid in the big chair, twisting her handkerchief in supple fingers. "And no nonsense, Miss Barry. I'm not a hard man, but five grand isn't chicken feed. I've got expenses to meet, too. And my creditors won't wait as long as I've waited for you." He paused for Big Jim's emphasis, if he'd had any, would have waited a good deal longer, and no doubt would have done so nervously.

"You'll get it, Mr. Morse. I promise you. It's just that I haven't got it now. All I've got is fifty dollars. Look!" and she opened her purse to reveal a small roll of bills nestling on the bottom, almost hidden by the lone tenor. "If, if you'd take it on account—"

Big Jim laughed, the roar running and his throat in a thunderous peal. "Pf!... fifty dollars." On account for, for five grand! That wouldn't even pay the interest.

"It's all I've got," Mary said.

"Look, Big Jim said wearily. "Why don't you admit you've licked? What made you marry such a chump as Barry, anyhow? You knew he couldn't stay away from the roulette table. He'd gone to the wall several times. He's no good."

"That is not true," Mary said quickly. "When it's paid, I'm finished. I'll take him and we'll start over. That's why I haven't got the money right now. But if you'll only wait, I'll get it."

"I see," said Big Jim. "I like you, kid. I've got to like you. But if you're dumb enough to play Russian Roulette, I'm not dumb enough to have the dough. If I don't get it, you know what'll happen to Barry."

"No! I know what he was like when I married him, and I feel responsible for him. I can't let you do that! All I need is a little more time—"

"That's all anyone ever needs—a little more time," Big Jim said.

Besides," Mary declared defiantly, "if your tables weren't fixed, maybe he would have had a chance."

Big Jim inhaled the fragrance of his cigar, and smiled at her. "Everyone knows my tables are honest. How do you think I keep in my shirt?"

"I don't care. What difference does it make?"

"I like to keep the facts straight, that's all. Haven't you got anything you can lay?"

Mary shrugged helplessly. "Nothing at all. Jewelry, clothes, I've spent this rang. John gave it to me when we became engaged. And I won't give that up!"

"Knowing John as I do, it's probably glass anyhow. Keep it. Nobody else'll have it. You're really in bad shape, aren't you kid? John must have really taken you to the cleaners. Now, why not be sensible, and just forget the whole thing? Let me take care of him. I'll get my money's worth out of him; you can bank on that. Big Jim doesn't fool around with his dough."

"I can't do that! I loved him. All I need is time. In a few months I can pay you back every penny."

Big Jim shook his head. "Sure, and in the meantime I'll be where I can't lay my hands on him, and you'll forget all about it. And time notes I haven't be just waste paper. No, dear, kid."

Mary's shoulders slumped as she slowly rose.

"Wait a minute!" Big Jim cried on impulse. "I'm a gambling man, and I like you. I'll give you a chance! I'd never give John, or anyone else. You take that 50 bucks and the next room, and try to work it up on roulette. That's what John lost on."

Mary started to shake her head but Big Jim went on. "Don't be in such a hurry! You know how to play roulette, don't you? Sure. Any wife of John Sharp would. Okay. If you lose, I'll knock off that 50 bucks, and give you another one to stay up the rest. That's a fair offer for you. What more do you want?"

Mary hesitated, then nodded. "All right, I'll do it!"

The door closed behind her. Big Jim leaned back, put on his hat, and lit a new cigar. He pressed the buzzer on his desk, and talked a few minutes to the man whose head dress suit who entered. Then he went over to a sideboard and mixed himself a drink. A shout rose in the next room, and Big Jim smiled expectantly.

The octet lasted open. Marc Sharp came triumphantly in and Big Jim took, and dumped a pile of bills on the desk before him. There was four thousand. I hope you're satisfied."

Big Jim sat down his empty glass, and looked at the money with a grateful grin. Showing it to one side, he leaned across and kissed Mary on the cheek. "Not bad for a beginner. I hope you don't let it go to your head. I'll call a bad business for an amateur. Congratulations."

"Now, if you'll give me those notes, I'll leave."

As the door was closing behind her, Big Jim shouted: "Hell think an easy-to-see two-piece. Pattern 4824 from Barbara Bell. Included are 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42. Size 16 takes 3¾ yds. 39-in.

RECIPES

FRIED CHICKEN

Cut chicken into serving pieces. Coat with seasoned flour. Use ½ cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, and dash of pepper for 2½ to 3½ pound chicken. (Half corn meal may be used.) To add an even browning, melt ¼ cup butter, add 1½ teaspoons paprika. Place seasoned flour in paper sack. Take add a few pieces of chicken, fold top of bag, and shake to coat evenly.

Heat enough fat in heavy skillet to make a layer about ¼ inch deep. Add more during cooking, if necessary.

For crusty finish, avoid crowding pieces. Fry until lightly browned on both sides. Then reduce heat and cook slowly until tender, turning to cook both sides. For a young fryer (1½ to 2½ pounds), cook 30 to 35 minutes longer. For a larger chicken, cover and cook 30 to 45 minutes longer, depending on size of pieces; uncover during last 5 minutes to recrisp coating. To test doneness, cut through one of the thickest muscles to bone. Meat should cut easily and no trace of red should be visible at the bone.

WINNIPEG. — Final estimate of the 1947 prairie wheat crop protein content is 14.1 per cent., 3 higher than last year's crop and 4 per cent. higher than the mean for the last 20 years.

Its protein content is the best measure of the potential baking quality of wheat, the statement said. A high protein content also "is particularly valuable" in export wheat will be blended with weaker European wheat.

Prairies May Get Natural Alberta Gas

Pipe Line To Supply Moose Jaw, Regina, Brandon And Winnipeg

CALGARY — Alberta natural gas may heat Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina and Moose Jaw rather than Vancouver and Seattle, if a $42,000,000 pipe line project now under consideration goes through.

The pipe line would be privately owned, would be financed by the Winnipeg firm, Osler Hammond and Nanton.

Before the project could go through the Alberta government would want to be convinced that there was more than sufficient gas to serve the needs of the province. Hon. M. H. Tanner, Alberta minister of lands and mines, indicated that if reserves in excess of requirements could be proved, the government would not be adverse to the export scheme.

In order to get an estimate of reserves a joint provincial-Dominion committee of geologists and engineers has been set up. The committee, composed of four members, two provincial appointees, two Dominion. The chairman is a Dominion appointee.

While the members of the four Dominion appointees have not yet been announced it was considered here that Dominion government geologist, Dr. G. S. Hume, would most likely be the chairman.

Recently the New York firm of Brown, Dixon and McKee, consultants in the Texas-Tennessee, 1,300 mile gas line, were in Calgary studying the report. From the start-to-finish point of piping gas to Vancouver via Seattle, Northern Natural Gas Company, one of the largest firms of its kind, the U.S. were the pipe inspectors builders. — Vancouver Province.

DUPLICATE OF PRINCESS' COAT —A leading firm of South African coast manufacturers, after receiving details from London, set their London-trained designers to work early on the morning of 30th November, to produce an exact replica of Princess Elizabeth's going-away coat. Working right through the night, they finished the coat in time to show at the reception held next day in South Africa's award Barbizon Plaza hotel. A slight alteration had to be made to suit South African figure, making the coat a little more square at the shoulders, otherwise, the coat is an exact replica. Twenty-nine coats were finished by the afternoon of Nov. 30.

Your Implement Dealer Says:
Every community has done or should have implements. Dealers who sell to Farmers and others the implements and power tools they need to do their work. Your local dealer in power and hand operated equipment for natural and mineral industry is not only a Merchant or Seller, but he is also a consultant and advisor in all things mechanical and they are his business. Implement and Machinery dealers give much service to all who call and for their service and service they get no direct pay.

Because there are some of the customers who might be inclined to abuse this privilege, the dealers have agreed to put a limit on his free service, but all the more GIVES far more as a rule than he gets paid for. Instance after instance has come under this writer's observation where dealers have sent highly paid men advice as far as fifty miles away to service a farm tool — and the service takes charge, and in some cases years and years after the original sale was effected.

WEDDING CAKE SENT TO GROOM'S PARENTS IN NORWAY

The top layer of the wedding cake served at the reception in Hastings Auditorium following the marriage in First Lutheran Norwegian Church on November 22nd, of Elma Barnes and Delmar Lamont, was sent by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Olverians of Fulla Salten, Norway.

Rev. A.H. Dahlen officiated at the marriage rites when Miss Barnes given in marriage by her brother was gowned in white nylon marquisette with rose-patterned panelled embroidery, the long-sleeved bodice featuring a sweetheart neckline. Her veil was caught in a halo of orange blossoms and she carried Talisman roses.

Mrs. Lina Brandon was matron-of-honor in a gown of deep rose chiffon and Miss Clara Derlingen, bride's maid, wore turquoise silk net trimmed with bands of pink velvet. Both wore matching headdresses and veil and carried carnations.

Mrs. H. O. Olsen of Sedgewick was his cousin's best man, while two other cousins, Mr. Harold Ingram and Mr. Olav Moan, ushered. — Vancouver Sun.

The groom was a former resident of Sedgewick and was united in marriage to Miss Gudish. He is a brother of Mr. Ole Moan of Sedgewick.

A pretty wedding was performed in the Roman Catholic Rectory at Killam on Tuesday morning, Dec. 23, when Lois Carol youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Bourne of Sedgewick became the bride of Mr. George Hankes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Pedersen of Killam. The Rev. Father McCarthy officiated.

The bride looked lovely in a floor length gown of white crepe with sheer yoke trimmed in silver lace and long sleeves. Her three-quarter length veil was held in place with a coronet type wreath of orange blossoms. She wore silver sandals. Her bouquet was red roses.

The bride was attended by her sister Margaret who wore a floor length gown of rose crepe. She carried a bouquet of pink and rose carnations.

The groom was supported by his brother Arnold.

After a honeymoon in Calgary and Edmonton the couple will be at home in Sedgewick after January 5th.

GAL STUFF

By A. W. E.—

As is usual at this time of year, people all across the country are putting themselves in the precarious position of forecasters, and many and varied are the predictions we have had related to us thus far. The wise man will be cautious in his regard, but as usual, 'the fool rushes in where the angel fears to tread'. In making predictions regarding the future, we personally like to have the luck favor slightly ajar so we may beat a hasty retreat should the occasion call for it.

In predicting the political future of our country, one should take at least a nodding acquaintance with political trends; in forecasting the coming economic situation one must at least know what the word Reciprocess. We have never been too smet recently interested in politics from an active point of view, but have never classed ourself as an ardent student of economics. Even though we have definite ideas about both subjects we are hesitant to cast caution to the winds and inform you of what is going to happen. In both these fields we feel predictions are bound to be wrong.

However, discussing the subjects most closely related to the people of today is an exhilarating pastime. You can always learn something; that is if you are as good a listener as you are a talker. Some of the best advice we have ever received has been by listening to yourself as you unconsciously you may be sounding to yourself.

A good many people today spend a lot of time deploring the present high cost of living. They think the present rising cost trend and predict even higher costs as we go along. Indeed from present indications the living index shows every sign of becoming higher before any relief will be evident. At least for the first half of 1948 it appears that prices will be higher. What may happen after that we leave to the wiseacres.

As an indication of this trend in higher costs, we have word from the Town of Hardisty that the 'Sisters' Bitters' little flap-headed chorobs who took after your children while you and the Missus visit the neighbors or make whoopee) have now formed an unofficial Amalgamated Union of Bitters Incorporated. Prices for their work have been standardized, with double time for overtime and extra pay for tasks performed over and above the call of ordinary duty. So far as Hardisty is concerned the day of paying a Bitter 25c or even 50c plus a cup of coffee, and a piece pie and beneficeth your statement of account may read something like this: Three hours before midnight ..... 75c 2 Hours after midnight ..... 50c Washing one Diaper ..... 10c Carrying Coal, Etc. ..... 15c Miscellaneous Items ..... 10c Total Account ..... $2.10

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

KILLAM TEAM WINS OWN HOCKEY TOURNEY

The annual New Years Day hockey tournament held at Killam this year lived up to the reputation the yearly event has established, both in competition and for attracting the crowds. The scene of the new rink was jammed with spectators from near and far and the competition on the ice was of a high calibre.

The first game between Killam and Lougheed was very evenly contested and gave the spectators a few of the old-fashioned thrills. The final score was 5—3 for Killam.

The second game was between the teams from Sedgewick and Alliance. This game produced more of the rugged type of hockey than the now almost lost art of smooth, fast and trickily executed plays. Alliance took this game by a 6—3 score.

The final game at 9 p.m. proved to be a rough and tough affair with spills, fights and penalties enough to keep the spectators on their toes and the tempers of the players at a ragged edge. The final score was 6—1 in favor of Killam.

The local Club sponsored a booth and gave excellent service selling hot dogs and coffee. The refereeing duties were performed by Freddie Elsener.

A dance during the evening drew a large crowd and the entire day proved to be a real success.

An Important Task

MUCH HAS BEEN SAID IN THE PAST concerning Canada's role as interpreter in relations between Great Britain and the United States. Closely knit as we are to Britain by ties of empire, we are, at the same time, in a position to have a comprehensive knowledge of the problems and the outlook of our neighbors in the United States. During the war, methods of diplomacy, like many other of our established institutions, underwent changes, since leaders often found it necessary to disregard the usual procedure in carrying out business between nations, in order to save them in critical situations. There was some doubt then, as to whether diplomacy would regain its former importance in the settling of world affairs, but now it is apparent that there is still need for diplomatic dealings in international relations, and in this, as in many other things, Canada has assumed an increasingly important place since the war.

* * * *

Important Task For Canada Now

Sir Shaldmen Rodiern, who recently returned to England after spending some years in Ottawa, has expressed the opinion in a recent article that Canada's greatest diplomatic task today lies in helping to maintain close ties of friendship between Great Britain and the United States, in view of the rising force of anti-democratic feeling in some parts of the world. The writer points out that if of supreme importance to Canada at this time to do all she can to promote understanding between the two great Western democracies and to prevent the growth of any disunity between them. To successfully carry out this task well, he believes, require "all her resources of skill and understanding, all her machinery of conciliation, all her imagination, and the exercise of constant vigilance. Above all it will require inexhaustible patience."

* * * *

Should Profit From Mistakes

Certainly if we are to profit from the lessons of the past, we should know the importance of unity among friendly nations in unsettled times. Had the German leaders known that the small nations of Western Europe, Great Britain and the United States were all firmly resolved to take action together against aggression, the war might not have begun. Even if it had taken place, events would have taken a very different course had there been prompt and powerful opposition such as could have come, had all the democratic countries been united in purpose at that time. Hitler very successfully proved the wisdom of the adage "divide and conquer", and the lesson of his early victories should not soon be forgotten. Agreement and unity of purpose between the great Western democracies could, without doubt, be a powerful factor in preserving world peace, and in helping to maintain that relationship Canada has so important and exacting task.

TRUTH

Truth is the summit of being, justice is the application of it to affairs. —Emerson.

All Truth is from inspiration and revelation, from Spirit; not from flesh.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Error always addresses the passions and prejudices; truth never such means intrigue, and only addresses the understanding and the conscience.— Abel Backus.

Religious truth, touch what points of it you will, is always to do with duty, the being and government of God, and is, of course, illimitable in its reach.—Hitchcock.

Model Dairy Farm As Memorial To Soldier Son

SPOKANE — A Spokane architect and his wife announced that they have started construction on a $100,000 model dairy farm at Chattaroy, Wash., as a memorial to their only son killed in action on Okinawa.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Rasque said profit from the 200-acre farm will be used to help worthy boys through high school and college. It will be equipped with modern machinery, a cattle-type house, a 41-by-80-foot barn, farm shop and shed and will be completed in two years.

"We planned this type of memorial to our son, George, because we thought the type of project could best perpetuate his memory," Rasque said.

The Turns regard green as a sacred color and for that reason its use is confined chiefly to prayer rugs.

RECIPES

SELECTED

CHOCOLATE NUT LOAF
(8 eggs)

2½ cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup butter or other shortening
2 cups sugar
5 eggs
1 cup boiled walnut meats
3 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 cup sour milk or buttermilk
2 teaspoons vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add soda and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter, and sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Beat eggs until very thick and light; add to creamed mixture and beat well. Add nuts and chocolate and blend. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in greased pan, 12x9x2 inches, in slow oven (325 deg. F.) 1 hour, or until done.

This excellent chocolate cake may be baked in other ways. Nuts may be omitted and cake baked in three greased 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 25 minutes, or in two greased 9x5x3-inch pans at 300 deg. F. for 35 minutes.

CHOCOLATE CARAMELS

1 cup sugar
½ cup corn syrup
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups light cream

Combine sugar, corn syrup, chocolate, salt, and ½ cup cream. Place over low flame and stir constantly until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils. Continue boiling until a small amount of mixture forms a soft ball in cold water (234 deg. F.), stirring constantly. Add ½ cup cream and boil again to 234 deg. F., stirring constantly. Add remaining ½ cup cream and boil slowly until a small amount of mixture forms a firm ball in cold water (242 deg. F.), stirring constantly. Pour into slightly buttered pan, six inches. Do not scrape pan. Let stand until cold.

Mark with knife in 1-inch squares and turn out on cold cloth, having loose side up. Cut in squares, using full length of long blade. Let stand in cool place to dry. Makes 60.

Oregon Plans To Heat Highway By Hot Water

PORTLAND, Ore. — A highway heated by hot water is proposed by the Oregon State Highway Commission.

Natural hot water wells in the area would be tapped to pipe hot water through the pavement and prevent it from icing.

Report Shows Crime Increase In Canada

Drunken Driving, Theft Assault Cases Trends Noted To 24,613 In Latest Year

OTTAWA—The cattle rustler is a fast-disappearing species on the Canadian crime scene, but the safecracker is on the increase.

This was revealed in the annual report of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, tabled in Commons by Commissioner S. T. Wood.

Statistics from the R.C.M.P. files show that a total of 24,613 cases —an increase of 6,391 over the year ending March 31, 1946—were listed in the Criminal Code section of Canadian law in the year ending March 31, 1947.

The higher figure for this year, the report said, came mainly from increases in drunken driving, theft, theft, theft-general; assault-general; driving a car while intoxicated; robbery with violence, and arson.

The report added, however, that there had been a drop in cases of attempted murder and manslaughter—as well as a sharp decline in cattle-stealing. At the same time, safe-breakings had registered a jump of 17 over the previous year's mark, showing a total of 66 up to the end of March this year.

The sharp rises of two R.C.M.P.-trained dogs named "Tell" and "Ignatz"—ascribed sort two prairie criminals along with their $500-loot taken from a safe-cracking job in the pool elevator at Rimster, Sask.

This was also revealed in the report.

When two suspicious men were reported about 20 miles from the robbery, the dogs were taken to the area to pick up the scent. Within a few hours "Tell" had tracked both men—F. Baker and F. Johnson, both well-known criminals, according to the R.C.M.P.—hiding in patches of brush and long grass.

The second dog, "Ignatz", meanwhile had sniffed out an old sock near where Baker had been hiding. The sock contained the $500 stolen from a bottle of explosive, and a detonator.

Baker received two years less a day and Johnson got a five-year sentence.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

Wife—Well, you certainly are his equal! He's nothing but a shifting, brainless, conceited idiot!

Wife: Do right and fear no man.

Husband: Do not write and fear no woman.

A farmer's wife sold her surplus butter to a grocer in a scarcity town. One morning the grocer remarked, "Your butter was underweight last week."

"Now, fancy that," she replied. "Baby mislaid my weight that day, so I used the pound of sugar you sold me."

* * * *

Foreman: "Don't you see that sign, 'No hands washed in this sink'?"

Applicant: "I do, but I promised my wife I'd really ask for a dollar today, and that's why I applied."

* * * *

"George," remarked a friend, enthusiastically, "that wife of yours is a remarkable woman. she certainly has a will of her own."

"Yes," roared George, "and let me tell you Harry, I'm the sole beneficiary."

A woman went to buy a drinking bowl for her dog and the shopkeeper asked if she would like one with the inscription: "For My Dog."

"It really doesn't matter," the woman replied. "My husband never drinks water and the dog can't read."

Mrs. Brown was turning out her wardrobe and putting on one side things she had no further use for.

"Would you like my last summer's hat, Mary?" she asked her little daughter.

Oh, thank you, Mrs. Brown!" Mary answered. "That's the one my boy friend likes me in best."

Mother (to doubtful son): "Why, what a good boy you are, sitting there so quietly!"

Junior: "I always sit quietly until somebody gets ready to pay my bank, and then I say "Thank you."

* * * *

John: "Have any of your children been christened yet, Bill?"

Bill: "One of them. When my mother-in-law said baby'd need to wash I didn't have any."

* * * *

"What is your son going to be when he passes his final examinations?"

"An old man."

In a tight-fisted congregation the hat was passed around on Sunday and returned absolutely empty.

The pastor cast his eyes heavenward and said, with a great deal of reverence, "I thank Thee, Oh Lord, that I got my hat back."

OAT KING — In the first day's judging at the Chicago International Hay and Grain Show, Canada had locked away a championship for wheat, another for oats. Shown above, is Alex M. ## BAGWOOD'S BRAVAL

McLEAN, Sask. — Constable Bill Brace of the R.C.M.P. felt hungry while passing through this eastern Saskatchewan village and ordered a sandwich comprising four slices of bread, tomatoes, fried eggs, beets, onions, lettuce, etc., but hot dogs, a mixture of potato, beef, pork and cabbage. It cost 20 cents.

The whale shark, largest of the fishes, has teeth too small for being and takes in its food through its gills.

UNIVERSITY STUDENT TRAVELS GOLD TRAILS

VICTORIA—A clarinet, typewriter and a 10-cent piece aren't exactly the most popular things to take on an Arctic expedition, but Phil Allan, young University of Alberta student took them, and made the trip pay.

In the last six months Allan, who is resting in Vancouver, covered 6,000 miles of the Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

He still has the typewriter and the clarinet, but the 10-cent piece in his pocket is not the same one he started out with.

He was a band leader in Yellowknife, a deckhand on a Mackenzie River steamboat, a woodcutter's helper at Fort Yukon, a hod carrier in Dawson and a house painter in Whitehorse.

He paddled his canoe on the Arctic Ocean, was honored guest at a full-dress Indian wedding and saw the trail of 98 from the rugged Chilcoot Pass.

"I wouldn't trade it for a bachelor of arts degree," Allan said. Complete with chest-long beard, Phil is visiting his grandparents here. Later he plans to write a book.

After that he said his typewriter, clarinet and 10-cent piece may go to the Orient with him.

Your Hardware Dealer Says:

HARDWARE IS A NECESSITY

Not generally known is the fact that next to food and clothing Hardware is a necessity of mankind. Man's emancipation from a caveman's existence can be traced to his first use of hardware. The bone knife, the flint arrow—the bronze age and today the steel age. In fact although food and clothing are man's primary necessities,, the quantities of food and clothing produced today depend on hardware.

The tools the farmer uses to keep his implements in repair—the tools required to build the factories, the stores, processing plants are all related to hardware.

In fact most of our modern conveniences—cooking utensils, plumbing, fixtures, electric switches and wiring, door locks and other items that give us such a high standard of living are nothing more or less than hardware. It has been said "If you can't eat it or wear it you will find it in a hardware store.' How true this is.

Three Men Testify

All "Co-op" Officials
All favour keeping Grain Exchanges open

Read what two of them said before United States Congressional Committee on December 4th and what Mr. Davis said in St. Louis recently.

Testimony of Mr. Herman Skyberg:

Mr. Herman Skyberg, President of the Farmers' Co-operative Marketing Association of East Grand Forks, Minnesota, said,

"With the present marketing system (i.e. Grain Exchange and "futures" markets) we have produced more than enough to carry the risk. As our manager keeps going from Grand Forks to Chicago, Minneapolis, the Minneapolis Grain Exchange. This gives us security and insurance. We do not operate in the speculative end of the market. We are interested in "futures" trading. Therefore our directors have instructed me to appear in an attendance at the Congressional hearing to urge on their behalf the continuance of trading for their grain to be continued in operation.

Remember—this co-operative membership is owned by 7,000 grain co-operative members got in Canada, where the wheat price is controlled by Governments.

Testimony of Mr. Roy Crawford:

Mr. Roy Crawford, General Manager of a large Kansas Co-operative with 250 locals said,

"The "futures" market of the Grain Exchange is the most open market in the world. (Only equal to some extent Chicago) one vital cog in the marketing machinery of the present distributive system which we use in the opening of the farmers' grain."

Mr. Crawford said his members did not favour "Government Ownership" of the Speculative Market" because, he said,

"The speculator gives to their markets, both and liquidity and the Exchange "Futures" market provides buying power by guaranteeing to our grain producers the demand from all sources, including the speculator. Without the speculator—and the supervision—and the individual risk thereon Government."

Statement of Mr. John H. Davis:

Speaking in St. Louis recently, John H. Davis, Executive Vice-President of National Council of Co-operatives, said,

"The principle role of government in a long-range agricultural policy should be to assist in research, statistical and educational work. We should depend on free enterprise to provide the markets. The chief fault in a free market when the government maintains production restrictions and price controls on agricultural products is the government's function of adjustment is maintaining the machinery of commercial exchange for us to accompany such as occurred in 1933. However, we hope to stay so far away as possible from the exercise of production and subsidizing of prices."

Space does not permit printing the full testimony. If you wish to have it, mail Coupon below

Despite these testimonies the Canadian "Pools" want to close the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, although between them, they own ten memberships in it. And their members are actively trading in the "futures" market for course grains every day. Does this make sense to you, Mr. Farmer? The simple fact is that the Leaders of the Pools want to close the Exchange to get a vise-like monopoly control.

Farmers are cordially invited to visit the Exchange during trading hours, 9:30 to 1:15 p.m. Ask to see the President or Secretary, or any other member. Ask questions. Straight answers will be given.

All our members favour a "floor" price for wheat administered by the Canadian Wheat Board. But they also believe that farmers should have the opportunity to get top world prices NOW, through open markets, while prices are high.

The more farmers know about the Exchange, the better it will be for all concerned. Meantime mail the coupon below for booklet explaining the Canadian Wheat Board Act and how you are regulated and controlled by it, in its present form.

MR. FARMER—
Mail this coupon NOW to learn how you and your grain are regulated and controlled.

Golden Leaves

Canada Practically Grows All Of Its Tobacco Needs

TOBACCO leaves can be golden in more ways than one. The stream of wealth precipitated by the plant reached flood proportions in 1946 when Canadians paid approximately $320,000,000 for the pavilege of smoking. Of this, $200,000,000 was snapped up in various taxes and duties. Practically all this tobacco—98 per cent. to be exact—was home grown. A few years ago Canada was considered too far north to produce the leaf. Yet last year there were 110,354 acres harvested for a yield of 141,384,000 pounds of tobacco leaf. The $50,000,000 cash value of the crop makes it the most valuable of all specialized Canadian crops, supporting approximately 200,000 people.

A tobacco buyer dickers with a farmer for his annual crop. Canadians spend approximately $320,000,000 annually for the privilege of smoking.

Tobacco outlived several attempts to prohibit its use. First appearing among the Mayas of ancient Mexico and later among North American Indians, tobacco was long considered a medicine.

When the habit developed quickly, James I of England thought of it as poisoning it but imposed a tax instead. An effort to discourage tobacco use in Canada was abandoned in 1735. By 1907, the year of Confederation, excise tax on tobacco accounted for a large percentage of the country's revenue.

Within the last 20 years the Experimental Farms Service developed new varieties, improved cultural practices and advocated the use of more suitable fertilizers.

Experiments were also conducted by the tobacco division of the Federal Department of Agriculture. Methods of controlling natural enemies such as horn worms, cut worms and wire worms were discovered. Fertilizers were tested until they had exactly the right proportions of plant food elements.

Both fertilizers made possible the development of a "New Belt" in Norfolk county, Ontario, which has become more valuable for tobacco growing than the "Old Belt" in Essex county.

When picked, tobacco is cured at temperatures rising to 190 degrees Fahrenheit. Leaves are graded for color, size and texture and packed in wooden hogsheads for ageing. After the hogsheads are opened, the bottle leaves are steamed and sorted to make up different brands. Blended, cut and dried, the tobacco is allowed to "temper" for two days before being shredded for uniform rolling into cigarettes.

Modern machines produce 1,200 cigarettes a minute. Special "Cellophane" used in packing cigarettes is only one-thousandths of an inch but highly moisture and vapor-proof.

Quebec and British Columbia also produce fine quality tobacco.

Some 200 packages of cigarettes a minute are wrapped in "Cellophane" by this intricate machine. Of the tobacco used in Canada, 98 per cent. is home grown. In 1936 almost 60 per cent. was imported.

Soothsayer Says Hitler Still Alive

ROME — A Neopolitan soothsayer Achille d'Angelo announced that Adolf Hitler is living in a small town by a river in western Argentina, to which he escaped by submarine from Denmark a week before V-E Day.

Signor d'Angelo, who is a self-proclaimed prophet, has acquired a wide reputation in local occult circles for his annual predictions. Last year he predicted the renewed Greek civil warfare, several earthquakes and the death of two members of the Byrd Antarctic expedition.

He did not say how he knew of Hitler's whereabouts, but he declared he was certain Der Fuehrer was staying at the home of a wealthy Argentinian and that there were four men and a woman in his party.

Milner, to a man who will not be born for 200 years, was buried recently under the main road leading to the town hall. A bore the burial place is a paving stone with instructions that the casket is not to be dug up until 2197.

The Mayor said: "We do not know what will happen in the next 250 years, which will be the atomic age, but this casket will tell them how we lived. I had the strange experience of writing a letter to a man who will not be born for at least 200 years. It is addressed to the Mayor of Bridlington for 2197."

Doctors Use Electric Shocks To Revive Boy As Pulse Stops

CHICAGO. — Electricity—a force that can stop a heart's beat—has been used by Cleveland physicians to revive the waning pulsations of a lifeyearold boy.

The Journal of the American Medical Association reports the patient's pulse stopped and blood pressure sounds ceased after a chest operation.

The incision was reopened and manual massage of the heart began. Some faint heart action was noted after 35 minutes of massage and mechanical respiration.

Two series of electric shocks applied directly to the exposed heart restored normal rhythm and the boy made a complete recovery.

Next War To Be Fought By Germs

Dr. A. H. Compton, Nobel Prize Winner, Warns Of Reversal In Warfare Tactics

LOS ANGELES — The next war will be a war of germs which will wipe out all life, Nobel Prize winner Dr. Arthur H. Compton said.

He said an enemy searching into America would find all the homes and factories undamaged and ready for operation. There would be no fighting, because the defenders would be dead.

The scientist, here to meet with alumni of Washington University of St. Louis, of which he is president, said the atomic bomb he helped develop was not the only great threat of future wars.

"When the Russians find out how much trouble it is to make a bomb, I wouldn't be surprised if they would come other weapon possibly germ warfare, he said.

Before they go the limit in the bomb development, they will turn to a means of spreading disease as an enemy country which very well in the future might prove the more effective. The Russians are very good in biological research."

Advice In Preventing Young Children From Getting Colds

(By Dr. Elizabeth Chant Robertson in Healthz)

MOST colds stop your baby's growth temporarily and some of them may even make him dangerously ill. Naturally you are worried when he catches one, and most mothers would be willing to go to almost any trouble in order to avoid them. The more you know about colds, the more intelligently you can guard your baby against them.

The cause of colds is an extremely small germ, so small that it cannot be seen with an ordinary microscope, called a virus. Later on in the course of a cold, bigger germs, such as streptococci and pneumococci, are usually responsible for the persistence and for the various complications, such as ear infections, bronchitis or pneumonia. Of course, you all know that colds can be spread from one person to another by direct contact, such as by kissing or by contamination of the hands by germs from the nose or handkerchief, and by coughing or sneezing. Naturally any person who is interested in reducing the spread of colds would not kiss a baby on the lips or hands, would use disposable paper handkerchiefs, would wash his hands thoroughly after blowing his nose and would cover his nose and mouth when sneezing or coughing.

In a young baby, a cold is a much more serious disease than in a big healthy child or adult. Therefore, you should avoid every effort to prevent your baby from catching colds. Do not let anyone with a cold, sore throat, tonsilitis, flu, or bronchitis go near him. In fact you should keep people out of the house if possible. Do not take your baby or small youngster into any crowded place, especially during the "cold season," which includes a very large fraction of the year in these parts. When people are crowded together in street cars, stores, theatres or elsewhere, the ventilation is usually poor and always some of them have colds.

Don't Overdress Your Baby

If you put too many clothes on your baby or child his skin becomes moist, and unless you are careful he is liable to become chilled later on. Chilling lowers resistance to colds. Therefore, you should dress him to suit the temperature both indoors and out. If you slip your hand down the back inside his clothes and find that he is sweaty you know he is too warm and you should take off some of his clothing. If he feels cold, put on socks and shoes should be changed promptly in order to reduce the chilling effect. Older children can be trained to do this for themselves, but you will have to check on them and certainly you will have to do it yourself for the younger ones. In addition

FEELING TIRED

A feeling of fatigue is one of the commonest complaints heard in the doctor's office. It may be that one feels tired after the first few hours of the day's work. Frequently, the patient complains that he feels as tired on rising in the morning as when he went to bed at night.

This chronic tired feeling has always to be taken seriously for it may be the early symptom of a number of serious illnesses. Fatigue is usually the chief symptom for which patients consult their doctor for a tonic. It is the doctor's job to say why there is not some disease present to be responsible for the tired feeling.

But the great majority of sufferers from chronic fatigue are free from illness and it is well recognized that it may be due to worry over family or financial problems, or unhappy associations at work, or any of a number of unhappy circumstances.

Of course, it must never be forgotten that one of the commonest causes of chronic tiredness is an inadequate number of hours of sleep. And if you have that tired feeling, best take note of how much sleep you have been getting in the past few weeks.

Then ask yourself whether you have undertaken too many decisions in which case some worthwhile activities must be dropped. Perhaps you aren't allowing yourself recovery relaxation.

It is harder to deal with the situation which is more worry. However, it is often helpful to realize that worries can cause fatigue. And don't let the worry worries may be able to give you helpful confidential advice.

If that tired feeling persists, the doctor should be consulted.—The Committee on Industrial Medicine of the Canadian Medical Association, Courtesy of C.I.E.A.

Helpful Hints

When three people are together it is very rude for one to whisper to another, excluding and ignoring the third person.

Anyone who receives an invitation to a wedding may send the bride a gift. If only an announcement is received, no gift is necessary.

When you heat milk, it is suggested that you keep the pot covered. Some of milk's vitamins are destroyed by light, and milk also heats faster when covered. Once it has reached the boiling point, the milk will heat far hot with less heat underneath, and the cover also helps prevent the "skin" from forming. There's just one catch to this method, however, you'll have to watch the milk closely because it boils over easily.

GOLFERS! The Fool-Proof Putter Is Here

ST. PAUL — A new "fool-proof" golf putter is here!

With his invention, however, arises the big question as to whether it would be considered a "legal club" on the golf course.

He is pleased with the purpose of detecting curvatures in the green by merely laying flat on the turf. A sprirt level, embedded in the clubhead, indicates the slant of the green.

The putter is the product of the minds of two St. Paul businessmen Burton Seichter and Joseph Emmert.

They are owners, respectively, of a sheet metal and a lumber firm.

Golf professionals in these parts differ on whether the United States Golf Association would allow the club its blessing. If it didn't, it could be used in official tournaments.

"It's just like putting a carpenter's level into a clubhead and finding out by means contrary to generally accepted golf rules that slope of land before putting," contends Duncan MacRae, veteran golf professional at Hillcrest Country Club.

But disagreeing with MacRae is Wally Mann, pro at Midland Hills. He believes it would be especially helpful on a strange course or one where the greens are deceptive, and he cannot see any reason why the U.S.G.A. would not approve such a club.

Joining with MacRae in his opinion was Jim Barnhouse, local representative of the USGA. He said he has considered the association would not give its sanction to any club which is considered an "artificial aid".

One of the inventors, however, remains confident.

"I'm not a professional," explains Seichert, "but I sound see why it would be illegal to determine the roll of the green. It doesn't affect your putting. The golfer still must use his hour to putt.

"It's more like using a good pair of eye glasses to find out the slope. In other words, it's like wearing a pair of glasses—you use the level in the putter."

Seichert-Emmert and Zimmerman like to play golf. They admit they are not experts but they are interested in operating to miss lots of putts just because they are deceived by the "nap" of the grass.

Jet Engines May Cause Queer Illness

CHICAGO—Some British pilots of jet planes have complained of a mysterious illness, and government and industry experts are investigating the possibility of "supersonic sickness," Dr. Randolph Lovelace, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association reported. The "Journal" printed a report from its London correspondent, that also mentioned a new hazard in testing jet engines who suffered from ear trouble, lately complained that vibration and sounds inaudible to the human ear have an effect on persons around such engines.

Good Timber

The tree that never had to fight
For sun and sky and air and light,
That stood tall alone in the open plain
And always got its shape of rain,
Never had to win the right to grow
But lived and died a scrubby thing
The man who never had to toil
By hand or mind 'mid life's turmoil,
Who never did extra work or more
Of sun and sky and light and air,
Never became a manly man
But lived and died as he began.
Good timber does not grow in ease:
The stronger wind, the tougher trees,
The further sky, the greater length,
The rougher storms, the greater strength;
By sun and cold, by rain and snows,
In trees or men good timber grows.
Where thickest stands the forest growth,
We find the patriarchs of both.
And they hold converse with the stars
Whose broken branches show the scars
Of many winds and much of strife.
This is the common law of life.

—Sunset Magazine

Golfers say they are deceived by the rod of a green.

Seichert, "I cannot see why it would be illegal to determine the roll of the green. It doesn't affect your putting. The golfer still must use his hour to putt.

"It's more like using a good pair of eye glasses to find out the slope. In other words, it's like wearing a pair of glasses—you use the level in the putter."

Seichert-Emmert and Zimmerman like to play golf. They admit they are not experts but they are interested in operating to miss lots of putts just because they are deceived by the "nap" of the grass.

An Editor Reads a Book--or Two!

Surprising as it may seem to many of you an active editor gets little time to find his own enjoyment. Most critics hours are spent so studying how to do things himself or how to improve his paper and his own work. Recently though two books, just published, both written by newspapermen were sent to me—and they have been a real pleasure and inspiration—so here's the story about them.

First, the "Owl Pen" by Kenneth Wells, illustrated with woodcuts two of which we show—made by his talented wife, Lucille Ollie.

Here's real life, written by one of the best story tellers in a long time, about how one man rehabilitated himself after war by quitting city life, going north of Orillia, Ont., and working out his salvation by the sweat of dumb luck, a vivid imagination, and a long suffering wife. Because it's all about bees, ducks, chickens—the rebuilding of an old farm house and final success of all of these hooks you can pick up, read a chapter or two and get a complete story full of chuckles. I'd certainly suggest you get it for your own and lend it to your best friends. If your local bookseller hasn't a copy the publishers are J. M. Dent & Sons (Can.) Ltd., Toronto, and $2.50 is the price. There are some wonderful photographs grouped at the back of the book—real works of art.

The original "Owl Pen" thumbs. This and other wood engravings in this page are the work of Lucille Ollie (Mrs. Kenneth Wells).

Says "Hot Trick" Is Wrongly Used

NEW YORK—Beerer and cricket can keep the "hat trick" but the term should be banned from hockey, Jack Adams, coach of the Detroit Red Wings, publicity man for New York Rangers who is staging a come-back campaign, has ban the phrase when referring to scoring of three goals in succession by one player.

Says Baptie in his Madison Square Garden Bulletin: "Hat trick? What does it mean? That's exactly the point. It hasn't caught on yet, even though it's been around longer than many of us. And it's the hockey fan, however, who will have to do a struggle without success "hat trick" to find out.

Origin of the term appears shrouded in mystery. Some say it took its origin in cricket and others claim it was first used in connection with soccer.

Some experts say the "hat" angle came from the days when fans threw their hats up when a player scored three goals in soccer, or hockey matches with cricket matches held in cricket.

Baptie says "newspaper men and hockey program editors employ the term without considering Canadian daily or the fans in the hockey towns reported recently be a three-goal hat trick."

Smile of the Week--

She was complaining to her dairyman about the quality of his milk.

"Short o' grass feed, mum; short o' grass feed at this time of the year," he explained to the milkmaid. "Brew you, them cows of mine are just as sorry as I am. I often stands and watches 'em crying because they feel sound how as their milk don't do 'em credit. You don't believe me?"

"Oh yes, I believe you," said the woman coldly, "but I wish in future you'd let Mary don't let all the tears go into my can."

A survey shows that boys get to know more words than do girls by the age of six. But the girls are better in using the words they have.

Would Scrap Jap Language

TOKYO. — Gohie Onishi, Japan's foremost partisanitarian, advocates that the Japanese language is too elaborate and complicated.

Onishi said school children could be taught two foreign languages in the time it takes them now merely learning to write Japan, the Japanese oriental characters.

Besides, he said, Japanese words, especially the abstract ones such as "democracy", are often ambiguous and romanized Japanese writing is undesirable.

Your Implement Dealer Says:
FARMERS SPEND A VERY SMALL PERCENTAGE OF THEIR GROSS INCOME FOR EQUIPMENT AND UP-KEEP.
Did you know that the price of a Tiller is approximately seventeen cents a pound. Lay down in the market (scrap steel)? Did you know that the price of a garbage can is determined at the rate of 20 cents a pound?
Now the Tiller is a precision machine job — into which is embodied much engineering and mechanical skill by the builder and his employees — whereas the Garbage Can is ma-a by the ordinary factory help.
Did you know then that Farmers spend less than 5 percent of their income for equipment and up-keep to run a farm efficiently?
We state these facts to enlighten our friends and customers and to let them know that the lot of the implement and Machinery Dealer is no 'bed of roses'. He has a heavy capital investment in his stock—he has his skilled mechanics and service men to pay on top of his overhead.

VOLUME XXXIX SEDGEWICK, ALTA. THURSDAY, JANUARY 15TH, 1948 NUMBER 50

NO NEED TO FEAR DEPRESSION AS IN 1930's ACCORDING TO LIBERAL LEADER PROWSE

Mr. Harper Prowse was the main speaker at an organization meeting held at Killam on Wednesday afternoon of last week and also at an evening meeting in Sedgewick that evening. Mr. Prowse made his debut in these parts at the meetings as the rejuvinated Liberal Party in the Province of Alberta.

At the afternoon meeting a Liberal organization was formed for Sedgwick Constituency with the following officers and executive:

President—John Geir, Killam
Vice Pres.—J. L. Muirhead, Sedgewick.
Sec. Treas.—L. J. Shepard, Alliance.

Executive Members

C. Dewer, Hardisty; R. Denham, Lougheed; H. Phipps, Strome; C. V. Hixon, Daysland; F. Oberg, Forestburg; M. Kneller, Galahad; E. Lynes Alliance; J. Wallace, Spring Lake.

Mr. Prowse got his audience away with the statement that in all probability Alberta would have an election between March and June 1948, and then went on to explain that he had decided to join the Liberal party only after careful study of all the parties in the province and selected the Liberal party as the one best able to build for the future for Canada which will be best for all.'

...the speaker mentioned the Bill of Rights and the Family Allowance and Social Credit party to carry out its pro-gram, and the fact that B.C. principles cannot exist in his province to the extent that the CCF advocated, and so could not accept their philosophy.

Mr. Prowse admitted that the new Liberal Party had no platform at the present time and asked for the help of Alberta citizens in drafting one acceptable to all. He stated that the nominating conventions would be held soon and that he wanted th... very best men in the Province to be elected as candidates

Putting his reliance in such large projects as the P.F.R.A. Act, the Ag. Prices Support Act, Family Allowances Act and the long term agreement on wheat, Mr. Prowse predicted that Canadians need have no fear of a depression such as they experienced in the 1930s.

A short question period followed the meetings.

An Objective Of The F.A.O.

SIR JOHN BOYD ORR, IN RETIRING from the position of director of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, has, in spite of the returning uncertainty regarding the stability of markets for farm products, firmly stated that there is no chance for greater world food production than the people of the world need for good health, so far ahead as we can see." It is unlikely that there is anyone in the world better qualified to make such a forecast than this noted British farmer, scientist and nutritionist who was recently elected to the British House of Commons as member for the Scottish Universities.

* * * * *

Was Known To Many Canadians

Leaving his home in Scotland two years ago, Sir John Boyd Orr, at the age of 66, went to Washington to be the head of the Food and Agriculture Organization, a project in which he was deeply interested. During his time there he became familiar with the problems relating to agriculture in Canada as well as in other countries, and he was well known to many Canadians. In connection with the work of the F.A.O., which is concerned mainly with providing a central point for the distribution of information regarding the production, distribution and consumption of food, and to promote international co-operation in these matters, Sir John continually stressed the great need for raising standards of nutrition.

* * * * *

Might Avert Future Wars

He further believes that there should be concern not only for those countries where food supplies are low, but also in many places where, in spite of a plentiful supply of food the people are poorly nourished because of lack of proper knowledge of nutrition. The great problem which has faced the F.A.O. and which has still to be solved, is to ensure that all available food reaches those who need it, and that sufficient is available to have healthful standards of nutrition everywhere. It is obvious that many economic considerations stand in the way of such an achievement, but in the opinion of Sir John Boyd Orr, if such objectives could be reached, there would be little likelihood of future wars.

MOST MOTHERS DO THIS

If Baby Has A Cold

AT BEDTIME rub chest, throat, back and throat with Vicks VapoRub and cover with warm cloth.

WHILE FOR BABY'S AGE rub on Vicks VapoRub and cover with warm cloth. For children over 2 years old use the next strength.

Best-known home remedy you can use to relieve distress of children's colds is comforting Vicks VapoRub. Even while you rub it on, VapoRub starts to work to ease distress...and it keeps on working during the night. No wonder most mothers do this when a child has cold stickles. Tonight, try VICKS VAPORUB

Adversity has ever been considered the state in which a man most easily becomes acquainted with himself, then, especially, being free from flatterers.—Johnson.

The good things of prosperity are to be wished, but the good things that belong to adversity are to be admired.—Seneca.

Adversity is sometimes hard upon a man; but for one man who can stand prosperity, there are a hundred that will stand adversity.—Carlyle.

Outward attacks and troubles rather fix than unsettle the Christian, as tempests drive without only roots to root the oak more firmly in the ground.—H. More.

The loss of material objects of affection sunders the dominant ties of earth and points to heaven.—Mary Baker Eddy.

MAKES FORECAST FOR NEW YEAR

(By Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK.—I am going to unwrap the old crystal ball and give you an advance look at 1948, trusting that everyone kindly has forgotten that nine days before Hiroshima was wiped out I predicted the Japanese war might last another 10 years.

The forecast is for a strange and exciting year. In fact, frazzled 1948 will be like 1947 hopped up by vitamins.

Here are the prospects:

Prices will remain a lot higher than skirts. A genuine T-bone steak of pre-war thickness will be exhibited at the American Museum of Natural History and draw thousands of admiring visitors. It will be flanked by two armed guards.

The slogan of single ladies will be "the new look that you long" at the bachelors they'll have to propose to since it will be Leap Year.

But the new look won't improve with age, and neither will the ladies who wear it. More and more they will come to realize why an open stadium attracts more people than a tent show.

Boris Chaliapin will pension his reindeer and write an anonymous letter to the newspapers complaining he had to pay $500 over the list price to get him a new automobile.

Somewhere a woman driver will hear a knock in her car's motor, stop, open the hood and see coiled inside—a rattlesnake. (This has happened every year since Henry Ford quit playing marbles).

A member of the National Association of Manufacturers will send John L. Lewis an eyebrow comb, and George Bernard Shaw will again disclaim any responsibility for mankind.

An attempt to return cut plug to popular favor by developing a new "bubble chewing tobacco" will fail.

A musical diaper will be put on the market that plays "Break the News to Mother" when the baby needs a change.

All in all, however, bears will have more fun than people in 1948. They hibernate.

Faith melts us in defeat and disappointment, amid the consciousness of earthly frailty and the crumbling tumultuous of mortality.—E. H. Chapin.

The loss of material objects of affection sunders the dominant ties of earth and points to heaven.—Mary Baker Eddy.

AUSTRALIAN GIRLS SELL DOLLAR "LOVE NOTES"

SYDNEY. — A Daily Mirror dispatch from Brisbane said that banks are buying more and more dollar bills bearing loving messages from United States servicemen.

Many French Anxious To Live In Canada

More Than 300 Inquiries Made Daily At Canadian Embassy

PARIS.—Post-war restlessness and uncertainty have shaken even the Frenchman's deep-rooted passion for his land, and an ever-increasing number are seeking to migrate to North or South America.

More than 300 inquiries, either by letter or personal call, are made daily at the Canadian embassy here.

Some have tragic tales to tell of homes shattered by the war, leaving them restless in their own country. Others fear the trend of events in France and Europe. Some are young, some are old, even at the age of retirement.

Only about $56 a month get the coveted Canadian visas. Many miss out because they cannot arrange transportation across the Atlantic. Employment requirements in Canada and rigid health regulations eliminate many others.

Currency restrictions are a further discouragement. The French government allows emigrants only $200 each.

"On the whole we get a very fine type of applicant and I am sure those going forward will make good Canadian citizens," said A. J. Des-Jardine of Ottawa and Montreal, chief of the Canadian immigration service for Europe.

Most of the emigrants select Quebec province because the language is the language problem.

PRINCESS SENDS THANKS FOR GIFTS

OTTAWA.— Prime Minister Mackenzie King read to the house of commons a letter of thanks from Princess Elizabeth for the wedding presents received from Canada.

The letter read:

"I am most grateful to the government and people of Canada for the wedding present of such rich and workable generosity which they have sent me. They have given me a collection of silver so magnificent, both in quality and in quantity, that my pride in its possession is only equalled by my pleasure that the people of Canada should have seen fit to express their goodwill toward me in this way.

"Not content with this splendid present they have sent me in addition a rosin coat of absolute perfection. Whenever I wear it, as I very often shall, it will remind me of the kindness, affection and marks of affection which have reached me from all over Canada during these last few weeks and which have left a very deep impression on me.

"I look forward to the day when the Duke of Edinburgh and I will be able to visit Canada, to thank its citizens in person for their kindness towards us and to show them how the country and the people as we found it earnestly desire to do."

HARDENING OF ARTERIES AFFECTS VITAL ORGANS

Scientists for many years have been studying the cause or causes of arteriosclerosis, or, as we say, what we know are some of the things which do not cause it," says Dr. John D. [illegible] professor of medicine at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., and Dr. Wilder Tansley of Hamilton is Professor of Pathology at Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario.

In simple terms, hardening of the arteries, commonly known as hardening of the arteries, is commencing "at a thickening of the wall of the blood vessel, which results in a loss of elasticity, and a narrowing of the blood channel" and adds that "it is not the hardening or the lessening of the vessel wall which is important, but the narrowing of the blood channel and the reduced volume of blood which that vessel may carry."

Remarking on the importance of a good flow of blood through any organ or tissue Dr. Hamilton says that without such a flow, the organ is not able to do as much work, nor perform its functions as efficiently. The blood stream carries the vital fuel and oxygen which the hard-working tissues require.

"With progressive hardening of the arteries, it is then evident why various bodily functions are hampered," he states.

After describing in detail the events which occur in an injured vessel, Dr. Hamilton remarks that "we do not know why these degenerative changes occur in the walls of the arteries, but it is thought they are consequent to an injury, the nature of which is unknown."

The most commonly affected organs are the three most vital ones in the body—the heart, the brain and the kidneys.

"Although it affects males more commonly than females, it occurs in both sexes," he states. "It occurs in persons of all occupations.

There is no convincing evidence that diet is of any significance. Coffee, tea, nicotine and alcohol have been considered, but there is no proof that they are the cause. It is probable that there is no single cause of arteriosclerosis.

"Sufficient evidence has accumulated to indicate that infections and infection diseases may play a prominent part in causing arteriosclerosis. We know, too, that diabetics are more prone to develop arteriosclerosis than the average individual. Just how infections and diabetes cause arteriosclerosis, we don't know."

Dr. Hamilton remarks that arteriosclerosis is such a common and constant accompaniment of aging, that it is not generally regarded as a disease, but as a natural process. He adds, however, that not infrequently "we encounter persons additional 20 odd years, who have no arteriosclerosis."

Hence, he says, it is not inevitable, which gives great support to the theory that arteriosclerosis is a disease."

Correct Titles Set For Royal Couple

Proper Form Given by Palace Circular

LONDON — The correct titles of Princess Elizabeth and her husband Prince Philip, as set out in a court circular as "The Princess Elizabeth (Duchess of Edinburgh) and the Duke of Edinburgh."

The full title of Princess Elizabeth is "Her Royal Highness the Princess Elizabeth, Duchess of Edinburgh."

The full title of the Duke of Edinburgh, as announced from Buckingham Palace Nov. 20, is "His Royal Highness Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh."

The duke would sign himself "Philip" and not "Edinburgh" as he ranked as a British prince, the circular noted daily from Buckingham Palace, said.

Palace circles explained that the title "Prince Philip" is dropped in usage but mentioned in official documents rather than the court circular. The same applies to the King's younger brother, known as the Duke of Gloucester though his full title is his Royal Highness Henry, Duke of Gloucester.

When the King conferred upon Lieut. Philip Mountbatten the title of Duke of Edinburgh it was stated that the use of the prefix His Royal Highness was authorized under the duke's personal prerogative as he was born with prefix "HRH" to his title of Prince Philip of Greece and Denmark which he relinquished on being naturalized as a British subject, last February.

In the Royal Navy the Duke is officially called Lieutenant HRH the Duke of Edinburgh."

"MODEST" LIVING STANDARD IN U.S. COSTS $450 MORE A YEAR

WASHINGTON — The Bureau of Labor Statistics told Congress it costs an average family of four or five people $4,950 more a year to maintain a "modest" standard of living now than it did 22 months ago. Almost one-third of this increase has been charged to food.

The annual budget for such a family ranged $3,864 in New Orleans to $3,456 in Washington as of last June, the bureau said, and since then summer prices have jumped another 4.2 per cent.

Ewan Clague, Commissioner of Labor Statistics said the average family for the purposes of his report is an employed father, a housewife and two school children under the age of 16.

He described the budget on which his figures were based as neither at the subsistence" (bare living) nor "luxury" level but an attempt to describe and measure a modest but adequate American standard of living.

The bureau survey was started in 1945 at the request of a House of Representatives appropriations subcommittee (Taber) turned it over to a sub-committee of the House-Senate Economic Committee headed by Senator Robert Taft (Rep. Ohio).

The report said the cost of food jumped single item in the budget, ranged last June from $1,000 a year in Cincinnati to a little under $1,100 in New York and Seattle, averaging about $20 a week.

This compared with March, 1946, figures of $850 in New York, $834 in Seattle, and $782 in Cincinnati, or around $18 a week.

The 29½ per cent. increase in food costs was the greatest for any budget item except heat (when which increased sharply over-all—in some cities, as much as 100 per cent.

Cost of housing increased little from March 1946 to last June, the report said, but under the new Rent Control Act rents have risen considerably.

The budget provided for automobile ownership by 60 per cent of the families in New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, and by 74 per cent in the other 31 cities

Top in the row, look for guinea, 1947 version. Wearing a heavy lace curtain like cape as a disguise, two bonded thieves tried to blow up the safe of a Toronto radio plant after tying and gagging watchman Charles Ware above. The gunmen failed to blow the safe when the detonator fizzled out of the cartridge. There were but a few dollars in the safe.

SMITH RINK WINS TWO MAJOR EVENTS

The Austin Smith rink made up of A. Smith (skip); Bill Townsend, G. Anderson and Mike Enachy, carried away the 2 firsts in the main events at the Hardisty Bonspiel last week. They won top honors in both the C Challenge and Citizens Events.

Another rink from Sedgewick and skipped by Alf Butt, with George 1' Evans, Elmer Silver and Jack James, captured 4th in the Citizens.

CORKERY CURLERS

The winners of the event in the city will go on to meet the southern winners for provincial honors and this winner will go on to Winnipeg for higher and greater honors.

JUNIOR TEAMS SPLIT GAMES

Last Wednesday saw a double-feature attraction at the Sedgewick rink when Dick White brought two juvenile hockey teams to Sedgewick for friendly encounters.

There were two teams of Pee Wee players and two of Pee Wee Wees and each set of teams played for a period while the others were resting up for another session. The whole affair was a crowd pleaser and presented a kaleidoscopic array of uniforms and an interesting display of real future hockey talent. At every change of players, young enthusiasts seemed to fairly pour off the playing bench, each one intent only on showing his wares to watchful coaches. The 12 and unders played through three periods in a win for Redpath's while the 10 and unders from Killam racked up a well deserved victory

The same teams fancied again on Saturday night at Killam, with flash about the same results. The young Redpath team won their game 6-2, while the older boys from Sedgewick were victorious.

KILLAM BONSPIEL TOPS THEM ALL

Monday of this week saw the start of the biggest bonspiel in the history of the town of Killam, and for that matter of any town in this territory.

With an entry list of 56 rinks, had of which are "home" rinks, the draw committee has its hands full compiling the draws straight. The spiel is running eight draws a day or a total of 12 games each day.

Many favorable comments are on record as to the manner in which the hospitality of the Club members.

At the time of publication the spiel is progressing nicely with the draws only running a little behind schedule. We will carry full results in the next issue.

The prize list constitutes the best list of cash ever offered at the Killam bonspiel.

The most severe flood in history occurred in the girls washroom late Monday evening. Lit-let sleeve is crossed in volume until they become intense, and some unknown material plugged all the drainage system. As a result, came the most terrific flood in the Dorm history. Because of the heavy normal rainfall (observed) a protective bank had been built about the region. The water came so high it ran right over the bank. Damage done was unestimatable. Thanks to the hard labor of Jane Skinner and Rosemary Cookson, the water was mostly drained away.

Soon Vivian and Jean fighting over a world affair. Could it be that there is a test coming up?

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. R.—

With rumors about an impending spring or summer election in the air, the political picture in the Province is beginning to take shape Various parties are calling nominations for Dues and Banqs up candidates so as to be ready for the contest when the date is set by Premier Manning.

Provincially it looks like a three-cornered contest with Social Credit, C.C.F. and Liberal parties sure to throw their hats in the ring

Assuming that Mr. A. Edward Peck will probably be the subject of many a guessing contest until such time as Premier Manning deems it advisable to disclose the secret. In the meantime things should start to boom in and around your town pretty soon

For the information of our fellowmen and subscribers who have gone to live in warmer climes, the first snow our winter might not be amiss The only word we have been able to find is that the weather in Killam is now is 'wonderful' If all the future Alberta winters could be rolled up to prepare such fine weather as W have enjoyed up to January 1949 there would be no desire to move t[o] other parts. We have been right below zero weather yet. Let's see, we have about two weeks to go yet before January 31st. That is quite a while Lots can happen yet.

We noticed Howie Bricker from Hardisty in town last week sporting the very latest model in bib 'n eyes He seems Herb ever-ready and said shiner trying to step a puck in a hockey game We believe it but we know thousands who wouldn't.

Two weeks ago Mr Sid Walker of Killam advertised in the Killam Community Press advertising that he had Grade Shredded cattle for sale We received a phone call from Jeff Walker in which he stated that he liked the way we had composed his ad and informing us that a goodly number of the cattle had been sold to Mr F. H Smith of Sedgewick He was satisfied that the Community Press had sold the cattle for him This is just another instance to prove that you get placed in this paper does get the best results for you With a present circulation of over 700 and a probable reading public of over 2000, your best advertising bet still remains the Community Press.

Need For Conservation

"CONSERVATION" IS A TERM WHICH IS HEARD more and more frequently in this country in connection with our natural resources. Because of the fact that we are so generously endowed with fine farm lands, great areas of trees and rich mineral deposits Canadians have, in the past, been inclined to think that the possibility of there ever being a time when these things might become exhausted. In more recent years it has become apparent that greater concern must be given to conserving our heritage of natural resources, upon which so much of our present prosperity and our hope for the future depends. A great deal has already been heard of the need regarding the need for soil and moisture conservation, and much practical work has been done in this connection.

* * * *

Extends Over Whole Country

It has been realized that even the rich soil of the prairies cannot produce indefinitely without having essential elements returned to it, and that many areas of streams must be diverted by man to provide land with needed moisture. The problem is general in all parts of the country. But some years now we have heard of extensive programs for forest conservation, in an effort to replace the many trees which were wasted through careless methods of lumbering or through uncontrolled forest fires. Conservation is also important in connection with our great mineral resources. In Canada present consumption of some minerals is increasing faster than they are being found. It is now realized that there is much land in Canada which have been abandoned and that this real cannot be reclaimed. Similar waste has taken place in other types of mines. Advanced techniques in mining and modern methods of processing have allowed certain low grades which are mined, are now helping to conserve Canada's mineral resources.

* * * *

Problem Is Of Vital Interest

It is important that Canadians should realize that this is a national problem and one in which everyone has a vital interest. Farming, lumbering and mining are our great basic industries. Thousands of citizens are engaged in them and thousands more gain their livelihood through the manufacturing, shipping and selling of the products of our lands, forests and mines. Canada is still a young country and its people have always worked with optimism and faith in the future. At times there has been and no doubt there still is a tendency to do too little planning for the future and to give too little thought to the need for making sure that in the future Canada will not be impoverished because of selfish and short-sighted methods of developing our natural resources. Co-operation on the part of the people, in whatever way may be asked to do in the way of conserving our natural resources, will make for better times now and in the future.

Finest Display Of Dressed Meat

Shown above, are Ruth and Phillip McShane, Border Bank, and their first prize Hereford calves from a commercial herd of Hereford steers at the carcass and at Manitoba pound.

One of the finest displays of dressed meat from the standpoint of both quality and number of entries in the history of the Western Canada Dressed Meat Show was presented at Saskatoon recently. Praise on equal measure was directed to the annual Western Canada Dressed Poultry Show, held in conjunction with the meat event.

Both are annual features of the Saskatoon Industrial Exhibition which has pioneered the exhibition of beef, hog and lamb carcasses in the West. Success of the venture this year was recorded by prices which, in the opinion of exhibitors, were not high enough to reward them for the extra time, work and money involved in the production of top quality stuff.

The shows were held in the Mazer-Harris building in downtown Saskatoon, and for two days interested consumers and exhibitors crowded the show floor. Judging of the dressed meat show was in the hands of Jack Pasley, formerly of Moose Jaw and now supervisor of Dominion Marketing Services for Alberta. A. Zwarter and W. Walker of Production Services, Saskatoon, judged dressed poultry.

RELATED RECIPES

PEANUT CREAM CANDY

1 cup butter washed in cold water to remove salt

1 cup sifted confectioners sugar

1 cup peanut butter

1 cream butter, add 1 cup sugar gradually and cream until very light and fluffy. Stir peanut butter until it is well blended. Add small amount at a time, creaming well after each addition. Add 1 cup confectioners sugar. Make cream by heating 1 cup water, 1 cup sugar and 1 tablespoon corn syrup or one of low 6-inch layers, or cups of about 4 dozen medium sugar cakes.

SEVEN MINUTE FROSTING

1 egg white unbeaten

1½ cups sugar

5 tablespoons water

1 teaspoon light corn syrup

1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine egg white, sugar, water, and corn syrup in top of double boiler, beating with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat constantly with rotary egg beater and cook 7 minutes or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from boiling water, add vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 8-inch layers or 24 finished cakes.

To tint, add few drops liquid or dissolved paste vegetable coloring to hot frosting and beat until evenly colored. Delicate pastel shades are usually more attractive than brighter colors.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. When Roy Brown was 16, he swallowed a chap that flew into his mouth while he was chopping wood. It didn't bother him much.

He found a pretty parlor of wood from the upper lobe of the right lung. The surgeon said the particle had evidently been given him by lobe after Brown swallowed it 35 years ago. Brown is recovering at home.

BEE'S MOST IMPORTANT JOB IS POLLINIZATION

CHICAGO — Bees are not the busiest but making honey is not the only or most important job.

According to the World Book Encyclopedia pollenization of plants is the most important.

If the bees to be did not carry pollen from one flower to another, more than 100,000 kinds of plants would not be able to form seeds and would die out.

Earthquakes are a menace around the globe at the rate of about 1,000 a year.

Great Numbers In Britain Listed For Exodus To Dominions

LONDON — Queues are long in Britain—and none longer than that of persons eager to emigrate to the Dominions.

Adding up figures from steamship and air transport companies and estimates from the offices of the various High Commissioners, one arrives at a total of approximately 250,000 awaiting transportation to a new life which they hope will be more rewarding than that of post-war Britain

Already about 60,000 have left for Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. Although final 1947 figures are not yet available the total may approximately be broken down thus:

To Canada in the same ratio as was evidenced in the six months ending last July 30 about 36,520

To Australia at least 4,500

To New Zealand who's the total was expected to be in excess of 1946 6,500, about 6,000

To South Africa, "at least 10,000" not 12,000.

A government statement in the House of Commons recently estimated that at least 50,000 Britons were queued up awaiting passage to Canada 20,000 to New Zealand and 8,000 to South Africa. The reply declared motion Australia, but an Australia House spokesman put the number at applications for immigration to that Dominion at "about 60,000."

LOS ANGELES—Scientists at the University of California at Los Angeles announced they had spent nearly 15 minutes in a room heated to 120 degrees Fahrenheit without any ill effects.

Dr. Craig Taylor, spokesman for the group, said the experiment was sponsored by the air corps to determine if jet plane pilots can be acclimated in cabin chambers to endure supersonic flight. He said that it would be 100 degrees hotter in a jet plane than the air outside at a speed of 1,000 miles an hour.

Answering Your Questions ABOUT IMPORT CONTROL

MOST of the countries which are Canada's regular customers have not recovered sufficiently from the war to pay, in the normal way, for all the goods they need, despite extensive help from this and other countries. Nor are they able to lend us enough of their goods to balance purchases we want to buy from them of money which we, in Canada, can use to buy goods in other countries.

At the same time, Canada has been buying more goods than ever before from the United States and other countries demanding U.S. dollars. This is because these goods were not obtainable elsewhere and because of demand pent-up during the war.

Buying from the United States or U.S. dollar areas must, therefore, be purchased by reduced until our holding again becomes adequate.

To meet this emergency, purchase of goods and services or expenditures for travel, which must be paid for with U.S. dollars, are now subject to control.

IF YOU ARE AN IMPORTER OF CONSUMER GOODS and wish to find out what goods you may import, (2) subject to quota, or (3) unaffected by controls, write or write your nearest Collector of Customs and Excise.

IF YOU WISH TO IMPORT GOODS SUBJECT TO QUOTA and wish to establish your quota authorization to import, or need special information, consult your nearest Collector of Customs and Excise, Ottawa, Montreal or (for B.C. 1) and instructions for completing them, are available at all Customs Offices. These applications must be filed with the Collector of Customs and Excise.

IF YOU WISH INFORMATION ON THE AMOUNT OF YOUR QUOTA. After your application has been filed with your Collector of Customs and Excise, all correspondence about the establishment of quotas or cases of exceptional hardship through import prohibitions should be directed to Emergency Import Control Division, Department of Finance, 490 Sussex Street, Ottawa. Quotas are issued on a quarterly basis and any unused portion may be carried over into the following quarter.

IF YOU ARE IMPORTING OR PRODUCING PARTS, STRUCTURAL STEEL, steel, machinery or other capital goods or automobiles, and wish to know the import restrictions in these classifications, write or see Emergency Import Control Division Wholesale, Department of Reconstruction and Supply, 363 Wellington Street, Ottawa.

IF YOU INTEND TO TRAVEL OUTSIDE CANADA and wish to know about foreign exchange available for this purpose, consult any bank or the Foreign Exchange Control Board at Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver, or Halifax. Remember that restrictions on travel apply to all countries, not just outside Canada, consult the nearest Collector of Customs and Excise before you travel.

IF YOU ARE A MANUFACTURER, WHOLESALER OR RETAILER and wish information about excise taxes, or about the list of goods to which they apply, or topic of about 4 dozen medium sugar cakes.

IF YOU NEED OTHER SOURCES OF IMPORTS consult the Foreign Trade Service, Department of Trade and Commerce Import Division, Ottawa, regarding your import problems arising from import quota restrictions. Through the Trade Commissioner Service, the Import Division is constantly informed of increased supplies from the United Kingdom and other "non-scheduled" countries.

IF YOU ARE A PURCHASER and wish information on available alternate lines which have comparable nutritional values to those now prohibited or subject to quota, informational material which has been prepared by the Nutrition Division of the Department of National Health and Welfare may be secured from your Provincial Health Department or local health unit.

The administration of these emergency import controls is the responsibility of various departments of the Government. The above information is given to aid Canadian citizens in complying with the new import control regulations and with a minimum of inconvenience in their business and personal affairs.

Your Implement Dealer Says:

NEED FOR FARM MACHINERY

The improvements and strides in the science of agriculture can hardly be attributed to any one man, or one race. The oldest implements on earth is the agriculture industry, and it starts away back in the dim recesses of time, in an unbroken line. Many methods altered throughout the centuries, unchanged because the all good things on earth men took the soil and nature for granted. Still world became industrialized, less and even less people were left to produce food for all the people

It was these new methods and the machines that were developed, and that made the world realize that although industry could carry a great load it was agriculture that had to feed the world. It is from then in our most important and oldest of all industries that the actual feeding of the world begins and we all of us owe a heavy debt to those who years ago started to develop the farm implement industry and have kept on year after year until they reached the near perfect mark that exists today.

Scientist Says Age Of Earth May Be 3,350,000,000 Years

LONDON — The earth is almost 3,350,000,000 years old, one eminent British scientist believes. The estimate is in startling contrast to Archbishop John Ussher's 17th century guess of 4,004 years but far below the [illegible] 2,000,000,000 years ago. [illegible] 1,000,000,000 years ahead.

Arthur Holmes replies pro- [illegible] of geology and mineralogy in the University of Edinburgh, and at- [illegible] in application of radio-ac- [illegible] geologic ages the possibil- [illegible] of 3,350,000,000 years is a [illegible] to the age of the [illegible] the world's monthly. Dr. [illegible]

Snubbed By Society Woman Became Recluse

NEW YORK Wealthy Mrs. Harriet Gardner Lynch Congrin, who shut herself up in a hotel room for nearly 40 years because Newport society wouldn't accept her, the wife of a Tennessee politician, died recently in her hotel retreat.

Owner of extensive realty holdings, she was the widow of James J. Congrin who died in 1915.

For years Mrs. Congrin said to be nearly 80 had been practically no one except her four children.

Hotel attendants left her meals in the mail and newspapers outside the door.

The legend of the social snub that made her a recluse began when Congrin bought Whitehall, a handsome estate in fashionable Newport, in 1905.

Seven years later Mrs. Congrin invited society leaders to a dinner celebrating her daughter's debut. Not one accepted. She was mad as the dickens.

The story was that Mrs. Congrin walked out of the mansion, muttering, "It can rot to its roots."

Whatever literally rotted, and in 1945 was torn down.

"O Canada" To Be Saluted By Officers

OTTAWA — A new military order has been issued requiring that all officers warrant officers and non-commissioned officers while when "O Canada" is played, but military authorities further were quick to emphasize that "God Save the King" has not been relegated to the background in the matter of recognition.

Previously, they explained, the British order was followed in the practice of saluting "God Save the King," but there was no order regarding O Canada. However, it was generally recognized that officers would salute when either was played and all other military personnel stand to attention.

Now the adjutant-general's branch of the Canadian Army has issued an order requiring all officers, warrant officers and NCO's to salute and for other ranks to stand to attention for either "O Canada" or "God Save the King." The order also will apply to the navy and the R.C.A.F.

The Maple Leaf Forever" is not included in the order

Photocell Throws Switch Making Office Desk Talk

DENVER — A desk which talks back is now on the market says The Post. When the boss opens his office door a photocell flips a switch. The desk chortles a cheery "Good morning," and starts hurling the old boy on his appointments for the day.

We fore-smirk trouble there. Suppose the boss forgets to shave in the morning? Maybe then let Miss Gluck see him wearing yesterday's 5 o'clock shadow. Or slip in the side door No. Photocell on that one.

Miss Gluck, hearing the razor, opens the main door and right at her feets is log John Bull of the Daily Bull. Specially equipped. Oh, oh! There goes the photocell.

Good morning!" booms the desk in its hearty Chippendale tone. Well, how we've got a tough day ahead of us. Right off the bat! Say, he has a lovely stripped gear mesh with that tal slob, Joe Bull of Brick-Bull. Let's get rid of the old boss as fast as we can, but be subtle about it. He's a stuffed shirt but we need his business.

Wonder if a talking desk says [illegible] Gosh, does you think it?

Plan Modern Patrol Boat For Arctic

OTTAWA Plans for a new Arctic patrol boat to replace the R.M.S. Nascopie, lost on a reef off Baffin Island last summer, were announced by Transport Minister Chevrier.

A contract for the vessel, which will be owned and operated by the federal government, has been awarded to the Davie Shipbuilding and Repairing Company Ltd., of Lauzon, Levis Que. It will be ready for service in the 1949 eastern Arctic period.

Of streamlined design with the latest navigational equipment, the new ship will be equipped to carry a helicop to be used for assisting ice conditions ahead and for landing urgently needed supplies. Its navigational gear will include radar echo sounding and direction finder equipment, as well as gyro compasses.

For many years the Nascopie operated by the Hudson's Bay Company carried government officials and government stores for the eastern Arctic patrol ships. The new ship will be built and operated by the transport department for eastern Arctic patrol service in the summer and in servicing of departmental gods in navigation in the Lower St. Lawrence and off the Atlantic coast during the rest of the year

Public Aid Needed In Making Canada More Attractive

HOW can Canada be made a more attractive vacation land? There's plenty of scenery and fine fishing spots can be found right across the country. It isn't hard to find refreshing swimming. Still, there are a few other things that go into the making of a thriving tourist industry. The Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaus has imposed a few of them upon the public during its third annual "Tourist Service Education" campaign March 15 to April 6.

There's courtesy, for example. The helpfulness of each person who comes in contact with our visitors adds up to the type of reception Canada gives.

And there's the matter of proper accommodation. Travel authorities would be happier if the standard of roadside accommodation across the country measured up to that of the Motels' to be seen around Victoria and other spots on Vancouver Island.

The folks who come in trailers shouldn't be neglected either. They're getting some pretty fine facilities for this type of travel south of the border.

If the public wants to know why [illegible] are needed, they'll find the answers in a booklet entitled "The Tourist Industry." That little publication outlines the many-sided value of the tourist trade and points up the need for continued development along the exception we have found.

The booklet says broad distribution, during the first two "Tourist Weeks" has been considerably revised, and an increased number of copies will be available for this year's campaign. It will go to every newspaper daily or weekly, in the nation, as well as to a long list of organizations in every province

Scientist Offers New Techniques

Plastic Coat Keeps Egg Fresh Without Refrigeration

CHICAGO A scientist reports a plastic coat-shower, technique of keeping an egg fresh without refrigeration has been improved. The new trick is to coat the egg with a thin layer of plastic

In the old days grandmother used to dip the egg in butter or some kind of oil

Dr Gustav Egloff director of research of the Universal Oil Products Company, told The American Chemical Society meeting in connection with The American Association for the Advancement of Science that a new coat has a brand-new idea

He shows a process in cold storage eggs much longer when they are subjected to a treatment which involves dipping the eggs in a solution. Dr. Egloff reports tests that said "Experiments indicate that even better results may be obtained from coating the eggs with a thin plastic film. Eggs thus treated retain their freshness without any refrigeration for as long as one year."

Dr. Egloff reported that a new insulin drug, known as sulfamethazine, promises "remarkable results" in the control of disease in animals, such as mastitis in cows, abortion in cows and horses, and certain chicken diseases.

All this means, he said, more food for more people.

New Pest Killers

He further reported on the new insecticides — pest killers — that are being developed to help kill the food crops and animals He estimated that about 75,000,000 gallons of petroleum are used annually in the United States to combat 500 different kinds of flying, burning, crawling, biting, sucking, boring forms of life which cause crop losses, sickness and devastation of farm animals and even the farmer himself.

Another scientist, Dr. S. W. Hocker chairman of the department of chemistry, Iowa Wesleyan College, reported that weeds may prove a valuable source of synthetic gasoline and oil He said that in the future large quantities of liquid fuel would be made from low-grade coal of the Mississippi valley and that in addition, hybrid, peat, wood, chaff or even weeds may serve as raw materials for the manufacture of liquid synthetic fuel.

Four Consumption Increased In British

LONDON The average British [illegible] increased his four consumption by 1.6 ounces weekly since pre-war years, and depends on Canada to provide [illegible] with most of this basic food.

Before the war, Britain imported wheat from 20 countries, with Canada, Australia, the United States, Argentina and Russia as the main suppliers. In January-October, 1947, 3,581,000 tons of wheat were imported—three-quarters of it from Canada.

Canadian shipments in 10 months this year totalled more than for all 1946, when Dominion wheat receipts in Britain were 2,825,000 tons.

English shilling was first minted in 1296.

Watch your varnished floors, and as soon as wear begins to show in a traffic lane, remove dirt with a damp cloth, use a little fine sandpaper, and then apply a new thin coat of varnish, brushing it out well at the edges. This will increase the time between complete floor varnishings.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

:: HABIT ::

By KATHRYN BENSE

AT five thirty p.m. as usual George Madison left the First National Bank of Crestmere. He started up the busy street with that deliberate tread of his, then swung back to the corner. It might look suspicious to change his ways tonight.

"The same, sir," asked old Tim, blind since the battle of the Marne in the Great World War.

Yes," said George, wanting as his cache hanging by the cigar.

A bit cool for April," offered Tim handing up the change. "Weather Bureau Nows Get to know weather, don't we being outside it every day like me an you. Six jus' how many years you been comin from the First National to get your pay, Mr. Madison?"

George started coded. Couldn't let on to the old fool that after tonight he wouldn't be around, couldn't explain that after tonight he'd be free man a man of means, no longer a slave to the thing you could call a bank teller was all it's

"It's it's about 15 years, cause it is. George s dry lips.

No doubt the bank folks are pretty fond of you by this time, commented Tim. They're mighty sorry to lose you from the president down

Yes — course" chopped out George skipping away

Mrs. Murray's gloomy boarding house was a block away. He'd eat there tonight. The six strip of Brussels on the front stairs the smell of baked beans always on Tuesdays. The bare room with its golden oak furniture, his row of biographical and statistical books topping the richer desk, his worn leather slippers beside the bed the faded rose counterpane. He'd filled him with disgust. Genteel poverty. Smart lower middle class poverty!

His reflection in the very mirror over his dresser startled him. He ran a broken-toothed comb through his mousy brown hair. Blue eyes stared accusingly back at him, glassy eyes set in a thin drawn face. His short-clipped moustache twitched. The room slattered. Poor, Poor, "Nerves! Nerves!" he muttered.

He put up at the Cranbrook Hotel with no definite plan in mind. He let lobby, on the streets and in the shops he was a free man. He was stranger "What a life!" he told himself, on a downtown street.

One day as he passed the bank he saw old Hoad Tim sitting on his customary corner. He'd have liked to passpaper to a stranger man "Guess I'll shop a Regent Street" he told himself George. It gave him a warm feeling to be spending a thousand. The night

But as he passed before him Tim helped up and grabbed George's beautifully tailored sleeve He cried, "George! Madison! Is that you, old man?"

Let me go! I'm James Parnum!" proclaimed the terrified George, trying to pull away.

"What a break! said the strange man, holding out handcuffs "I've been looking for you a week. This time! Thought you might blow back — they generally do!"

"Plain clothes, eh?" sneered George. "I'll prove you're wrong! I'll sue—I'll—"

"Don't feed me,"

DEATH

STEWART RAMSEY GOLD

Death came to Stewart Ramsey Gold in the Killam General hospital, on January 20th, after several weeks illness.

Mr. Gold came to Canada from his home at Greenwood, Manitoba, and had where he was born in 1882. At the time of his arrival in Canada in 1902, he secured work on the railway and later worked in the homestead country of Western Alberta. Mr. Gold then took up farming north of Hirmoe, where he resided until the time of his death.

He leaves to mourn his loss, one brother James, a farmer resident of Hirmoe, now of Vancouver B.C.

Funeral services were held from St. Paul's United Church at Hirmoe with Rev. Whaley officiating and burial was made in Riverside cemetery. Pall Bearers were: G. Seward, A. Grant; Jas. Scott; N.V. Phipps; C.E. Merritt and D. Gair.

WITH THE CURLERS

The Carbery high school rink was not so fortunate in their attempt to win Western Electric honors. While they gave a good account of themselves they failed to make the pay off. Better luck next time.

Mrs. Monk (skip), Mrs. Hopkin, Mrs. E. Simons and Mrs. Donald Sparrow took the bonspiel at Killam last Saturday and captured first in the Grand Challenge.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. B—

With this issue of the Community Press we complete another year of publication, thereby completing the 39th year of consecutive publication. It was in the summer of the year 19 ... that the first paper was printed and we still have in the shop the very first issue which was run off on a Washington hand cylinder press

oooo

Since more the time of year has arrived when financial statements of Municipalities and Villages are all taken and presented at the annual meeting. Not being a tax payer either we are retired we are perhaps more interested in the regular annual meetings of the Villages. Of course you have heard quite a bit of fuss over the 1947 taxes but I never heard in the affairs of their villages in so far as these are disclosed at these meetings. To be sure (as we have also said before) there are always citizens and interests enough when discussing taxes — public or village administration — over the coffee cups, or over an informal discussions at the Press office.

We have had several callers in recently, Sedgewick, Killam and Edgerton, some of whom have and at it now trying to step up to run for a seat on the village council. To such we say "Good luck" however there are a few rounds I might say that I am VERY much interested in the Village and this is beside the point What really is intended here is to tip the hat to the payers of villages among this line to attend the annual meetings take a active part in discussing the affairs of your town; commend your council when you think they have done well that is good and rake them over the coals when you think they have not done so, everything in a wise and mannaken idea. You will most likely find that your council members are big enough to admit it if they are not, they have no business to be on the council.

oooo

Now the biggest bone of contention seems to be that in the fact that a member of the Council should not act as "Secretary" of the village. Well nothing. Technically they are not supposed to have anything to do with it makes very little difference, just so long as rights of the ratepayers are observed and their just privileg are extended to them. For the sake of harmony though, it might be good policy on the part of any Council member to refrain from acting as Secretary. At the outset he is put on a rough horse after all the chair can't be nominated from the floor. If you don't want to know well you now what to do about it

oooo

But whatever you want or do not want, it is your duty both men and women, to attend the annual meeting of your village Think it over

oooo

When a policeman puts the bite on some unfortunate person it does not always mean that interest, but when a dog puts the bite on a cop, that is a subject for conversation of several days duration But that happened not many days ago. Cpl. Brandon of Hardisty was putting the "Bite" on a local citizen when the victim's dog by some natural instinct came to the rescue and decided to put the bite where it belonged (?) and nervously faithfully the hand that feeds him The attempt however was in no wise successful The citizen still got bit, the Cop did too and he decides that the Cpl got awful mad

oooo

We have revised our mailing list which is now up to date If we have made any mistakes in dropping you let us know so we can make the corrections.

Canada's Merchant Navy

CANADA'S MERCHANT NAVY was greatly expanded during the war when it carried daily needed war supplies over hazards on sea routes, it was rightly regarded as a foremost part of our war effort. Canadian merchant seamen were known to be devoted to none in their bravery and devotion to duty in times when it was of the utmost importance that war materials and food should reach the overseas ports. At the beginning of the war Canada had less than regular ocean going merchant vessels of over 1,000 tons totalling 46 gross, 274,000 gross tons. By April 1st 1947 this fleet had grown to 294 ships weighing 1,067,724 gross tons.

* * * *

To Be Operated By Canadians

The cost of these vessels, which were built by seventeen of Canada's largest ship yards and a number of smaller concerns, was $384 million dollars. Crown companies were formed to speed up the work and cut costs and as a result of these efforts Canada was able to make a material contribution to the success of Allied shipping during the war. There were some babies to the fleet due to enemy action and early in the war ninety vessels were sold to the United States at cost to be sent to Britain under the terms of lend-lease. Since the end of the war, it has been the policy of the government to sell those ships which remain only to Canadian citizens, to be operated under Canadian registry and consequently Canada now has a large and well equipped merchant fleet.

* * * *

A Fine Record To Maintain

Of the $36.9 million dollars spent on the construction and operation of Canada's wartime merchant fleet, the Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, in a recent report to parliament, stated that the government expects to have a net deficit of less than 100 million dollars. This would include losses due to enemy action. There remains a merchant navy of considerable size, in fact Halifax is now known as the home port of one of the world's largest merchant fleets. While it is always regarded as a part of a nation's defence, the merchant navy must also in peacetime be regarded as an industry. The future of the large number of ships now operated by Canadian companies will depend on the amount of goods available for them to carry, as well as the degree of efficiency with which they are operated and maintained. The Canadian merchant navy has established a splendid record and it is to be hoped that it will retain in the future the place which it now holds in world shopping circles.

New York Preacher Visits Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary

Manly F. Miner, (right), eldest son of the late Jack Miner, O.B.E., showing Rev. Norman Vincent Peale, D.D. pastor of Marble Collegiate Church, Fifth Ave., New York City, how Canada Geese are handled at the world famous Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary at Kingsville, Ontario, Canada. Dr. Peale is wearing the hat and coat of the late Jack Miner with a goose in each arm, which had been trapped for banding purposes on the Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary.

Dr. Peale became famous the last few years as not only pastor of the oldest Presbyterian Church (Dutch Reform) on Fifth Avenue, New York, but as editor of a little weekly non-profit pamphlet known as Guide Posts which is printed under his directorship.

Rev. Peale became interested in bird banding activities at the famous Jack Miner refuge from the angle of using the birds as missionaries because forty years ago the late Jack Miner received the idea of putting a verse of scripture on each leg band as well as his name and address. In this way Jack Miner used to say he was fulfilling the promises in the Holy Book where it says "And the fowls of the air shall tell thee."

Dominion Joins Search For Use Of Cosmic Rays

To Help United States And Russia In Developing The Possibilities

MONTREAL — Canada has joined the United States and Russia in developing extensive research into the properties and possibilities of the mysterious cosmic rays which have formed the imaginations of readers of futuristic fiction alone.

Not much is known about these rays, the existence of which was first discovered in 1910, except that they have a tremendous penetrating power dwarfing that of x-rays.

These rays enable scientists to study the components of matter. The aspect of nuclear physics is of great importance as atomic energy is derived from nuclear fission.

The United States and Russia were believed to be the only powers studying these rays extensively but a copyrighted article in the May issue magazine Sciences et Aventures to be released shortly here reveals that a French Canadian professor is conducting cosmic research in Montreal on a grant of the National Research Council.

He is Professor Pierre Demers of the physical institute of the University of Montreal who worked during the war with the atomic division branch of the National Research Council pilot plant at Chalk River, Ont.

Professor Demers made his experiments by sending apparatus he designed himself nearly 100 miles into the stratosphere. The apparatus is placed in a small nacelle attached to several balloons.

Cosmic rays were discovered, as many other important scientific developments, by accident in 1910. Their properties still are unknown although researchers have found them to have unsuspected penetrating power.

They have been detected in some shafts thousands of feet below the surface of the earth.

Their source is unknown although it has been established that they are generated neither by the sun or the earth. Scientists hope that with the power to separate matter may be a boon in the search for improved ways of splitting the atom.

Although they can be studied from the earth, the most spectacular results are achieved by sending instruments up in balloons which rise to altitudes of 80,000 feet or more.

ADVENTURE ON TRIP — Isabel MacArthur was one of the passengers aboard the C.N.R. train derailed at Ainsle, Man. She was tossed through a train window and almost completely buried in the snow. She managed to crawl out unaided. Miss MacArthur, taking a post-graduate course in obstetrics at Columbia university, New York, was on her way to Winnipeg to spend a holiday with her mother.

Coal Reserves In Canada

OTTAWA — Canada's coal reserves are sufficient for 2,000 years, a government coal specialist estimated before the joint annual meeting of the Geological Association of Canada and the Geological Society of America.

Dr. R. H. MacKay, official of the mines department, placed the Dominion's total reserves at 90,815,923 tons, made up of a probable reserve of 45,-125,000 tons and a "possible additional" reserve of 45,690,923 tons.

The grand total, made public previously as a joint annual meeting of the Geological Association of Canada and the Geological Society of America, is 90,815,923 tons in Canada.

When your little one catches cold—

Tonight . . . do what most mothers do to relieve miseries of children's colds. Simply rub warming Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest and back at bedtime. Results are so good because VapoRub's special relief-bringing action starts right away and keeps on working for hours during the night while the child sleeps. Often by morning most misery of the cold is relieved. Remember, for other . . . when your children catch cold . . . be sure you get time-tested Vicks VapoRub.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

The policeman raised his hand and the woman motorist stopped with a jerk.

"Oh, no," remonstrated the woman, "It's this hat that makes me look so old."

Fined Business Poor Smuggling Gold

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. — With gold production in most of Canada's big mines down and the government declaring parity between the United States and Canadian dollar, the gold squad — specially trained branch of the R.C.M.P.'s Never Say Die Division — is finding business poor.

The total ounce of contraband gold occasionally finds its way to Montreal or Windsor, known trade centres for highgrading ore, but most of the big time smugglers have been robbed of their incentive. Police say that profitable markets were cut off when the last of Canada's servicemen came home.

At one time a considerable amount of gold was finding its way out of Canada. Police cite the case of a young ferry command pilot who bought gold for $25 an ounce in Canada and then flew it to Africa where in one month he made a profit of $40.00.

Stories of the tricks users played to smuggle gold out of the mines is occurring gold between their toes, in their teeth and hair, in thermos bottles and even in bottles with specially-built secret compartments— are recorded in the gold squad's files.

But now sizeable precautions, falling off demand for gold and the vigilance of the gold squad have put an effective damper on this once lucrative racket.

HOW TO PREVENT FIRES

Most fire losses occurring, arise from causes easily preventable. You can reduce your probability of loss by attention to the following simple precautions .....

1. Provide metal containers for hot ashes and prohibit the use of wooden receptacles.
2. Keep cellars, closets and stairways free from loose wrapping paper or other highly combustible material.
3. Equip your property so that it is easy to turn off current when leaving electric irons and other heating appliances, even for a short time.
4. Use only good standard fuses and never permit the substitution of coins or wires for blown fuses.
5. Examine metal flues periodically and see that they are removed before they are badly weakened by internal rust or otherwise.
6. See that accumulations of soot are removed from your chimneys at least once in each year, preferably before lighting fires in the fall.
7. Make sure that gasoline and other inflammable fluids are kept out of rooms where there are open fires or flames of any kind.
8. Keep open lights (candles, gas) and portable electric heaters away from curtains or other inflammable materials which may come in contact with them.
9. Keep your supply of matches in a closed metal receptacle and out of reach of the children.

Your Hardware Dealer Says:

Although much has been written about the new products that have entered into the field of the hard ware industry, it is only fitting that some mention be made of the normal stock and trade carried out in this type of establishment. The hardware merchant offers a great many types of nuts, bolts, wood screws, machine screws, pipe elbows, joints, couplings, reducers etc. This stock is standardized as to thread and to length. A machine thread for example has more turns to the inch than a carriage bolt that has a coarser or larger thread. The finer the thread the tighter you are able to tighten the screw. All parts of all equipment stocks are also numbered and therefore can be renewed and replaced very quickly. The hardware merchant must also be able to assemble or dismantle any piece of equipment that he sells.

New Chick Incubator Allows Spectators To See Miracle Of Hatching

Development of a new baby chick incubator by the Kelsey Hatchery in Huntington, N.Y. makes it possible to watch the miracle of birth—to see a baby chick burst its prison walls and crash out into this strange world. This hatchery produces some 5,000,000 chicks a year, which makes it one of the largest producers of chicken dinners in the world. At left, Walter A. Kelsey, one of the brothers who operate the hatchery, explains the new incubator to a group of school children. A plastic dome enables the visitor to watch all stages of birth of the young chickens. In center, four of the principal stages of birth are recorded by the camera. Top left: The tiny prisoner has broached the wall of the shell and is widening the breach. Lower left: 36 minutes later, one side of the shell has been knocked away and the chick has risen. The chick now rolled its head free and is resting after the effort. Top right: There was a period of 20 minutes between stage 2 and 3. Bottom right: Bright-eyed and fluffy as a powder puff, the new arrival stands outside his erstwhile prison one hour and five minutes after stage 3. That time had been used mostly drinking herself dry. At extreme right: Eight-year-old Judy Matthews, who is chic herself, cuddles the youngster. 3780

VACCINATION WITH BCG ONLY CUT IN HALF

(From the Toronto Globe and Mail)

Bureau of the age-long fight against tuberculosis is in sight, the magazine Health suggested editorially in its current issue. It was announced at the month of a stage in Montreal where vaccination with BCG (Calmette-Guerin vaccine against tuberculosis) has been successful as in other cases.

In spite of the fact that about 80 per cent. of our vaccinated children live in direct contact with tuberculous parents, none of the 900 children vaccinated with BCG in the isolation quarters of the BCG clinic has died or is actually suffering from any tuberculous infection," Dr. A. Calmette reported to Health, the monthly publication of the Health League of Canada.

Dr. Guilhemot said that the success of the Montreal clinic, which was opened in 1925 by the provincial health department, demonstrates its value to every provincial health department in Canada. The helpful of the Montreal clinic for 1945 was 200, 400.

The medical world has awaited a vaccine against tuberculosis since Koch, in 1882, discovered the causative agent of the disease. In 1908 two French scientists, Calmette and Guerin, made a chance discovery which led to the development of the Bacillus of Calmette-Guerin, now internationally known as BCG. The vaccine was extensively used in cattle and in 1921 was first used on a human. The patient was a new-born infant living in contact with his tuberculous grandmother. Success was demonstrated so quickly that within three years 200 such infant children in France had been vaccinated and none has died of tuberculosis.

In 1925, Sen. Athanase David, Quebec Health Minister, visited France, where success with BCG was demonstrated to him. He arranged for the establishment of a clinic in Montreal to vaccinate new-born infants born in tuberculous surroundings. "Since that date everything has worked out as foreseen," Dr. Guilhemot reported.

Gee Rand rule regarding BCG vaccination is that the vaccine must not be given until it is demonstrated that the patient is absolutely free of the disease. Skin tests and x-rays may establish whether the patient is tuberculin negative or positive.

A year hence all the patients who have been vaccinated at the Montreal clinic and all their records will be intensively studied by a medical research team of the National Research Council. Some observers are confident that its report will spread the establishment of comparable BCG clinics in other provinces.

Nameless Town In Manitoba Is Rapidly Becoming A Model

THE first pre-planned industrial town inaugurated within the province of Manitoba is rapidly becoming a model town, although it is situated far north, some 46 miles north of The Pas, and has not yet been given a name. This was announced in a progress report issued by Hon. J. S. McDiarmid, minister of mines and natural resources. The nameless town, known officially as simply "Township 68", had referred to generally as Snow Lake townsite, expects to have a population of 1,500 families.

It is the home mining town to be developed under the new section of the Local Government Districts act passed by the legislature in 1942 to maintain reserves for water supply as well as sanitary and waterworks to house and control the mainstay of mining area to eliminate the old fashioned "tin town."

Under the act, the town possesses an administrator, R. L. Cochrane appointed last July by the province. He has all the powers of a municipal council during the opening years of the town's development. All land in the area, originally Crown property, is held through him.

The lands of the township's province was as agreement reached between the province, the administrator and the Sherritt Gordon Exploration company, which is running the newly opened mine there.

Company To Spend $225,000

Under this agreement, the company has committed itself to spend $225,000 in the development of the townsite. Of this amount, $175,000 will go to town improvements, such as the survey, clearing and grubbing, streets improvement, lanes and sidewalks, installation of water mains and a sewage system, and construction of electric power lines.

The remainder of the money will go to provide for buildings, among them a four-rooms school costing $35,000, a $40,000 seven bed hospital and a $75,000 community centre. Additional funds from the sale of lots will go towards further improvements.

The Home Sound Exploration company is showing a keen interest in the new community, the report continues, and has agreed to maintain

Saskatchewan Man Malt Barley King

REGINA — Saskatchewan's 1946 champion grower of malting barley, Jack A. Wylie Norquay, repeated his win in 1947 when judges of the $25,000 National Barley contest at Winnipeg ranked his entry as the best produced in his province last year.

The contest, second of the series initiated in 1946, by the brewing and malting industry, had nearly 100 entries from the western region which included the prairie provinces and the Peace River district of British Columbia.

ed and a curling rink will be put in this winter. The new ready-to-use operates a snack bar and conveniences while the Hudson's Bay company opened the first store in the community. Soon to go in are a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada and a modern picture theatre.

Well Planned Roads

The town has a well-planned road and avenue system, with picturesque lanes reminiscent of the wooded north-land, such as Lakeshore Drive, Poplar, Birch, Balsam and Spruce avenues. The business district is removed from the homesite area, but is still handy for future shoppers. It has lots marked out on a 99 foot wide road.

The town itself is connected by road to the Hudson Bay railway at Mile 82, Wekusko. The road, a difficult piece of construction, was started in 1946.

The grade was completed this year, and graveling operations were in operation at the season's end. In order to assist in the early start of this road, the Howe Sound company ran a preliminary survey to the mine at a cost of $6 000. This survey was followed by a location survey by the government in the early fall of 1945.

The cost of the road will be borne by the company the province and the dominion. Under the agreement the company's share will be $150,000 with the province and the dominion each contributing a one-half larger share.

The mine itself has set an objective to sink its s ft to 940 feet by mid-December and by Nov. 15, the shaft had reached the 944 mark. The shaft is five compartment size, comprising an 11 foot 6 inch by 6 foot 2 inch engage compartment and man-way for ventilation, water and electrical service. A staff house has been erect- services — Winnipeg Free Press.

Answer To Last Week's Puzzle

Leduc Oil Field May Develop Into The Richest In Canada

Geologist Estimates Capacity Of The Newly-Discovered Field Would Be 50,000,000 Barrels Or Oil

"WELL WELL ME" — Mrs. Wesley Clark, who lives in a Toronto dairy, finds time to attend a budget school at her and mind. "Thus I keep Mrs. Brownlee mind," she explained," and insisted she was. The budget school is for married couples. You sure must be

OTTAWA. An oil company geologist has estimated that the capacity of the newly-discovered Leduc oil field of Alberta would be 50,000,000 barrels and said it may develop into the richest field in Canada.

Dr. F. A. Lish, chief geologist for the Imperial Oil company which operates 75 per cent. of the field, told a commercial bulletin gathering of geologists that at present the Leduc field covered 1,500 acres and said that this might be extended through further exploration by half or twice as much.

While the present production totals barely at 10,000 barrels an acre for a total of 50,000,000 he said some more optimistic operators suggested output might reach 30,000 barrels to the acre for a total capacity of 120,000,000 barrels.

Dr. Lees was addressing a combined session of the annual meeting of the Geological Association of Canada, the Geological Society of America and several allied bodies.

He said it was significant that the Leduc field had been found in what geologists call Devonian rock and coral reef belt by ancient seas 350,000 years ago. This is similar to the formation of the fabulously-rich west Texas area, where hundreds of fields were developed, and it is possible the Leduc area might reach similar proportions.

Production now totals 4,500 barrels a day on an experimental basis but the company hopes to reach a full production of 10,000 barrels a day by the end of 1948. The field's natural reservation brand now in determining production quotas.

The average depth of drill holes at Leduc, the third major field in Canada, is one mile, which indicates a comparatively shallow field. The first two wells drilled were dry holes and the Norman Wells field in the Northwest Territories

Better-Balanced Drugs Needed For Allergies

CHICAGO — A scientist said that much on happiness and that allergic diseases must alter the course for a better-balanced drugs, instead of merely one.

Dr. Charles P. Huttner, senior research chemist of the Warner Institute for Therapeutic Research, New York, told the American Chemical Society meeting in connection with the American Association for the Advancement of Science, that some of the new anti-allergy drugs of chemical advantages over previous compounds now on the market.

In some cases, he reported, severe reactions of the type called "histamine accidents" have been observed among the administration of excessive compounds which are to the combined allergic materials attributed to the presence of such chemicals.

He said the main problem in antihistamine research is not to find potent drugs, but to find compounds which will be properly balanced with regard to their distribution between the tissue, on the one hand, and the blood stream on the other.

Helpful Hints

Bibs that have just been laundered should be hung indoors and rolled for ironing before they become entirely dry.

Paint and putty stockings on walls may be scraped off with a thumb or other sharp-edged instrument, then rubbed with turpentine to remove the remaining spots.

The tannin may be removed from linen and copper by rubbing with a mixture of equal parts of flour, salt and vinegar. Wipe off application quickly.

If you have an odd-shaped room, or one where the windows are of different sizes, use only sheer curtains at the windows. This treatment will lessen the importance of the windows and obtain a desirable effect.

ARAB YOUTH SEAN CALL TO WAR OVER PALESTINE PARTITION — Gathering of Arab youths at Lifta village near Jerusalem, is addressed by Abou Saud, who calls for volunteers in the threatened holy war against the partition of Palestine. Seated at table is Kemal Orwibat, leader of the Arab youth organization. Military leaders of the Arab League air reported to have met in Cairo to draw up "battle plans" for the holy war, which would start when the British depart.

Befriend The Birds

When you are resting comfortably before your grate fire these evenings, after partaking of a comfortable meal, just imagine what it would be like to be a bird, hunting around in the cold for some poor something to eat, before perching for the night in the shelter of the shed, taking advantage of all possible outdoor protection against the cold and wet of Winter.

We are sure this will lead you to throw out your bird feeder, and suspend a piece of suet from the limb of a tree, and otherwise provide for these feathered creatures. Birds are among man's best friends—and man should be very kind to them. The time when they need a friend is the wintertime. Guelph Mercury.

When Pa is sick, he's scared to death
An' ma an' us just holds our breath
Ma crawls into bed and puffs and groans,
Does all kinds of crazy stunts,

World Said To Be Running Out Of Arable Land

CHICAGO. The world is running out of arable land for its rapidly growing population, Dr. Hugh Bennett, chief of the Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service, said here.

He added 2½ acres of tillable land per stomach to furnish each person with a minimum nutritious diet. In the world, Dr. Bennett said, there is only enough land to provide an immediately arable land for a world population of more than two billion people. The population is increasing at the rate of about 20 million persons a year, facing the hard-stomach raters even lower.

The United States is better off than other nations, because it has today about 400 million acres of high grade cropland for a population of 144 million. That gives our nation approximately 2½ acres per stomach. The margin over the 2½ acre minimum who we have, Dr. Bennett asserted, is narrowing as a result of both increases in population and volume of good land, particularly by erosion.

PRODUCTION OF SHORN WOOL SHOWS INCREASE

Canadian shorn wool production in 1947 is estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at 16,178,000 pounds as compared with 15,457,000 pounds in 1946. The 1947 clip is the smallest since 1925, and is largely due to the reduced number of sheep on farms. Largest shorn wool production was 15,178,000 pounds in 1941.

TO BE REDEEMED

(By EDWARD EARL LEE)

GILAD HENBURY, wedged into a chair tilted against the counter, was slipping into his regular after-dinner snooze when the door opened. The customer was an elderly woman.

Silas rose and the chair crashed to its noted. He chuckled behind the counter and said: "Good evening, ma'am. Something I can do for you?"

"Why, yes, I suppose so. At least, I hope so."

Her voice registered pleasantly and Silas heard such modulated speech. He was more familiar with bagging, shrewish voices, pleading, whining tones; arrogant, demanding talk. It reminded him of his past; it pest he recalled less and less with passing years.

"Anything within reason. That's why I've called 'Uncle Silas'. My customers are just like relatives to me."

"That makes it easier. I never had to pawn anything before. But—"

Her voice trailed into silence. Silas knew that when she continued, throughout her story would run the same theme as countless others he'd heard before. He'd been listening for years to the pawnbroker business. He nodded his head encouragingly.

"This gold locket," she said, unfolding her hands to reveal the locket, "was presented to me by my husband a few years married. His mother how often we moved trying to find a location where they never improved. After his death had your things became worse. I sold most of my valuables, but this I just couldn't. I only want a loan on this locket. I'll redeem it. I'll redeem it."

That is what they all say, thought Silas, as the locket changed hands. And the pathetic thing is they usually believe it, despite the possessions of many other persons in the pawn they would never see again. He photographing was ended by the woman continuing her story.

"But to every pawn shop I've gone, they refuse to lend me any money. They say it is not valuable enough to be held as security for repayment of the amount I need. But it isn't. I know they are mistaken."

"You're sure, ma'am?" asked Silas. He lightly scratched the surface of the locket with a penknife. The thin shallow furrow he let fall a few drops of acid, then shook his head as a

Lethbridge Man Has Interesting Museum

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. — As a boy, Walter Carney started to collect items—but he never had enough money to do it seriously. 12 years ago he and his wife took a trip to Havana and that crystallized his determination.

Now Carney's museum is one of the showplaces of Lethbridge. More than 43,000 visitors—including many from such distant places as South Africa, Europe and Australia—have inspected the collection in little more than two years.

At present, Mr. Carney has about 250 mounted birds and animals. There are 640 birds' eggs and 15 collections of butterflies. He has a bear cub with the body of an elephant, an albino moose and an albino kitten.

German prisoner-of-war left behind a complete set of war badges and also 13 different battleships carved out of wood.

In the Indian section are arrowheads, tomahawks, stone pipes, knives, tomahawks, bead dresses and bead work. There are sea shells from all over the world including coral and mother of pearl.

Mr. Carney didn't stop there, he has, in addition, a coin and currency collection dating back to 146 A.D. There are two bandsaws now slated 238 A.D. and 244 A.D. And, strangely enough, there is also the new unknown Canadian four-dollar bill.

Mr. Carney says it takes four full hours to really tour the museum and he thinks it's time well spent.

Inside the folded paper were four $5 bills and a $1 bill.

Canada's West Dotted With Hidden Oil Wells

A. L. Leverson, Geologist, Predicts Hundreds Of Wells To Be Discovered

OTTAWA — A. I. Leverson, retiring president of the Geological Society of America, said it is "inconceivable" that the plains of western Canada "should not be the site of hundreds upon hundreds of oil fields yet to be discovered."

In his presidential address to the first joint annual meeting of the U.S. society and the Geological Association of Canada, he said this reasoning also applied to the plains of Mexico.

"Deposits such as the Athabaska oil sand of Canada or the Golden Lane and Poza Rica fields in Mexico give a measure of the possible size of some of these undiscovered fields," he said.

"Not until thousands of additional test wells have been drilled throughout the whole region can we say that the exploration of these areas has been completed."

Dr. Leverson, a professor at Stanford university in California, reviewed the oil resources of the North American continent and said current demand for petroleum products is running close to capacity "proves beyond a shred of doubt" that it continues to supply adequate amounts of petroleum during the decades ahead."

WEDDING

Watson — Quinn

Blended pink snapdragons and white mums banked the altar at Holy Trinity Church, Chipman, Oct. at noon on Saturday, when the Rev. Major J. H. Walker, rector of St. John Church officiated at a ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Evelyn (Eva) May Quinn of Chipman and Mr. Stanley John Watson of Niagara Falls, N.Y. White satin bows marked the church pews.

A musical background for the wedding nuptials was provided by Mrs. E. Thompson, at the organ.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Wilfred Quinn of Chipman, was gowned in broadcloth satin. The neckline was in the sweetheart mode and the long sleeves terminated points over her wrists. A full skirt fell from a fitted bodice to form a graceful train. Her finger-length veil of illusion was held in place by a headdress of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and baby's breath.

Mrs. W. A Quinn, who attended her sister-in-law as matron of honor, wore a gown of pink corded taffeta, fashioned with short sleeves. The blue ribbons on her bouquet of pink carnations, matched her headdress.

Miss Margaret Dawsbury was the bridesmaid and Mr. Clarence Gilpatrick was the best man.

The reception after the ceremony was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W.L. Quinn, where the bride's table was centred with a tiered wedding cake flanked by white tapers in silver holders and pedes and white pom mums in silver baskets.

Immigration In 1948

IMMIGRATION PROMISES TO BE A MATTER of continuing interest to Canadians this year. Although restrictions were announced and the way was opened for more people from other lands to enter Canada, immigration proved to be on a smaller scale in 1947 than in the preceding year. Figures showed that in the six months ending September 30th, 1947 2,2[illegible] immigrants came to Canada. This was 14,226 less than the number admitted in the corresponding period in 1946. The decrease in numbers can be explained largely by the fact that in 1946 troopships brought many hundreds of wives and dependents of service men to this country. After that operation was completed the ships were withdrawn, to be converted for use in regular passenger service, thereby creating a temporary but considerable shortage of passenger space.

Lack Of Ships Is Responsible

The lack of passenger ships is believed to be the main reason why more people have not emigrated. It is expected that more passenger ships will be available for this year, thus opening the way for which allow unrestricted entry of persons from Commonwealth countries and the United States, and also the same conditions for the admission of people from European countries who have relatives here willing to provide for them. Trades people and skilled workers with sufficient funds to establish themselves here are also permitted to come into the country and in addition, last year provision was made for the entry of 30,000 persons from displaced persons camps in Europe. Wives and unmarried children of Canadian citizens in overseas countries were also extended permission to come to Canada. All classes of prospective immigrants are, of course, required to possess satisfactory qualifications in regard to health character and financial status.

More Space To Be Available

It is expected that more passenger ships will be opening their ports, thus opening the way for greater numbers of people to avail themselves of the opportunities offered to immigrate. It has recently been announced that the British government has given assurance to America that all spare space will be available to transport 70,000 people to that country in 1948 this being the minimum objective of the Australian government for immigration this year. The number of immigrants entering England or coming to Canada from England is expected that it will be considerably more than in 1947. So far, the main field of the post-war immigration picture appears to have been that ten people were coming into the country at a time when there has been a serious shortage of labour for our farms and industries. Indications are that this year will be into shipping space in the coming months, and the progress of Canada's present immigration policy will be watched with interest here and abroad.

EDMONTON PIONEER LIKED INDIANS

Jewish Woman Thinks Old Timers Could Live Lessons In Neighborliness

EDMONTON — Mrs. A. Cristall first Jewish woman to reside in Edmonton, still keeps in touch with active city of Odessa in Russia even though she is 72 years old.

Mrs. Cristall, who came to Edmonton when the Indians still had the habit of dropping in unannounced, is interested in a friendly visit, thinks the hardy pioneers could give the present-day residents a few good lessons in neighborliness, religious tolerance and racial goodwill.

Being the first Jewish family in the city, Mrs. Cristall had no Hebrew church and they went on Sundays in turn to Catholic, Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian and Salvation Army services.

"The Indians would drop in on me when I was alone in our small cabin on Jasper avenue (then and now the city's main street) at practically any hour of the night or day", said Mrs. Cristall in an interview. "I was pretty scared at first but soon learned enough Cree to talk to them and found out they just wanted to be friendly."

Twice in the past she made plans to revisit Odessa. Once she booked passage on the Titanic but it sank on its maiden voyage and later outbreak of the First World War stalled her again.

The potter's wheel was invented independently by many different races.

79,000,000 Pounds Butter Needed By April

1947 Production Over 1946 But Consumption Has Increased

LIBERAL M.P. J. F. Singleton, associate director of the Federal Government's Dairy Marketing Products Service, said Ottawa would have to make or import more than 79,000,000 pounds of butter before April to satisfy the domestic market. Canada has a "working" stock of 10 million pounds.

Addressing the opening session of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association in which related elements from Eastern Ontario and Quebec also took part, Mr. Singleton said production was up slightly over 1946 but consumption had increased by about 20,000,000 pounds.

Mr. Singleton predicted better production during the first 11 months of 1947 than the 280,000,000 pounds higher than in the corresponding period of 1946. However, domestic consumption increased by about 20,000,000 pounds.

Cheese production decreased in 1947, the drop amounting to 27,000,000 pounds, or 13.1 per cent, up to December 1. The domestic supply situation is pre-butter until year-end stocks are reported.

In his presidential address Mr. Pitcher, of Dutton Ont., said that while excessive prices incite consumers to economize, higher prices were likely as a result of a major price shortage with consequent cut in herds.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

"Can you do double-entry" asked the employer of the applicant for an accountant's job.

"I can do triple entry" was the reply.

"Triple entry?"

"Yes; one entry for the working partner showing the true profits, another for the partnership papers showing small profits, and a third for the non-working collector showing a loss."

"I say, old man have you change for a pound note?"

"Yes, certainly."

"Well, just lend me 10 shillings of it, will you?"

"Poor old Bill, he's a victim fish-a-holic."

"Have a thing?"

"Well, he's that short-sighted he can't see when the bait is broke."

Salesman: "The stenographer does all the spade-work in business."

Joan: "Her employer, meanwhile, does a spot of digging on the near-by golf course."

"Are you the oldest in your family?"

"No, both father and mother are older than I am."

"My mother always says when a man is very weak," said the footsore young executive man.

"Well," replied the host who observes anomalies, "you get me some salt pork, fish, potatoes, onions, celery, carrots, turnips and a bottle large enough, and I'll make soup, too."

"I haven't seen you at church lately, William," said the vicar. "What's the matter?"

"My daughter's learning to play the harp," replied William.

"But what's that got to do with it?"

"Well, I'm not so keen on going to Heaven as I was."

The Royal Bank Of Canada Annual Meeting

Sydney G. Dobson, President, declares European recovery most important factor in Canada's economic life. "Should American Congressional bill be passed which will help Europe, the effect on our economy would be noticed." Intelligent participation in Marshall Plan will be of service to both Canada and the United States.

James Muir, General Manager, reports marked increase in commercial loans — public deposits again increase — profits improve. Royal Bank depositors now total 1,718,000. Unique service to foreign tourists provided through 71 branches in foreign countries.

The vital importance of European recovery to the future of Canada's economic life was emphasized by Sydney G. Dobson, President of the Royal Bank of Canada, in his address at the annual meeting of the bank's shareholders held in Montreal on January 28th. Mr. Dobson declared that it was necessary to assist Europe "if we would be its friends. I mean by this not merely to help it to recover its own power to produce, but to encourage it to direct that production into channels which will enable it to make some return for the goods we supply it." Mr. Dobson recognized that Canada depends upon exports for its national income and upon export trade. In addition to the sale of our own products to the Western European countries in the first nine months we exported 67% of her total exports, which was a substantial contribution to the future of European recovery to the maintenance of Canada's economic health.

Mr. Dobson pointed out that Canada had already done much to help Europe. In the two years following the end of the war Canadian exports to Europe (1946 had amounted to $822 million, both in the past few years Canada had provided Europe with foodstuffs and fuel in the form of loans, and direct gifts. These contributions have been done to Canada and other countries in Europe "have enough," said Mr. Dobson. "Plans are under way which if it is put well on the course of a few years, permanently restore the European economy." Before the end of March all Plans, "one of the happiest results of international co-operation" at Geneva and the Geneva trade conference will be put into effect. Canada will participate step by step in world recovery. The most important contribution has

THIS IS AN EMERGENCY

... let's treat it as such!

CANADA is heavily "in the red" in general trading with the U.S. dollar area. In our total trade with the world we are in a good position but not in that part which is done with U.S. dollar countries. Other countries with whom we do business cannot pay us in full, either in dollars or in goods, for the things they buy from us.

This situation is made more serious than ever before because so many countries, our regular customers, have not recovered from the war. It may be some time yet before they get on their feet sufficiently to help put things right. Meantime, we must find ways and means of balancing our own books and reducing our U.S. dollar deficit.

There are two things we can do at the moment ... cut down unnecessary purchases from the U.S. dollar area and increase our production of goods that can be sold to those countries to balance accounts. It's an emergency and should be treated as such.

TO KEEP OUR INDUSTRIES HUMMING ... OUR LIVING STANDARD HIGH, WE NEED PETROLEUM, COAL, COTTON, STEEL AND SIMILAR ESSENTIAL THINGS

WE CAN PAY FOR THESE THINGS IF WE CURTAIL OUR SPENDING ON IMPORTED NON-ESSENTIALS OR TRIMMINGS ... AT LEAST FOR AWHILE

YOU AS A CANADIAN CAN HELP

1. Do not order goods by mail from other countries ... do not buy goods to bring home when you travel outside Canada. See also Item 2.
2. If you find some purchase is absolutely essential, use your Collector of Customs and Excise beforehand, to know whether the item is prohibited.
3. Look for alternatives or substitutes for the items which are temporarily prohibited.
4. If certain goods seem to be in short supply, do not overlook the possibility that it is seasonal, or merely a local condition, or perhaps brought about by entirely unnecessary buying.
5. Be sure to mention the Tariff Item Number from your Collector of Customs and Excise before purchasing any luxury. Quote this number in all correspondence.
6. IF WE TACKLE THIS PROBLEM IN THE SAME SPIRIT OF CO-OPERATION DEMONSTRATED DURING THE WAR, ISSUES IT CAN BE SOLVED WITH LONG-TERM BENEFIT TO EVERY CANADIAN.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

LATE TRAIN :

By Matthew F. Christopher

SHARON pulled the collar of her coat tighter around her neck and against the chilly night air. A moment ago her watch had said ninethirty-seven, and the train, with Dick, should have been here at one-eight. She could return inside to the warmth of the station, she thought, as she had done half a dozen times in the last half hour, but she'd only be back out again, thinking she had heard the whistle.

She heavily leaned the man approached. "Aren't you cold?" he said. She turned. She saw he was about 60. His eyes were small, keen, his smiling, wrinkled face reddened from the chill.

"No," she answered, shaking calm. "Not quite. Guess I'm more frightened than cold."

"Frightened? Why?"

She read his eyes evenly. "It's half hour late."

"Hmm," he murmured. He turned and leaned up the tracks that vanished into the gathering pit of darkness. "Half hour. Must be my clock's off." He looked back at her. "It's seldom so late, at that, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"Ah, but it's no cause for worry. There may be a freight ahead of him, preventing the train from traveling very fast."

Sharon followed the old man's glance up the tracks. "I got to thinking," she confessed, "and I got awfully frightened. Airplanes, trains, subways—I ... I'm allergic to them, I guess. Ever since—" She bit her lip.

"Ever since what, my dear?"

"Ever since Father got killed," Sharon whispered. "A subway ..." She paused, felt the quickening of her heart. "It always frightens me, now."

The old man stood tall beside her, his rearms crossing.

"Sorry," he said, his breath formed a cloud in the air. "I take it you're waiting for our husband?" She nodded. The old man chuckled. "No wonder you worry. You're young, your husband's young. You said you're old, like me. Worry will be a memory, almost forgotten. It will cease to exist for you."

Sharon laughed, but the gentle bitterness of it died quickly on her lips. "You don't worry? That doesn't seem possible ..."

"You'll learn," the old man said. "There's no need for fear, I say. I thought transmission, and what is impacted from the mind can be controlled. I wouldn't worry if I were you. When our number is up, it's up—whether you are walking on a sidewalk, or riding in a train."

"Yes, I suppose you're right."

After a while the old man asked, "What time is it, now?"

Sharon pulled away the top of her glove, glanced at the face of the wrist watch under the pale light. "It's almost two." She looked worriedly down the tracks. "Heavens. Do you think something's happened? It's almost an hour late."

"An hour," repeated the old man softly. "Well, yes, it is running late. But it's cold—and it might've hit a storm, drifts. Weather is terribly unpredictable in the mountains, you know. But let's ask the man inside, shall we?"

The ticket agent gazed regretfully at them, his magnified eyes shifting behind the thick glasses from the old man to Sharon. "I'm sorry," he said. "No word. But the train'll be along. Don't worry."

"Be?" mulled the man. "Even he says don't worry."

"I know, but I can't help it," Sharon answered. Her voice was tense. "Every second, every minute, I feel more scared." She wondered how he could remain so calm. "Do I look like how I feel?

His wrinkled face fanned into a smile. "Yes," he said. "But something tells me you don't look pretty crying. And, suppose the train suddenly comes in. What would he say if he saw frozen tears on your cheeks?"

She laughed, and the sound of her laughter carried across the large room, where an electric clock hung high on the wall.

"Two-fourteen," read the old man. "An hour and six minutes late." He smiled at Sharon. "Let's stay inside. It's too cold out there. Or do you really want to wait outside?"

She nodded. What a gentle person this stranger was. She would have cried, she knew, if it weren't for him.

The telephone whirred. They watched the agent pick up the receiver, heard him answer: "Yeah ... yeah ... okay ... thanks ..."

Then the little man spoke to a bellish man at the other window. The bellish man came out through a door, erased a figure on his tally sheet. With a white chalk he wrote: 2.10, and, in parenthesis: Indefinite.

"Mister," Sharon said, stepping forward, turned him. Heart pounding. "What's happened? Why is the train going to be so late?"

"There was a train crash, sorry to say, Miss," the man replied. "Not our train. Another one. It's just derailing ours."

"Thank you," whispered Sharon.

"Hey?" said the old man, chuckling. "What did I say about worry? It's falsehood! Falsehood! Falsehood!"

The train pulled in at 2:04, dispelling among its few passengers, a tall, anxious-looking young man, and a grey-haired lady. "Dick!" cried Sharon happily, falling into his big, long arms. "Oh, Dick!"

"Baby!" Dick said, and he kissed her first hard, tenderly, holding her so that her tears barely touched the tweed.

Finally, he released her, and, aloof and looked at him breathlessly. "I almost died, darling!"

"Why? Scared I'd never get here?" He laughed.

She laughed, too. "What else? Is it weren't for—"

They turned suddenly at a soft sob behind them. "Look!" cried Dick. He broke away from her, raced toward the old lady. Sharon saw that the woman was bending over the old man who had been waiting for the train with her. He had fallen to his knees upon the concrete, clutching his heart with one hand, and bracing in painful gasps.

"Thank you, young man," said the lady, as Dick helped the man to his feet. "My husband's had another one of his attacks. He must have been worried about me. He always gets that when he's worried. Not that he's ever had any reason to be worried about me. He always gets that when he's worried. Not that he's ever had any reason to be worried about something. He'll be all right. I never hate long. Thank you. Thank you so much, young man."

Conservation Of Wild Life Needed In B.C.

VANCOUVER. — In addressing sportsmen at the annual Princeton and District Fish and Game Banquet, Commissioner of Game Cunningham said "Don't worry about moose, there's lots of them. We are anxious to conserve other wild game." The commissioner added further that real progress is being made in wild life conservation in the province.

President G. M. Herman urged intelligent appreciation of the vital need of conservation. During 1947 the Princeton Club built a rearing pond, constructed a dam at Lost Lake, built fireplaces at a number of lakes and did considerable work cleaning up lake shores.

STUDIES PROBLEM OF JOBS FOR MEN OVER 45

Vigorous Start Has Been Made Towards Its Solution

OTTAWA. — The problem of Canada's "older worker"—the man over 45 who has not yet entered on a vigorous start has been made to-day, Hon. Humphrey Mitchell said.

The minister said the picture is brighter than it was a year ago, though still clouded by employers' preference for younger workers.

Though the number of unplaced job applicants 45 or over had dropped by October to the lowest point since the Second World War, the percentage of older workers in the unemployed group had reached their highest point in the same period.

At Oct. 30, unplaced applicants registered with the National Employment Service in the "over 45" category numbered 27,495, about 12,000 less than a year previously. This category constituted 26.6 per cent of all unplaced men, against 20 per cent. a year previously.

Jealous Penguins Likely Murdered Straying Bird

NEW YORK. — A penguin that walks into the wrong stall is likely to get into the same sort of trouble as an inebriated gent who gets into the wrong apartment at night.

Bronx zoo officials have been investigating the murder of an adult black-footed penguin, beaten and perched to death by beak and flipper wings.

Each of the five families in the zoo's penguin enclosure has its own nesting box, and the deceased apparently "became confused and returned to the wrong box," suggested William Bridges, zoo information director.

"And you know," Bridges added, "penguins are very jealous."

SAYS GRAVES WELL TENDED

OTTAWA — The graves of Canadians who died defending Hong Kong in December, 1941, are "tended with loving care", guarded by the eternal mountains and the sea.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced he had received the following message from Malcolm Macdonald, Governor-General of Malaya, and former United Kingdom high commissioner to Canada:

"Please tell our Canadian friends that today I visited the war graves cemetery where the Canadian defenders of Hong Kong lie buried. It is tended with loving care amidst scenery as magnificent and beautiful as any in the world. A spirit of peace broods over the hillside where these heroes lie asleep."

New Tax Guide For Prairie Farmers

Revenue Minister McCann Reports Only 29 Per Cent. Filed Income in 1946

(By J. A. Stone in Ottawa Citizen)

OTTAWA — National Revenue Minister Dr J J McCann outlined something of the efforts being made by the income tax division of his department to secure more income tax returns and taxes from Canadian farmers.

Dr McCann, at a press conference, tabled copies of the division's new "Prairie Farmers Income Tax Guide and Farm Account Book". He stated that similar guides and account books will be available soon for use by all other Canadian farmers.

Of 653,326 Canadian farmers, 1,34,-039, or 29.5 per cent, filed income tax returns for the fiscal year 1945-46, Dr McCann stated. Of this number 52,000 or 8.2 per cent., filed actual taxable returns (where income tax had to be paid), while 83,784 filed returns showing they were not subject to tax under the existing scale of income exemptions for the year.

Dr. McCann added that the division has checked 27,411 of the returns of 136,039 farmers who filed returns.

Dr. McCann had no figures as to the total income actually paid by Canadian farmers in the year mentioned.

Brazil alone produces enough cotton in one year to supply the entire world for 14 months.

"She sure hauls them!"

WHEN BILL and his crew go into the woods now, they get timber out twice as fast as they used to. That new tractor Bill bought really handles those logs!

Back in town, the saw-mill is running full blast, taking all Bill's crew can deliver . . . And this extra activity, this extra income spreading around through the community is largely due to the fact that Bill went to see his bank manager and arranged a loan to buy the tractor . . .

In lumbering towns and rural hamlets, in big seaports and tiny fishing villages, bank credit — money at work — helps to increase business activity in whole communities. Your bank manager's job is to help men and women grasp opportunities and to put the bank's facilities to work for you and your neighbours.

Britain Plans Exhibition

AN EVENT WHICH WILL NO DOUBT be of interest to many people in Canada is the British Industries Fair and great national arts festival, to be held in Britain in 1951. That year will mark the centenary of the Great Exhibition of 1851, and Mr Morrison, Lord President of the Council, recently announced to the United Kingdom House of Commons that consideration had been given by the government as to how the occasion could be most fittingly observed. It has now been decided, he said, that Britain's contribution to world civilization in the fields of culture, science, technology and industrial design should be illustrated in a large national arts festival combined with two major industrial exhibitions

* * * * *

Attracted Six Million People

The Great Exhibition of 1851 was held in London's Hyde Park, in a crystal palace especially built for the event. Suggested by Prince Albert, consort of Queen Victoria, it attracted more than six million visitors from all parts of the world and made a profit of some $780,000. The centenary of this very successful undertaking will be held from May to October, 1951, and it is expected that it will likewise draw visitors from many other countries. The festival which is now being planned will not be confined to London alone, and it will present displays of painting, sculpture, books and photography. Architecture, town planning and textile United Kingdom firms will also be included in this festival of arts.

* * * * *

Shows Britons' Faith in Future

At the same time, the Council of Industrial Design has been asked to sponsor a display covering consumer goods, civil transport, and certain classes of capital goods. The historical development of some of the leading British industries are also to be presented as well as handicraft production, and outstanding British achievements in science and technology. The announcement of such an undertaking at the time is an indication of Britain's pride in the progress made there in the last hundred years in industry, science and the arts. It is also an indication of the faith of the British people in the future and of their unwillingness to let the present critical economic situation there prevent them from planning events of this nature. It is to be hoped that the Great Exhibition and national arts festival of 1951 will be even more prosperous and successful than was the first one held nearly a century ago.

Has Unusual Job For Women

TORONTO — One of the few women climatologists in North America, Mrs. Marie Sanderson plans to resume some spring experiments she hopes will prove that climatic conditions, rather than vegetation, govern the rate and proportion of moisture from the earth.

As part of a study of climatology she is making for the Ontario research foundation, all last summer she experimented with four plots in a vacant lot near Mount Pleasant in north Toronto.

In the plots grew timothy and crested wheat grass. Water was carried to them by pipes laid underground. In all cases the rate of evaporation was found the same.

As part of the Ontario government project, Mrs. Sanderson is concentrating on a study of the moisture factor in the climate of Ontario and also works on an article intended to give a Canada-wide picture of moisture deficiency and surplus.

Trips To Canada To Be Prizes

COCKERMOUTH Cumberland Blue Trips for two persons to Canada, including ship and railway fares, will be the principal prizes in an enquiry blowing contest to be held here by the Workington and District Agricultural Society. The prize winners will compete in international plowing matches in Toronto next October.

Prairieites Defend Winter Weather

In Answer To Detroit Report Of Americans Regard Prairies As An "Icebox"

WINNIPEG — Western Canadians rose in defence of winter weather on the prairies, maintaining cold spells are not anything to get excited about if one wears the proper clothing and insisting the climate out this way has the advantage of being healthy.

Actually, as is known by any true western Canadian from the age of three up, the cold waves crack across from the prairies and into the U.S. and eastern Canada usually originate in the far north. Since that district is about 2,000 miles northwest of Winnipeg it is hardly fair to blame all the cold on the prairies.

Tourist travel officials in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta all jumped in to the defence of the west on the weather question following a report from Detroit which indicated some Americans regard the prairie region as an icebox.

Mayor Garrett Coulter of Winnipeg was quick to come to the defence of his city and the province.

"I've been in the southern States and I'll take our coldest asylum and the nearest," "National health statistics show this particular region is healthier than any other part of the Dominion."

An official of the Saskatchewan Tourist Bureau in Regina had this to say on behalf of prairie weather:

"You can see more fun-loaded moving-about-in-shirt-sleeves days in Regina in the middle of winter than you can in Detroit."

Then there was this from Dan Campbell of Edmonton, director of Alberta's travel bureau:

"During the excellent weather prevailing over the eastern slopes of the Canadian Rockies, horses usually stay out in pasture all year. We frequently play golf on New Year's day, and before we get artificial ice rinks, nobody had it cold enough for hockey before Christmas."

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

"Did anyone in your family ever make a rational marriage?"

"Only my wife."

That night under the stars he made eternal love,

"That box on I be sure that you are sincere?" she said. "I expect you deceive all the girls."

"Oh, that's an old line," he exclaimed. "You're the first really."

"Why is it that so many women will persist in making themselves five years younger than they really are?" asks a playwright.

"Perhaps it's because they didn't have to count until they were five."

He had been waiting a long time for his lunch. "Waitress", he said, "must I set here until I starve?"

Oh, no," replied the waitress. "We close at 6 o'clock

Physically, a lot of Canadians are suffering from a weak back; financially, they are suffering from a weak bank.

One rainy afternoon Aunt Sue was explaining the meaning of various words to her young nephew. "Now, Jackson, my dear young man, something that has been handed down from father to son," she said.

"Well," replied the boy intelligently, "that's a queer name for my pants."

Two workmen sat down to eat their lunch, and one began unwrapping a parcel about 18 to 20 inches long.

"What's that?" asked his mate.

"Well, my wife is away, so I made a pie for myself."

"Ah, bit long, that!"

"Of course it's long. It's rhubarb."

GEMS OF THOUGHT

BREVITY

Genuine good taste consists in saying much in few words, in choosing among our thoughts, in having order and arrangement in what we say, and in speaking with composure. Fenelon.

Plan Driving School Course For Children

EDMONTON — Bribed courses throughout Canada have progressed a great deal since the days when cars were really exciting and motorcycles were hammered into young junior's head November's teen agers also have a full-time course, drama, set's run park up credits by studying these subjects, doctor's Edmonton school officials would like to inaugurate still another course to acknowledge the present age of mechanization and motor vehicles.

J. C. Macdonald, chairman of the school board, recently returned from the United States where he observed such courses being taught in the schools. Together with R. R. Hapgood, school superintendent, he believes that if similar courses here would save only life, they would be worthwhile.

The plan, now being discussed by the Alberta government curriculum committee, would involve only high school students as boys must be 16 years of age and girls 16 before they can obtain a drivers license in Alberta. It would be a voluntary course and the question of whether credits would be given for it is still unsolved.

Seats would be set up in classrooms, equipped with steering wheels, gears, clutch and accelerator. This would be situated in a panel, wired with lights. A projection screen at the front of the room would simulate actual driving conditions. Teachers watching the light would know how students were progressing. Later, they would be given lessons in dual-controlled automobiles and after passing examinations, would be presented with a "ticket".

Mr. Macdonald says that such courses in the States have cut the accident rate by 33 per cent, and he also believes they would cut down on property damage. If the plan is approved, it is hoped to have the first course presented in January 1946.

VOLCANIC GASES

It is estimated that the weight of gases given off in a volcanic eruption is much greater than that of lava and ashes.

May Build Game Sanctuary Near Canora

Game Birds Have Increased At First Sanctuary Established Two Years Ago

CANORA, Sask. — A committee was appointed at the annual meeting of the Canora Fish and Game league recently, to investigate the possibilities of having a second sanctuary established in the district.

The proposed spot will be Pelton Flats, about seven miles north of Canora, on No. 9 Highway. This will be the second such sanctuary in the area, the other being at Patterson Lake, west of Canora and north of Good Spirit Lake.

Birds Increase

N. Perry, secretary-treasurer, stated that since the establishment of Patterson Lake sanctuary two years ago the number of game birds in the fall had increased tremendously. Mr Perry reported the pheasants that were released near the Whiteshell river, and at Canora, were leaving the district and some were reported near Gerlitz. The partridges were first released in the spring of 1944 and then in 1947.

The first group died but the second lot migrated to areas such as Cote ita where such birds had never been released before.

He reported on another game bird which was nearly extinct in this district about two years ago—the prairie chicken. He stated that the bird was gradually coming back in this area and said that he thought that a closed season should be maintained for it.

It was reported that 500,000 pickerel fry were planted in Crystal lake, 17 miles north of Canora.

Place Orders Now For Package Boss

Beekeepers in Canada who have not as yet placed their orders for package bees with dealers in the United States should do so at once to avoid delay or non-delivery, says C. B. Gooderham, Dominion Apiarist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. The demand this year for package bees is so great that producers in the Southern States are already fairly well booked to the limit for early spring delivery.

Mr. Gooderham says that the recent restrictions against certain imports from the United States do not apply to package bees.

HIGH PRICES AND INFLATION

There is much talk about the high price of food. To appease the public the Government has placed ceilings on butter and meats. This will please the housewife. It is to be remembered however, that the ceiling prices are lower than the market and can seriously lower than the U.S.A. market. All this means, that the Canadian farmer, besides providing the people with cheap wheat to make cheap bread, is also providing them with cheaper butter and meats than the market would register. We do not, however, object to any efforts being made by the Governments to put a ceiling on the prices of things that farmers have to buy. Some think those ceiling prices will help to control inflation. High prices are not the cause of inflation, but are the inflation, for inflation merely means there is more money in the hands of people than there are goods to buy. A greater demand than supply. In Dublin can be found the remedy for greater production, but keeping down the prices of products tends to curtail production and does not help to remove it. Many authorities think that the best way to cure inflation is to let prices go higher, which will in time increase production and decrease demand, and so naturally cures the inflation and brings lower prices

SEEDTIME AND HARVEST

By Dr. W. H. Hamby

Autumn Sown Grasses and Legumes

There are, no doubt, large areas in the pioneer provinces which will be devoted to straight grain farming for many years to come. In most districts, however, a reasonable acreage of grass, or grass and alfalfa mixed, is good for the farmer and good for the farm.

A great many farmers have been discouraged by some attempts to get a stand of grass have failed. Failure is commonly due to (a) sowing too deeply, (b) no protection from soil drifting and (c) sowing at the wrong time. In some years and some districts, the use of nurse crops has also caused disappointment.

Since the autumn is, also, not very far away, and since autumn sowing of grasses is becoming more and more popular, we think it wise to draw attention to some experimental work done at Scholarship and published in "Scientific Agriculture", Vol. 21, No. 7). The following statements are derived from the publication and the authors are Dr. W. J. White and Mr. W. H. Hornby.

1. Sweet clover should not be sown in autumn.

2. Better results are obtained by sowing in stubble or weedy than on bare summerfallow.

Since rendezvous were from plow to harrow, it is wise to consult the local experimental farm or the local agricultural representative.

Dear Sir:

As an immigrant, I was astonished to find that when I became a Canadian citizen, my wife will be entitled to a monthly allowance from the Government on behalf of our son. Let me say as a man who has never considered that I was able to feed and clothe my family by my own efforts for more than a hundred years of others who, like myself, dislike charity in any form and this compulsory allowance seems to me to be just that.

As far as I am concerned, the Baby Bonus is a gross waste of taxpayers' money which, without achieving its aim time and millions of dollars a year. At the same time it has a double edged effect on people like myself since it happens to put my net income in a higher tax bracket than it would otherwise be.

What I would far rather see would be a reduction of income tax at the expense of fuller granaries where are, in my case, at the debit of the consumer. — David Bernard. 87 Yonge St., Toronto, Ont.

"It's Not Loaded"

Handling "Empty Gun" Proves To Be Dangerous Practice

Famous last words:

"It's not loaded."

Time and again it has been proved that handling of "empty gun" is a dangerous practice. Death has stalked in many an instance where the trigger was pressed unwittingly, discharging a lethal bullet without warning.

As witness the tragic accidents - usually termed accidents - which occur so frequently. Almost every day, one hears of such a mishap. Sometimes a gun goes off while being cleaned ... or others disposed to friends ... or in the hands of young children.

There is no such thing as a harmless gun, unless you have made sure, doubly certain — yes, even triple-checked—that it is empty," contends an R.C.M.P. fire-arms expert.

Appalling Toll Of Life

A recent survey shows that an appalling toll of life is taken every year by weapons "thought to be unloaded." And, besides, there are the hundreds who have been wounded, blinded or maimed for life.

The sum of shooting accidents has soared to peak levels in the past three years. This can be attributed mainly to the great numbers of automatic weapons brought home by servicemen from the various battlefronts following the cessation of hostilities.

It may be a Luger, a Japanese carbine, an automatic pistol. Acquired overseas and smuggled past customs, they are now regarded as a sort of badge of honor — a mark of courage. Likewise, in the shotgun, symbol of a hunter's prowess.

A man may have handled guns all his life. A soldier may have come through the war without a scratch. Yet, it does not take much pressure on the trigger to invite the undertaker.

You read of how a man accidentally shot his fiancee in Montreal ... or in New York where a boy, playing "cops and robbers", killed a playmate with an "unloaded gun" ... the wounding of a man in Lowestoft, Ontario, while he was cleaning his rifle ... a souvenir pistol discharging in the hands of an ex-GI in Texas ... the lad carefully removed all cartridges, but forgot the one in the firing chamber.

Bob Hope's Near-Tragic

Even radio and screen comedian Bob Hope had a near-tragic experience while he was showing off his extensive collection of firearms to friends at his California home.

The man with the "shoot-'em" proclivities would have sworn on a stack of Bibles that the gun was unloaded. But, when the smoke cleared, there was a bullet-hole in the door — and on the other side were Hope's wife and four children.

Fortunately, no one was hurt. Mrs Hope later tacked up a neat sign beside the bullet hole, with the legend, "It wasn't loaded—HE SAID". As a result, friends frequently kid him. But the master of rapid-fire repartee for once fails to see any humor in the situation.

You Can Be Wrong

"Don't point a gun, however positive you are that it won't go off. You can be wrong, and it's liable to be a fatal mistake," is a warning that should not go unheeded.

Firearms should especially be kept out of the reach of young children. These "playthings" have already claimed too many innocent victims.

And make certain it's absolutely safe when handling such weapons yourself. There's a grave mockery in England with an epitaph that can be applied to many a case. It reads

"Twas an empty gun—
Or so he said—
That is not a built
This his head.
— By C. S. Cowan in Ottawa Citizen.

Farm Women Help Design Farm Homes

Farm women are to be given an opportunity to say how a farm house should be planned and what kind of equipment should be installed to add comfort and ease of living.

The Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, a Dominion Government Company, has invited all provincial governments to co-operate in a Better Farm Home Competition and prizes up to $400 will be awarded in each province. The competition will be in the form of answers and comments to a list of questions which will be provided, and the replies will be used by the Corporation in developing new farm home plans. The competition is open to any local group of farm women already operating as a unit.

The questions, which are designed to find out what the housewife wants for a practical and comfortable farm home, must be discussed at local group meetings, and the answers and comments are to represent the considered opinion of the group as a whole.

Full information will be made available to groups of farm women, through the department designated to supervise the competition by each provincial government, joining with the Corporation in sponsoring the contest.

Campaign To Increase Tourist Traffic

The Goal is To Boost U.S. Dollars Past The $150,000,000 Mark

OTTAWA. A publicity campaign is planned by the Bank of Canada and the Dominion Travel Bureau to increase tourist traffic in 1946 and thus bring more U.S. dollars to Canada.

The goal is to boost U.S. tourist dollars past $150 000,000 in 1946.

During 1946 tourists brought nearly $236,000,000 in U.S. currency, the 1947 total was about the same.

Up to Oct 31 30,276,000 overseas tourists came to Canada; by all of 1946 about 20 500,000.

Leo Dolan, transportation director, and the Bank of Canada would encourage private exchange of currencies from coast to coast asking them to promote a co-op campaign and to do everything in their power to make Canadian cities more attractive places to which to spend a vacation.

Mr. Dolan, who has just returned from visits to Nassau and Florida, said: "We still have the best-priced vacation on the continent, and that may be the biggest factor in our favor."

Believes Television Will Be Shared By Everyone On Earth

(By Ernest Thomson in London Calling)

IT MUST be assumed, I think, that sooner or later everyone on the earth's surface will have television. Radio will be seen, as well as heard, by everybody, everywhere. Viewers of BBC television in the southeast corner of Britain will not always be the only lucky people, as they are today, with nearly three hours of "live" vision daily. Sundays included.

As a viewer myself, I think television's appeal to the imagination really begins at the receiving end. How the BBC creates these brilliant and shimmering images on my humble seven or so inches of screen that I squeeze into only after I had recovered from the novelty of tuning-in pictures of distant events at the moment of happening.

I forego the mechanics of the business in the excitement of watching international tennis at Wimbledon, stage plays from London's "Theatreland". Test matches, "close-up" interviews with the great and famous, variety programs and ballet, and the whole panorama of human existence as it races across my screen every evening.

This excitement I share with at least 100,000 other people who have access to the 25,000-odd receivers in the BBC television service area, which extends rather more than 40 miles from the transmitting station at Alexandra Palace, in North London. Next year, the extension of the Midland city of Birmingham will be brought into the magic circle, which will finally embrace most of the country.

A television receiver resembles the ordinary radio-console, but includes a cream-colored glass screen, slightly convex, which throws the interesting end of the famous cathode-ray tube on which the picture is built up from a rectangle of light. Side by side, with such incredible speed that the eye accepts it as a complete, moving image. The average screen-size at 10 inches by eight inches, and this enables a good five people to watch in comfort at a distance of six feet.

A visit to the studios is enlarging: to the fourth measuring about 70 feet by 30 feet, they strike you at first as two large areas of light; beams from the batteries of floodlamps above rain down apparently from all directions.

But when your eyes become accustomed to the glare, you can pick out the mysterious centres concerned—the "eyes" of television—moving to and fro across the studio floor on their rubber-tired trolleys beneath the towering microphone booms.

The producer of a television play controls operations from a soundproof booth overlooking the studio, gauging results from monitor screens which enable him to "mix" from one camera to another while the play is in progress.

An immense amount of work goes to the making of each program: long rehearsals (for the actors must learn it by heart) the design of dresses and scenery, the preparation of make-up and dialogue, and the ceaseless effort to obtain ideal lighting and sound balance under studio conditions which vary with every production.

Every one, however, and all those other viewers, a television show is a smooth-running and apparently effortless piece of entertainment that costs ten times.

Chinook Winds Of Alberta

Generally speaking, the height of the Chinook wind's effect is felt in a narrow avenue taking in Cardston to Claresholm, and carrying the warming breeze as far east as Seven Persons Creek just this side of Medicine Hat.

The Winter of 1943-44 was a Winter in which the typical Chinook got in its work. The weather map for that Winter would show that, when for day after day the mercury stood at 15 to 20 above zero from Cardston to the Sweet Grass Hills, north through Seven Persons and Vauxhall and then swinging back to the mountains through the Claresholm district, the mercury outside that line stood at zero to 30 below much of the time.

There was a constant difference for days of 30 to 40 degrees between the Chinook belt temperature and that in the area where the balmy breeze did not blow.—Lethbridge Herald.

Smile of the Week—

Too Many Eggs

The old farmer was dozing in the shade of his front porch, when a high-pressure salesman hustled up the front walk and awakened him with a cheery "Good afternoon". He had a sample book of a ten-volume set on scientific agriculture he was selling.

The old farmer was at length persuaded to page through the specimen volume.

Nope," he objected; "ain't got no use for it."

But you ought to have it," the salesman insisted. "It will teach you to farm twice as good as you do now."

"Sire, son," barked the ancient agriculturist, "I don't farm half as good now as I know how."

PHYSICAL CHANGES CAN BE CAUSED BY EMOTIONAL TENSION

The word psychosomatic (psyche-mind, soma-body) is beginning to appear more and more frequently in medical literature as medical men are attempting to bring together these two phases of man (mind and body) into a unified whole, it is stated by Dr. G. M. Campbell, Calgary Area specialist in psychosomatic medicine, in the current issue of Health, official magazine of the Health League of Canada.

"The part that emotions may play in illness has always been recognized but there has been an increasing tendency to separate the psychological or emotional aspect of man from the physical," Dr. Campbell writes. "With this division of man, disease began to be regarded as pathology of the cells and organs of the body and control began treating each of the different ailments.

"The more recent medical concept is that the patient should be treated as a total personality and that the emotional as well as his physical being is to be considered in any attempt at successful therapy."

Dr. Campbell relates the case of a man admitted to hospital with a diagnosis of diabetes. After the attending physician found it impossible to adjust the regular insulin treatment on this particular patient he concluded that there was something more than could be accounted for on an entirely physical basis.

Investigation revealed the man's domestic affairs in a great state of unhappiness and that he was suffering from much emotional tension. However, after several talks with a medical social-service worker, and after she had helped him find a solution for his problem repeated examinations of his blood showed that he no longer required the use of insulin to keep his blood-sugar level within normal limits.

"If a thorough study of the patient's emotional background is made, conflicts may be discovered that have a direct bearing on those symptoms which brought the patient to a doctor," the writer states.

"Even in illnesses which are usually considered to be mainly physical, the emotional element cannot be forgotten."

Dr. Campbell states that experiments have proven that emotional tensions have produced physical changes, and suggests that if such changes can occur during brief emotional episodes, more prolonged states would be able to produce even more pronounced physical changes. He states further that stomach ulcers are frequently considered a result of tension.

However, he says, all people with problems in their emotional life do not develop physical symptoms. Some, he says, are people with a constitutional difference for disease.

"Actually, it all amounts to the same thing," Dr. Campbell says.

Weather Engineers Prefer Blonde Hairs

BALTIMORE—Weather men prefer blondes.

At least those who make weather forecasting instruments do, according to engineers at the instrument division of Bendix Aviation Corp. Here's why:

Hair is used in humidity recorders. Humidity in strands like the strings on a banjo, it functions as the moisture-sensitive element of the instruments. No other substance, the engineers say, is so consistently sensitive to moisture under all conditions, or as accurate.

But it must be blonde hair. Brunette and red tresses are too coarse. Even blonde hair must be of high quality—straight, at least 10 inches long, unbleached and unscarred by curling irons.

VALUE OF LESSONS

Too many people mistake leisure for idleness. Nothing is further from the truth. Leisure is the freedom to do what one desires to do. Idleness is the inability, or disinclination, to do anything. Idleness is "boredom-hurting time," to say nothing of a spark of intelligence. Leisure, however, should be a stimulating change in activity, and from the necessity which binds most of us to make our activity provide us with dollars. — Owen Sound Sun-Times.

Who said hockey isn't getting rougher each season? To date in the National Hockey league, no less than five players have suffered broken legs or ankles this season. This list includes two members of the Montreal Canadiens and one each from Detroit Red Wings, Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks. So it shouldn't come as a surprise to anyone that the penalty rate this season is the highest ever. In fact, more minutes were spent in the cooler in the first half of the current season than in the whole of the 1945-46 season.

Professional hockey is making a comeback on the Pacific Coast for the third time in a quarter-century, its first appearance marked a "Golden Era" when hockey mentors like Frederic (Cyclone) Taylor, Frank Frederickson and Lester and Frank Patrick provided the sport's history with some of its most thrilling pages. The directors said the move was made to retain the best coast hockey players some of whom now are subject to splash of professional fame. # May Find Fabulously-Rich Diamond Lode In Northern Quebec

(By George Kitchen, Canadian Press Writer)

DON'T all rush, but we are about to unfold a multi-million-dollar secret. If it is mined hidden treasure — a fabulously-rich lode of diamonds, no less—which may be found with a mattering of geology, the ability to tap a few rocks on the noggin with a small hammer and the stamina to spend the next few years in the northern wilderness looking for the rocks.

The secret was imparted to us by an ancient and bearded professor at the international gathering of geologists held here and he placed the site of the lode "somewhere" in the wild country of Northern Quebec east of the James Bay.

The story of the diamonds goes back nearly 150 years to a time when people in the Northern United States began finding high-grade diamonds on their farms and in their back yards. They still find them today, although in smaller quantities.

By geological reasoning, it was determined that the diamonds were carried down from the northlands by the great ice and ice-mile-thick glaciers which inched over this continent between 20,000 and 500,000 years ago.

Through a complicated process of charting the various areas where diamonds have been found and scratches left on the rocks by the ice-age, they were carried by the glaciers, our geological friend has determined that the diamonds originate in the area east of James Bay.

In that region, he says, there must be a great treasure of diamond-bearing rock which will yield gems worth untold millions. He spent three months in the area last year and hopes to go again next summer in another effort to unearth the lode.

Just in case you plan to embark tomorrow or next day on a diamond-hunting expedition, you might keep an eye open for black volcanic rock. That apparently is the type which contains the magnets call the diamond "pipe", the vein through which the diamonds rise.

But the exact location of the James Bay area in which these rocks may occur is a secret known to the geologist alone.

One-Hand Drivers

In the bus and ray after the various hazards of motoring that seriously affect life and limb, little is said about one-hand driving. This is not meant facetiously. The hazard is a real one.

Modern cars steer so easily that there is a constant temptation to take one hand off the wheel, to drive with the other, perhaps even with but one or two fingers. Mental relaxation accompanies this practice. Any sudden emergency, a blowout, a child dashing between parked cars, a sudden skid, finds the driver physically unprepared, unable to cope with the situation.

Elementary, isn't it? Yet how many of us are completely free from criticism on this score? Both hands on the wheel, please! — Insurance Magazine.

We cannot refrain from referring to the very fine weather with which we have been blessed here in Alberta so far this winter. We do not keep a daily or a weekly record of te weather, but we do not recollect experiencing but very few of the very cold days or nights which we have had in the past. And as for the snow, well, we would estimate it at about from 15 to 18 inches on the level. There has been extremely warm days which have melted the snow and made the roads into sheets of ice. Added to these very satisfactory climatic conditions, we have not seen, as yet, any of the old-fashioned blizzards. True we have had winds and snow storms, but of a much milder type. This is generally speaking, a wondrous climate during the winter, yet it is a healthful climate, and notice received from residents who are wintering in warmer climates indicate that every climate and every latitude has its disadvantages. This province is new and unsubdued as yet, but it holds in store great things for the sticker, whom the whole world admires.

We hear a great deal of talk these days by economists, philosophers, and editors and preachers, etc., regarding the re-establishment of conditions existing before the war, and what not. One Alberta speaker has summed up the situation with the statement that the profiteer and the parasite must go. But this man's statement will not cause these two undesirables to go. I do not claim to have arrived at a solution whereby the profiteer and the parasite can be made "to go" to the place where they ought to go, and the best that we can say is that there is contained in this subject a problem which has baffled and yet baffles the best brains that the Creator has bestowed upon man. Nations, Governments, Unions, are coping with the problem, but are still a long way from a solution. Expon ents of the Christian Faith believe they have a solution and their answer is to the effect that if the entire world becomes Christianized every man will ne every other man's brother. But, granting that Christianizing every spot on earth will perform the job, may we ever expect to see this phenomenon accomplished? Then the world would seem almost impossible for real Christianity in a commercial form and practice. The way it works now is that the person who is so imbued with such principles and puts them into effect soon becomes a misfit in the commercial world—and so ver y often by other professing Christians. The proper study of mankind is man, and the study still remains as much of a study as it did years ago. The animal nature in mankind is such that we are still forced to study as much as ever in order to procure our economic necessities, as we did 2000 years ago. The only difference is that we are doing it under modern and civilized methods, and by doing despicable things more politely than did the people years ago. We try to make ourselves believe that we are making progress, but old human nature is there just the same. When people are forced to starve in the midst of plenty in peace time, and when "times are good" is only when soldiers are being killed on battlefields, it looks as if the paramount problem of the human race is not rearing a solution, and that "Peace on Earth, Goodwill toward Men," is only a platitude.

We have often wondered just what a farmer was, and here is a pretty good description of him:

A farmer is an individual who works thirteen hours a day for a living; if as undertaker gets him before he is fifty he don't even get that. He works from five in the morning till noon to pay his taxes and interest; he works all afternoon to pay the hired man and then after supper he goes out and works until dark to try and save enough to get his wife a new dress and hat, which she must have every five years whether she needs it or not. Some folks farm because they like to and cannot sleep after 4 a.m., others because they have to, but nobody ever heard of a farmer who wakes up in the morning in springtime amid the beautiful notes of the song birds and in the fall wakes up as the other notes are due. In the good old days he raised barley and hops to add a little joy to life. A farmer raises a big family to help him and when they are big enough they go to town to drive street cars. There are two kinds of farmers: the check book farmer and the dirt farmer. The former has perfume on his handkerchief and the latter on his overalls. One makes his manure in town then spends it in the country, the other is trying to save enough in the country [illegible] has spent in town. — Tergiversator Tim.

THE WORLD'S FUTURE IS BEING DECIDED NOW

OUR TOMORROWS depend on what happens to the world's children TODAY. In ruined lands around the globe there are millions of them in misery — scrambling for shreds of food on garbage dumps, shivering in rags. On the continent of Europe, half the children born since the war are already dead of malnutrition. Those who survive — there and elsewhere — are desperately in need of food and clothing. They need schooling, too, for their neglected minds grow as sick as their withered bodies.

They are the future . . .

If they are not saved, our world is lost!

Canadian Appeal for Children is now conducting its campaign to meet the challenge of these desperate and immediate needs. This is a campaign by the people of Canada, with a minimum objective of $10,000,000 to provide food, clothing and school supplies for the children — safeguard the health of expectant and nursing mothers — in devastated lands around the world.

Wherever possible, all donations will be used for the purchase of Canadian goods, and the distribution of goods will be under the direction of responsible United Nations operating agencies.

Your help is needed now. You sympathize. You want to give. But goodwill and good wishes are not enough. Since you may not be canvassed, don't let failure to set be on your conscience. Any BANK will accept your donations. Turn your sympathy and good wishes into a tangible contribution — go to your bank now and give.

Palomar Telescope May Reveal Many Mysteries Of Universe

By John P. Bentmore CP(C)

LOS ANGELES, Chil.—In only a few months, many men—who theme of interest as the most inquisitive venture in the universe—will peer curiously right into farther than ever has been able to see before at least six worlds—6,000,000,000,000 universes—miles into interstellar space!

The ruminous Mount Palomar telescope, being built since 1930, is scheduled to begin early operations at the 6,000-foot high Palomar mountain, southeast of here.

Scientists around the world hereof a wish of relief recently when word was flashed that the nerve-wracking 200-mile track trip of the telescope's 20 ton 200-inch mirror has been successfully negotiated from the optical observatories of the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena to the installation site.

The new eye may dwarf all that human beings have known heretofore about the infinite spaces surrounding them. In a world newly made acquainted daily sub-conscious through the unlocking of the secret of atomic energy—the power of the universe—the new instrument may reveal information so staggering as to be difficult to comprehend.

Road Slug To Finish

With bucket journeys to the moon no longer consigned entirely to fantastic imagination, the new instrument may also enable scientists to provide a road map" for the first trip into interstellar space. The 1,000 satellite laterally will be moved on gigantic rugged carrier wheels but outside the window!

The riddle of whether there at life on some of earth's sister planets in the solar system, mainly Mars and Venus may come close to being solved.

The even more challenging wonder as to whether they may be other inhabited heavenly bodies like the earth revolving about some of the countless other suns in the universe also may be explored further.

Far from discounting the possibility of life like ours elsewhere, astronomers speculate that there must be hundreds of millions of stars in the Milky Way which, like our sun, have planets revolving around them.

If any of them have temperatures like that of Earth, atmosphere containing plenty of oxygen and water, then the odds may be heavy in favor of life existing elsewhere similar to that of the Earth.

By hooking up to the new telescope some of the newly developed spectroscopic tools as the spectrograph which the Russian astronomer, Gabriel Tikhov, recently described as instruments convincing him that vegetation grows on Mars approaching that of the northern pine and juniper tree belts of Russia, the first real data on the presence of life like that of Earth on other planets may be gained.

Only slightly less astonishing than what the telescope may reveal to us will be facts of its own creation. It will be a big brother to the great Mount Wilson telescope with its 100-inch mirror, which has been the world's largest until its size was doubled by the new arrival.

Both are the brain children of the late Dr George Ellery Hale, who did not live to see his greatest project get at the California Institute of Technology, and represents the lifelong dream of the ever-curious scientists who even before the Palomar telescope gets into operation are busying to find a yet greater and more spectacular way to study the heavens.

Alberta Boys And Girls Swap Lessons

The Alberta housewife of tomorrow may not only be able to bake a cherry pie but also to fix heating taps and mend electric cords if the Edmonton school board has its way.

Three years ago the board inaugurated a compulsory exchange system—the boys took a homemaking course and the girls went into the school shop. Now the seventh year is carrying it on.

Grades—an average of about 300 a year—are involved. And to continue the idea on a voluntary basis—but they are certain the response will be enthusiastic.

The boys spend their seven weeks learning the rudiments of cooking, sewing and mending. They learn to make pancakes, darn socks and plan meals for two days. During the sewing period they make carpenters aprons and also learn to use and care for a sewing machine. And to top it off they are taught cross and chain stitching to mark towels and garments.

While the boys are busy going domestic the girls learn to use tools, make minor household repairs and experiment with other wood, metal or leather.

W. H. Swift, superintendent of schools, says the big majority of students took part with great zest. "It proved to pin himself down as to whether the course pattern better suited the parents of safety—Becker.

Portable Sawing Machine

WOOD SAWING is a job which is often necessary on the farm and many farmers use machines they have made for themselves. Plans for making small portable saws for cuttin are frequently asked for at this time of year.

The accompanying plan is expected to meet the requirements of many inquirers. There should be no difficulty in arranging the gearing on some table described in this article on the lobsters of a wagon or sleigh for portability.

For the main members of the frame use two planks about 2x7 one inch or edge and frame into them cross members of the same width as each a way as to make a frame which will resist twisting. A good, careful job of mortising should accomplish this. But the engine, which in this case is a used car engine, crosswise near the front end of the frame and build the saw table on the very end so that the saw will be operated from that end. This design has a sliding saw table. The engine pulley and saw pulley will project over one side of the frame For a 3-inch saw a 5-inch pulley on the engine shaft and one of 6½ or 7 inches on the saw mandrel will be correct.

"Sports College" Helping Young Canadians In Game Of Hockey

National Hockey League president, Clarence Campbell, recently took time off from his duties as head of the major league hockey to tell the inside details of thousands of boys' lives interested in the push-chasing sport some ways of a vanishing type to Canada.

A former big-time referee himself of the N.H.L. Campbell is particularly concerned this season with the development of hockey prospects. He thinks that better hockey requires the co-operation of every player, coach, and that most rule infractions result from lack of knowledge rather than deliberately dirty play.

Campbell was appearing on one of the weekly broadcasts from the "sports college" and his talk was keyed to the Queen philosophy of handing out practical advice with a big-time sport reasoning. He—or rather Foster Hewitt who gave the N.H.L. every opportunity to explore only the highlights of his subject, however, and in an interview with Lloyd "Ace" Percival, Dead Coach of Canada, began to be discussed the matter at greater length.

"Tough" hockey and high-scoring, where grace is somewhat sacrificed during the war years are on their way out, Campbell says, as players with greater hockey brains take to the sport. His advice to young packers everywhere is to concentrate on developing their skill and efficiency. He also thinks that checking is very primarily to blame for unduly roughness, that where a player is properly taught the game, will soon learn that goals are scored or prevented mainly by accurate passing and shooting and that it will be necessary for the rule book, Campbell points out.

Referees also have advice for boys in the N.H.L. boss, who spent several seasons looking whistles for the big time himself, joined the Canadian Army in his native Edmonton. Good

HAD GOOD REASON BUT COMPLICATED

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Louise Hepler, 26, had a good—but complicated—explanation when the police wanted to know why he and his mother were lugging a bathroom sink around at 3 a.m.

Louise it seems, caught his middle right finger in the sink's bowl drain. He and his mother, Bertha, decided to remove the sink, but still couldn't get the finger out

The only thing to do, apparently, was to put firemen on the job. Louise carried the bathroom sink alone, as his mother had to cross along—that was when the police mistook them for a pair of bathroom burglars.

When their load was straightened out, police, firemen and a male nurse who responded with hot soup on the finger all pulled in chorus to remove the sink.

Somebody, finally, thought of a cold chisel and a hammer. That broke the sink connection.

Louis went to hospital, had his scraped finger repaired, took the sink back home and answered it his police.

By then it was breakfast and time to go to work.

KEEP BABY AWAY FROM COLD SUFFERERS

Parents of a young baby should be on their guard to keep the baby who has a cold or sore throat or flu, Dr. Elizabeth Chant Robertson warns in the current issue of Health.

"Most colds stop your baby's growth temporarily and some of them may make him dangerously ill," she says. "Even a young baby a cold is much more serious than in a big, healthy child.

"Colds are caused by a small virus which cannot be seen with an ordinary microscope. Later in the course of a cold larger germs, such as streptococci and pneumococci, are usually responsible for its persistence or for various complications, such as ear infections, bronchitis and pneumonia.

Colds can be spread by direct contact, such as by kissing or by shaking hands which have been contaminated by germs from the nose or mouth of another. They also are spread by coughing and sneezing.

Naturally, any person who is interested in reducing the spread of colds would not kiss a baby on the lips or cheek, would use disposable paper handkerchiefs, would wash his hands thoroughly after blowing his nose and would cover his nose and mouth when sneezing or coughing," Dr. Robertson.

Clothing hovers resistance to colds. A child should be dressed to suit the temperature, both indoors and out. If too many clothes are put on an infant or child, his skin becomes moist and he is liable to become chilled easily. "If you slip your hand down his back inside his clothes and find it moist, you know he is too warm and you should take off some of his clothing," Dr. Robertson said.—Toronto Globe and Mail.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE LUCKIEST MAN

By VALERIE CULLEN

APPRESSE good luck coins are a lot of foolishness!" Dan muttered to the waitress by his side. "Genuinely a customer passes on at least one a day to me. I should be the luckiest man alive according to that, but I'm not."

It was closing time, and Dan, a big, fine, red unattractive man in his early thirties, was estimating the day's profits at the restaurant's cash register. In the soft darkness outside twinkling neon lights had only by one flashed on.

The one customer left, a nondescript young man, sat nervously smoking a cigarette, flicking the ashes too frequently, and watching the outside street intently.

Irritated by Dale's indulgent smile, Dan continued, "Look at these old Indian head pennies. And here are some French and English coins—useful souvenirs and silly superstition."

"That's a lot of changes you got there, mister," Martied, Dan looked up to see that the stranger had moved another step from the table and was now standing somewhat closer.

"Oh, not so much," Dan replied slowly. His and the stranger's eyes were locked in a duel—Dan's eyes questioning and alert, the stranger's eyes ruthless and bright. Still trying to hold his gaze, Dan let his hand drop slowly below the counter, his fingers touching a drawer where he kept a revolver.

"That's enough," the man sudden ly shouted, his crashed the side of a rigid palm down on Dan's forearm; a gun appeared suddenly in the left hand. Dan winced in pain.

"Now get the money and rob a hard-working man!" Dells snapped out of her feminine protective instincts momentarily, and her eyes overcoming caution. Long ago desperated by Dan's brutality and lack of love, when she first came to work in his restaurant, she had been a girl of hope and pushed her affection for him into the background. Although his nurse she was no raving beauty, she was young and pretty in a whole some way. Men were kind to her, proved love her han cause furiously at him.

Disregarding the gun, she leaned over and slapped the stranger hard as she could. Dan reached for the gun at the same time. With a shove the stranger sent Dells reeling back against the wall and then hammed the gun against Dan, who was white with anger, not for himself but for Della's treatment.

"Thank you're smart, that you'll be man severed. "In the cute blonde your wife?"

"No, and she's none of your business."

"Pretty cute waitress. I'd like to pay her more attention but I'm in a hurry this time. So just hand me all the money in the cash register—and fast, mister. Remember, no funny business this time either!"

Amazed by the money Dale his large cent purbrie, the man walked backwards to the door, quickly hopped in to a car at the curb and disappeared around the corner.

"Did he hurt you, Della?" Dan demanded anxiously.

Dell touched the breath out of me. Are you all right?"

Looking at each other with concern, they both were suddenly swept with a feeling of fond remembrance, and something else that had not existed before.

"We'd better call the police right away," Della said, wrenching herself back to the present with an effort.

"I'm afraid we won't stand a chance of catching him. I don't think the car license because it was dark." Dan picked up the phone and gave detailed de-scriptions to the police.

When he finished, he said, "Della, Can I drive you home tonight? You must feel pretty nervous."

Della looked surprised with bur-ered eyes. She knew they both felt that night was different from the other nights he had casually dropped her off at her home. Each night they talked hesitatingly and then more freely, and she came to look forward to seeing him very shy underneath his calm poised exterior

She was almost 30 years old and had conversed because it had brought her pain.

The next morning when she reported to work, they smiled at each other with the same friendly and understanding look and almost simultaneously said, "Good morning." Pat, who greeted them cheerfully from behind the counter.

Say, Dan, you come down to the station to identify a man they picked up who answered your description."

"We watched restaurants and shops in this area. Then we got a report a man had bought a new suit of clothes and paid for it with a roll of those foreign and Indian head pennies you mentioned. We didn't even notice he had them"

"Well, I'll be," Dan drawled in amazement. He looked at Della for a long moment and then laughed. "I think those extra bright pennies make a lucky man!" Pat failed to understand the unspoken joke that had passed between the two.

Governor-General To Visit Brazil

OTTAWA — Viscount Alexander, Canada's Governor-General, has accepted with the King's approval, an invitation by the Brazilian government to visit that American republic in June Prime Minister Mackenzie King has announced.

He will be accompanied by Viscountess Alexander.

Mr King said the Governor-General's acceptance of the invitation has been conveyed to the Brazilian government through the Brazilian ambassador to Ottawa, by whom the invitation was transmitted.

Viscount Alexander had the Brazilian expeditionary force under his command during the war years when, as field marshal, he served as supreme commander of Allied forces in the Mediterranean theatre.

This will be the first time a Canadian Governor-General has ever visited South America while in office, although vice-regal visits to the United States have been frequent with increasing frequency within recent years.

Your Implement Dealer Says:

CULTIVATION: Late Settlers

Throughout the Irish century the methods of cultivation on the continental continent in big farms, the European methods. The main reason for this lay in the difficulties of transportation, the markets and the isolation of the Ireland farmers relieved little encouragement for increasing production although improved cultivation implements kept rewarding pro-ducers and soon the older settlements began to suffer. It was then that the implement manufacturers began to supply better machines and better methods of cultivation so that agriculture could keep forward to the high standards it has achieved

Progress In Research

RECENT PROGRESS IN SCIENTIFIC research in Canada was outlined in the year-end review of the National Research Council, made public at the end of 1947. At a time when the products of Canadian farms and factories are in demand at home and abroad, it is interesting to know that the Research Council is constantly carrying on investigations into new possibilities of applying the results of scientific research to industry. Problems now being dealt with by the staff of more than 2,300 workers in the various laboratories of the council, include those related to food chemistry, refrigeration, radar, aircraft, motion pictures, heating lubrication, textiles, rubber construction and industrial processes.

* * * * *

Important New Field Of Work

In addition, there is the important work being done in the new field of atomic energy, in which radio-active materials are being produced to be used in medical and industrial research. An outstanding development in this field has been in connection with the work of Dr. J. W. Spinks of the University of Saskatchewan, and formerly with the staff of the atomic energy plant. By the use of radio-active materials Dr. Spinks has found out a great deal about the growth of wheat plants and has added much to the farmers' knowledge of this important product. Work is also being done by scientists of the research council on refrigeration storage of meats, the processing of dairy products and of liquid and dried eggs, and on the production of anti-freeze and other metal materials from low grade wheat and surplus crops.

* * * * *

Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, president of the council, suggested recently that at least one per cent. of the national income should be spent on scientific research. He further suggested that half of this might be supplied by the government and the rest by Canadian industries, in furthering the applications of science to the processing of our raw materials. Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe stated not long ago that Canada is now making more than 200 products which had never been made prior to the Second World War, and he added that there are few manufactured products which cannot be produced as cheaply in Canada as anywhere in the world, assuming that there was an adequate market for them. Experience has already taught us that science can be of great practical value. If we are to continue to advance, and to solve the new problems which constantly arise in production, whether in mining with agriculture or in our factories, it is apparent that scientific research is necessary. The National Research Council is continuing a great deal to industrial development in Canada and it is to be hoped that it will have the means to continue to expand, and to provide producers with new knowledge and improved methods for preparing Canadian goods for market both here and in other countries.

Planes Drop Grain For Pheasants

WINNIPEG Game birds in southwestern Manitoba have not been forgotten this cold and severe winter, as grain is being dropped from an airplane to provide food for them. Through the efforts of members of the Melita Game and Fish association, G. Swaddle, game guardian of Virden, has been flown over the flourished district by C. Brodaway to drop grain for the pheasants. The grain was packed in bags, each about 10 pounds to a bag, which broke when striking the ground

Two sweet young things were discussing affairs of the heart.

"So you've accepted Tom?" asked Betty. "I suppose he didn't happen to mention that he had previously proposed to me?"

"Well, not exactly," replied the other blandly; "but he did confess that he'd thought a lot of silly things before he met me."

Says Auto Bonspiel Will Wear Out It Too Many Held

WINNIPEG. — Canadian Curling Associations must take a firm view of it, but Grant Watson of Winnipeg, winner of the recent Ripewin, Sask., automobile bonspiel and three member of Canadian championship rinks, says the Ripewin spiel is "much tougher" than curling for the Canada Silk.

Quizzed by Scotty (Winnipeg Free Press) Harper, Watson explained that while there were 121 rinks entered in the Ripewin affair not more than 10 of them were capable of winning the cars, but six of those 10 came from Winnipeg.

Harper said the Ripewin spiel made money this year, with more than $5,000 coming in through broadcasting rights while good crowds watched the games each day.

Although the idea of a "coumnerlimited" bonspiel was born in conversations curling associations, no move was made to hold the proceedings. But if rumors are correct that other cities and towns are talking of putting on the, that type of bonspiel will wear itself out

Harper said he got the name of these affairs that will kill it," Watson told Harper.

Anyway, Ripewin officials are going right ahead with preparations for their third annual spiel, with ideas of increasing prize which this year totalled around $23,000

Expect To Complete All-Weather Highway To Yellowknife Area

Where Road Is Finished It Will Value In X Rose For Settlement

EDMONTON. — A $4,000,000 highway, started in the summer of 1946, and expected to be completed this year, will usher in a new era for Canada's northland.

Only 75 miles of road remain to be completed in the Grimshaw-Hay River highway. This all-year, all-weather road stretches for 325 miles along the bank of the Hay River, through a wilderness of forest and muskeg between Grimshaw in the Peace River country and Hay River post on the south shore of Great Slave Lake.

When the highway is officially opened next August, Yellowknife and adjacent mining areas will be served for the first time in history with a first-class gravelled highway over which heavy freight and supplies may be shipped the year round from Edmonton and other north-country supply points.

One of the settlers' successes in northern industry laid back enormous progress of the work last year. It had originally been planned to complete the highway before freeze-up.

The permafrost problem, one that plagued United States engineers, also seems while building the Alaska highway and the Canol pipeline road encountered the picture in this highway too.

Frozen Ground

Permafrost is the portion of ground that remains permanently frozen in the north from varying depths down toward the surface. Building roads by ordinary methods results in unsettled sections of the country is of no use in the Arctic and sub-Arctic regions. The problem was solved by building the road from gravel and clay pits so that the highway would not carve-in if the warm sun started thawing the frost in the sheet more period.

THE CARPENTER AND COLLEGE GRADUATES

Does education overrate? This was pointed question was asked and answered under singular circumstances at a banquet recently held in Lancaster, England A man who had never in his life made a speech addressed a gathering of college graduates, and he made a hit. The article dealing with this was published from the pen of Alexander Irvine in the Teacher's world. It is as follows:

"About one hundred and fifty years ago, when the first railway was being made, I was present at a dinner given by the engineers who were responsible for the work. Among the guests were a number of navvies, and it was suggested, more as a joke than with any serious intent to invite the latter to address the company. If they had imagined for a moment that he would accept the invitation he never would have done so. He accepted, however, and the committee decided to let the chairman get on with the job.

"The dinner took place in one of the world's greatest hotels. The banqueting hall was known far and wide for its artistic arrangements and luxurious furniture. The young men were dressed in conventional evening dress. Most of them were future captains of industry. During the course of the dinner there was a good deal of joking and some speculation about the prowess of the navvies. When the dinner was over the chairman rapped for order and introduced the speaker.

"Gentlemen, he began, "I have never made a speech in my life up! I do not intend to begin now. I have something to say, however, and I am going to. I will follow Lenten's example and be brief. Stand up straight, speak out boldly, and sit down quickly.

"We are one of the famous banqueting halls of the world. Behind me is a building of which the architect was a genius. Around me are pictures and works of art which are valued in these days as we were about this room. No such things existed his hands. Those who made them were ignorant of the three days, but we live in another age, an age of art and luxury. From the lowest form of day labour to the highest form of art, whatever command or acquire of at least a hundred forms of human work.

"Take this tablecloth, to begin with. It is of most exquisite work manship. It involves weaving - to go no further back - bleaching, designing, designing. It is a damask flow, beautiful and most pleasing to the eye. I want to ask you a question. Is there anyone here who knows from personal experience anything about the labour involved? Have any of you ever contributed any labour to the manufacturing of table linen? I am serious, gentlemen. If any of you have, I would like him to say so. There was absolute silence. I continued then, he continued, that the making of such a thing is beyond your ken.

"Let me draw your attention to the examples of pottery here. Surely the men and women who produce such beautiful things are artists. What I say it must be for a man to hold such a thing in his hand complete and say - I made it! Many forms of labour are involved here, also the training of clay, the cutting, fashioning, painting, burning and baking and finishing. If there is a man here who has ever touched this form of labour, let him answer. No one!

"There are samples of the most beautiful work in the world. They also involve much labor and are art. It is a unique industry in itself. I would be rather surprised to find a man among us who had ever touched this industry.

"In this way he went over the silver and steel as the subject of his talk. Nothing escaped his notice it drew attention to the carpet and the rugs on the floor to the curtains and drapes - the great windows to the mural decorations executed by the greatest living mural painter. When he had done over round of the things in the room he turned to the table.

"There are cut flowers here, he said. Most of you spend years in the study of botany; but I bet that few of you could undertake to give us a complete classification of what we see and enjoy on the table. There was a disposition to laugh, but he wiped the smile from every face by quietly saying: perhaps you are to be congratulated that you are at an age when a measure of humour covers a multitude of sins, but I personally cannot enjoy that which gives me no pain. I am a representative navvy only man, perhaps, among many. And you whether the system we call education endures? The silence he came oppressive. The men were thinking.

"Perhaps, he continued, I should have put you more at ease by telling you at the beginning that I have never experienced the joy of fashioning articles with my own hands. Not anything useful for that matter. Here we are then, a man who has never been a university has set its stamp. We produce nothing to eat, we could reach nothing by hand in the making of anything we see around us, and the four years a college course. Is the suggestion that in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the four years at a college education is to merge the men who participate in it for the work he has given or ought to give up to the navvy.

"A time-keeper performs a useful function, so does a cash register, but the function of education is not to turn out time-keepers or cash registers. It has been truly said that the two Bachelors of Art ever wrecked a mid-ocean they could not be a specimen to save their lives! Many would be equally helpless in any critical emergency where practical knowledge of some kind was needed. Around us was imperatively necessary. A standard of value, therefore, is not a solution, and we do not much by stating that the system is to be changed. What is needed is a smattering of languages, of mathematics and history is a system that believes the system of cramming these things to pass an examination is pernicious. So having been asked for the first time in my life to make an address, I made it an opportunity to utter my protest.

"Education is to prepare and equip for the duties and responsibilities of life - and to turn out industrial and commercial bosses, padres, and cash registers. I could hardly be guilty of in taking up your time with these observations about it, the point I want to say this: Most of you are destined to be masters of men. You will organize and mobilize their labour and you will oversee it. When you see men, many men, engaged in creating beautiful things with their hands I would like you to remember that it was my opinion that actual labour in the mines and factories and industries is an infinitely nobler occupation than that of the overseer. My mind than clipping coupons and living on the revenue of other men.

"It will not come in our day but the world will ultimately come to understand that the training of the hand is as necessary as the training of the body. Why should the one considered an unthinkable thing that a blacksmith or a bricklayer should need an education? Why should not the men consider it degrading to handle tools and make useful and beautiful things? Why should a University not provide such a thing as that it was my opinion that actual labour in the mines and factories and industries is an infinitely nobler occupation than that of the overseer. My mind than clipping coupons and living on the revenue of other men.

"He pushed back his chair and stood a few feet from the table. His face betrayed deep emotion. His voice became wonderfully soft and irresistibly appealing. The college men had been interested: they were now spellbound. He raised his hand and went through the motions of moulding and shaping a certain.

"Gentlemen, he said, may I intrude to you a young Galilean who is a master builder - Jesus of Nazareth

It was a weird act. The silence became oppressive. As if addressing an actual person of flesh and blood he continued:

"Master, may I ask you, as I asked those young men, whether there is anything in this room that you could make with your hands as other men have done?

There was a pause, a brief moment or two, then with a slow sweeping stride of an Artemis, he went to the end of the table, and took the tablecloth in his hand, and made bare the corner and carved ash leg of the great table In that position he looked into the faces of the men and said The Master says, Yes I could make the table." ## Your Hardware Dealer Says:

FINISHING TOUCHES

In regard to the finishing of a building no detail calls for greater consideration than the selection and accurate fixing of suitable ironmongery which includes the hinges, bolts, locks, door and window fittings, and the many varieties of metal finishings required for the completion of the building. The task of selection belongs to the employer or the architect and it is to the hardware dealer that he turns for willing advice and purchase. The hardware man has a complete stock of all these various home finishings and is skilled in the knowledge of which is most suitable to your particular needs

Of hinges, the variety termed 'butts' are in general use for hanging doors and are so called from being titted to the butt edge of the door. Lifting butts are made with a removable pin to enable the door to be removed and replaced without unscrewing. Rising butts have oblique joints which cause the door to rise and clear a thick carpet and yet make a close joint with the floor when shut.

FARM ACCOUNT BOOK AVAILABLE

How much may a farmer claim for depreciation in his farm equipment?

This is but one of several questions that is solved and answered by a new Farm Account Book now available at all Post Offices. The new book provides an easy way to keep farm records of receipts and expenses connected with farm operations. Every farmer knows what it is to have a feeling that somewhere along the line of his yearly operations the profits are not what they might be. And he is usually the first to admit, too, that without accurate records it is impossible to find out just where he is losing money.

Keeping records becomes an easy job with this Farm Account Book. Complete forms are provided for nearly every type of transaction and only a few minutes are required each week to keep accurate records. Expenses for feeds and seeds, cash and board for hired help, sales of livestock, grain and other farm products—these are all included. To make the Account Book even more helpful each of the forms provided is numbered to correspond with the items on Income Tax Returns. This enables the farmer to take full advantage of all the deductions and exemptions he is allowed by law.

A free copy of this Farm Account Book is available for every farmer at his local post office.

Heavy Loads Drawn Over Alaska Road

Oil Refinery Equipment Being Removed From Whitehorse To Ladue

EDMONTON. — The 10 heaviest motor vehicles in Canada have been rolling night and day along 919 miles of the Alaska Highway between Whitehorse, Y.T., and Dawson Creek in British Columbia this winter. They are a vital link in a transport chain that is lifting a 7,000-ton oil refinery back, stick and barrel from Whitehorse, where it was built for the United States army 1,250 miles to the rapidly developing Ladue oilfield just south of Edmonton.

Manned by two drivers—who work in shifts to keep the vehicles constantly in motion—these dread-naughts of the highway have 21 forward speeds and weigh 30 tons empty. The tortuous Alaska Highway will not support their crunching weight of 60 tons fully loaded until late in the winter when the roadbed is frozen solid.

When Imperial Oil Company officers discovered that buying the refinery and moving it to Ladue would enable them to go into production 18 months sooner than if they built a brand-new one, they decided to bring the mountain to Mahomet. They paid $1,000,000 for the "war surplus" plant, which covered close to 100 acres, and before they're done it will cost something like $7,000,000 just about the price of a new plant. It's a case of overcoming post-war shortage of materials

Takes Steady Nerves

A Los Angeles contracting firm stepped in to handle the transport job. By late November company officials reported that 60 per cent of the refinery was dismantled and 25 railway carloads had made the trip from the truck-to-rail transfer point at Dawson Creek in the new 300-acre site in Edmonton's outskirts

About one-half of the 270 men working on the project are preparing the new refinery site. Ninety are dismantling at Whitehorse and 40 are employed on the spectacular trucking operation.

It takes steady nerves and a special kind of skill to pilot these big diesels over the lonely Alaska Highway, which was blasted and hewn through rugorous country as a wartime emergency measure. Scheduled time of 36 hours has been set for the Whitehorse-Dawson Creek run. When the going is good, one driver on a relay go-like bunk remained behind the wheel.

When freeze-up permits hauling of the heaviest loads, company engineers will face a tricky problem at the 2,000-foot wooden bridge that crosses an arm of Teslin Lake, 115 miles south of Whitehorse. The bridge just won't take 60 tons so the engineers are going to make an "ice bridge." They will build another thickness of ice on what's already there, by alternate flooding and freezing—the same way a rink is made. When the ice is thick enough, the 60-ton trucks will roll across.

Ducks Organize Eight-Hour Shift

RIVERSIDE, Ont. — A flock of ducks, fearful of seeing the last bit of water frozen over has been working in shifts here to keep ice from forming on a 15-foot square pond in the Windsor suburb.

The pond is a dumping of a water-filled ditch on Riverside Drive, opposite a seed grain company

Every eight hours a group of eight to 12 ducks take up the job of swimming in the open water relieving the previous eight-hour shift.

By so doing, the ducks keep the water constantly in motion and break up ice soon as it forms.

Their strategy works, too, because every other pond is frozen over.

DISCUSSES PROBLEM OF SENDING ROCKET TO MOON AND RETURNING

TORONTO — The main problem in space travel is elementary — it's getting back safely

Dr. J. A. Campbell of Edmonton, mathematics professor at the University of Alberta, speaking to the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, said: "Before you take off on a rocket flight to the Moon or Mars first demonstrate your ability to get your spaceship outside the earth's atmosphere, maneuver it there and then return safely to earth.

U.S. army officers also had made calculations for dispatching a pakiless rocket to the Moon. The trouble was that a speed of seven miles a second is probably necessary to escape the earth's orbit, and best developments of the German V-2 rockets were no faster than one mile a second.

Another problem, of course, would be to get the rocket ship back to earth after it had allegedly reached the Moon and still another problem would be to get it to talk or make some other kind of report when it did get back.

Perhaps the scientists could send a man to the Moon—but could they bring him back?

$20,000,000 Tractor Order From U.S.A.

The first shipment was made this month and subsequent deliveries are scheduled at a weekly rate valued at $500,000 until the order is completed.

PRINCESS ELIZABETH WILL NOT TRAVEL THIS YEAR

The German V-2 rocket bomb travelled over 3,000 miles a hour.

Health LEAGUE presents TOPICS of CANADA VITAL INTEREST

VITAMIN C

Because of the fact that a source of vitamin C is readily available in citrus fruits the Canadian public perhaps has generally failed to realize that there are other sources of this vitamin which is necessary in any diet it is stated in Health News, monthly publication of the Health League of Canada

For instance there are three domestic vegetables which are relatively cheap and available throughout most of the year potatoes turnips and cabbage which contain vitamin C. These three, if properly prepared and properly cooked can be used to supplement any other vitamin C source

It is estimated that 3½ ounces of raw cabbage, or properly cooked turnips or properly cooked potatoes each contain more than one-half the estimated daily vitamin C requirement of an adult. It would be well to remember, however, that there is little vitamin content in these vegetables during winter-long storage

Other foods in quantities of 3½ ounces which contain enough or more than enough vitamin C to take care of a person's estimated daily requirement are cooked Mac currants, red and green peppers and raw parsley. Others which contain at least half the required vitamin C include liver and canned strawberries. Tomato juice and canned raspberries also are fairly good vitamin C sources

It should be remembered, however, that overcooking and mashing largely destroys the vitamin C content of foods. Thus particular vitamin is lost in water and mashers when it comes in contact with air For instance, potatoes should be cooked with their skins on—cabbage should be eaten raw or cooked with a minimum amount of water—for a maximum length of time—enough vitamin C to take care of a person's estimated daily requirement could be cooked Mac currants, red and green peppers and raw parsley. All vegetables should be placed in boiling water—not in cold water and then brought to the boil

Much more of the vitamin C content will be retained if cooking is done with a pressure cooker

Sons Of Jack Miner Are Carrying On At Kingsville Sanctuary

—By EARL W. BOSSELL

If you would like to see a spectacle such as only Mother Nature can stage, drive to the sanctuary of the Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation near Kingsville, Ontario, and watch the fall flight of the Canada geese.

No committee during the two weeks in November, the fall flock will be at its peak at that time, and this is stage a real show for you. There will be thousands of geese just above from their nesting grounds in Hudson Bay concentrating at Miners before making further south for the winter.

The sanctuary is not open on Sundays so you will have to go on a week-day. It will be best to arrive about 2 p.m., so you'll be on hand when the "show" begins. You can take your place comfortably in the covered blind and have a full view of the pond.

Spectacle In Formation

At 4 p.m. men in wagons will scatter feed around the edges of the water. When they have finished, you'll see the geese, a sky full of them in formation, each squadron led by a wise leader who knows the flyways and landing places like a veteran of the transcontinental airlines. They come in from Lake Erie or from the retreat fields beyond the rows of evergreens to feast on the corn and forage in the green rye along the shores.

And as you stand there, remember that those are wild geese, not usually friendly with human beings. Remind yourself that they have come to the sanctuary because they learned long ago that Jack Miner and his three sons can be trusted—and because Mr. Miners furnish them with food as well as safety.

It is Miner is dead now, he passed away in November, 1944. But Manly and Jasper and William (Ted) Miner are carrying on, making the place even better than before. They're working hard, without a cost of salary giving freely of their time and energy to help up and improve the sanctuary started by their father.

Jack Miner, a manufacturer of brick and drain tile with a small plant outside Kingsville on a few acres that furnished good clay for his products, began luring geese into his backyard in 1904. He excavated a sizable area, pumped it full of water to form a pond and set out corn and food. Within a few years, thousands of geese were stopping there on their way north in the spring to feast on Miner's corn. But none came in the fall. It required ten years of effort before any geese could be induced to pay an autumn visit. Now they come every year, both spring and fall. The April visitors, however, are not the same as those that come in November.

The geese you will see next month have flown just in the making of the west side of Hudson Bay. They began assembling at Miner's lake in October, banding up to a peak about November 20; then they head from Kinoyevitis into Ohio, and from there to a refuge in the marshland at Currituck Sound, near the junction of the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. It is called the Mississippi flight.

The April flight comes from North Carolina and Maryland, stops at Miners for several weeks to fatten up on the abundant corn, then heads north to the east side of Hudson Bay. This is known as the Atlantic flight.

How do the Miners know where the geese come from and where they go? The answer to that, of course, is the banding system. At the sanctuary you'll see a large wire cage extending through the centre of the main pond, from one side to the other. The sides of the cage are open. Jasper Miner, the youngest son, lives in a look-out station a few feet on the edge of the pond. When enough geese swim inside to fill a large crate, he pulls a lever that lets down the sides. Then Jasper and a few helpers run in and drive the geese a few at a time into a small corral. There they put bands on the birds' legs and let them go.

Originated Banding

You have heard about those bands. Jack Miner started it back in 1909, one of the first men ever to try it. Each band is imprinted with the date of the banding, the Miner's name and address, and a (Biblical) quotation. When a hunter shoots one of the geese and finds the band, he notifies Miner, so the sanctuary knows where the shooting took place. The data is carefully recorded. The sanctuary has assembled more information on the whole "flyway" begins. You can study your place comfortably in the covered blind and have a full view of the pond.

Your Implement Dealer Says:

As the plow was improved and new methods of cultivation gradually began to replace the old, new types of cultivating machinery were produced. Agriculture was then regarded as a science and many institutions and experimental farms sprung up where new methods of cultivation and new types of machines were developed. It is on some of these farms that the new machines are tested and that you will get most efficient machines of their type that the known methods of manufacturing at the present time are able to produce.

It is no wonder then that the heads of modern cultivation implements are the men that are your implement dealer knows the efficiency of each machine that he sells, and only to be able to tell you of its mechanical operation but he can also show you how that machine will help your cultivation. Bring your problems to your implement dealer, he is able to answer them for you.

49 RINKS ENTERED AT SEDGEWICK 44VENT SPIEL

Forty-three rinks were entered at the annual Sedgewick Open Spiel last week, and in spite of the most adverse weather, the annual affair was one of a smash fashion. The town of Killam had the largest entry with nine rinks in play. The rink coming the furthest was the Art Kissinger rink of Wainwright.

An interesting recklist to the entry list was the Reed rink from Lougheed, made up of Lute Reed as skip with Pop throwing third rocks and his two grandsons as second and lead. The youngest curler to be seen in action was Marvin Rose whose curling was not bad!

Competition was keen and it was rumored that there is not often so many extra end games as there was this year.

The Rising Cost Of Living

RISING LIVING COSTS HAVE BEEN CAUSING concern in all parts of Canada during the past few months. On December 1st, 1947, the cost of living index stood at 146, and it is expected that when the next report of living costs is issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics it will show a further increase due to the continued advances in the prices of some commodities. Some time ago, officials of the Dominion Department of Finance predicted that the cost of living index would not likely go higher than 145 but it now appears that it may exceed that figure considerably by 1949, which was the peak year of inflation in Canada following the First Great War, the cost of living index was 140.4, which was a record for high living costs in the Dominion. In calculating the present cost of living index, the base figure of 100 represents prices between the years 1935 and 1939.

Rapid Rate Of increase

The figure given for December 1st, 1947, shows that the cost of living is now almost 50% per cent higher than it was in the basic period, and that it has risen 18 points in the past year. Since April 1947, the increase was shown to be 15.3 points indicating that there was a rapid advance in prices between April and December of last year. Although the prices of almost all goods have risen, increases in the price of food are believed to be the main cause of the rapid rise in the cost of living index. Such decisive upward trends in living costs indicate inflation, which is apparently an unavoidable accompaniment to the economic upheaval caused by war. Through price controls subsidies, and other measures, Canadians were for some time protected from inflation, but it was inevitable that these controls should be relaxed eventually, be lifted and that we should pass through a period of economic adjustment.

Warned Not To Over-Expand

It is to be hoped that we may this time be able to avoid the pattern of past periods of inflation, when prices and wages continued to rise in a spiral that could in economic disaster. Financial experts are of the opinion that we may safely pass through this period of inflation, but they warn industrialists against over-expansion in the matter of buying expensive equipment, counting on continuing high prices and large profits to meet their costs. They also advise no slackening of effort on the part of either labor or management in our industries or in the production of our natural resources. Without doubt Canada is now passing through a very critical time in her history and one which will test either for a state of sound progress and development or to a depression. No one can foretell exactly what will happen but there is no many who believe that, with increased markets for Canadian products both at home and abroad, we will continue to enjoy a large measure of prosperity. It is to be sincerely hoped that this may be the course which the country will follow and that the present trend toward inflation will not lead to financial disaster.

To Start Work On B.C. Sulphate Mill

VANCOUVER. — The H. R. MacMillan export company limited will construct a $3,000,000 bleached sulphite pulp mill on Vancouver Island, it was announced at the annual meeting of shareholders here

H. R. MacMillan, president, said the mill, planned to give employment to at least 300 persons, would be located somewhere on the east coast of Vancouver Island. Construction is expected to start early this year and be finished by 1950. It will have a daily capacity of 200 tons of bleached sulphate or 225 tons of unbleached sulphate pulp, using nothing but hydroelectric.

"It's production will be marketed entirely on the United States, providing an important new source of much-needed U.S. dollars for Canada," he said.

English Climate Hits Eskimo Girl

FELIXSTOWE, Kent, England.—Rebecca, 15-year-old Eskimo girl who returned to England with Mrs. John Turner, rescued by an Arctic shipping accident, hasn't taken kindly to this inland climate she's had a succession of colds since she arrived.

Otherwise she's settled easily into English ways, although she can't speak the language and "a little Komatsik who's never been out of sight of snow going to Canada" said Mrs. Turner.

COURTESY PLUS

HULL, England — Personal advertisement in a Hull newspaper: "The cyclist who rammed Hoddon Road in front of a fast-moving car Monday last offers his sincere apologies to the driver."

SPEEDBOY.—Four-year-old George Gwyllt, of London, England is a "veteran" motorcyclist at the mental standing. The boy, son of a speedway rider and holder of motor cycling records, began riding when he careened up to Hendon's Trial, London to step in at the Motor Show there. Young Cube rides a specially designed machine which has been clocked 45 miles an hour on a dirt track.

"You have no speedometer in your car?"

"No need — if I do forty the lamps on my dashboard show me the whole car rattles — higher than that my teeth rattle."

"I've had a worrying time with inquisitive people. They ask such awkward questions. They even suggest that I have the start of my mind."

"How absurd! I suppose you left that blank."

Whilst in the jungle a big-game hunter came upon a tribe of cannibals about to sit down to their favorite repast. The hunter got into communion with the chief, who told him that he had been educated at an American college.

"Do you mean to say," asked the hunter, amazed, "that you want to college and still eat your fellow-men?"

"Yes," came the reply; "but, of course, I always use a table and fork then."

Sophomore: "Did you ever take chloroform?"

Freshman: "No, who teaches it?"

A woman about to leave London for New Zealand was advised to provide herself with very warm clothing.

THE HAGUE. — The Rotterdam Lloyd Lines' motorship Kota Inland will sail for Canada March 12 on the first of seven trips planned this year on which 10,000 Dutch farmers immigrants and their families will be transported to the Dominion, it was announced.

When tobacco was first introduced into Europe it often was sold as a cure-all medicine.

Barley Title Winner Hits Record In 1947

George Gwyllt Of Kelvington, Sask., Won 21 Awards Besides Barley Championship

(Central Press Canadian)

George Gwyllt 78-year-old pioneer of the Kelvington Sask. district, figures he'll list the jackpot in 1947 in addition to winning the title of the world's champion grower of barley at the Chicago International Grain Show. Mr. Gwyllt took 21 other awards for his grain and forage crop seed exhibits at Saskatoon, Regina, Toronto and Chicago.

It was his biggest year in the 36 he has spent trying to produce the best kind of seed. As an opener for 1948 Mr Gwyllt won a regional first prize in the national barley contest, and was third for the province in the same competition.

Born of Welsh parents in Pittsburgh, Penn., England, George Gwyllt came to Canada in 1903. He worked in Saskatoon and Calgary at his trade of a brick manufacturer, but decided to take up farming at Hanley, Sask., just a year before the First World War I spent his plans. He went overseas, returning in 1919 to take up a veteran's land grant near Kelvington. He still farms the same land, likes to tell of his faith in the district at times when other settlers were talking about getting out.

Mr. Gwyllt started in on the production of pure seed soon after he was established, and through the years has earned a high reputation among farmers of the province, and far beyond it. A long-time member of the Canadian Registered Seed Growers' association, he is a highly respected member of the big branch of that association at Kelvington.

At the recent meeting of the seed growers in Saskatoon, Mr Gwyllt proudly showed the ribbons he won in Chicago in December. The world's barley championship award was his particular pride. "I've been working for that for 30 years now, he explained.

The aging farmer, who hopes to be growing seed grain and winning prizes for "a lot of years yet" attributes his success to the best land in the west, plenty of hard work to produce the best, and only the best. "I've had a lot of valuable help from both the Dominion and provincial departments," he said, but I've had a lot of the help I have had from Mrs. Gwyllt, who has been a constant helper in my business."

Mr. Gwyllt hopes to put in a banner year in 1948, and feels his material barley contest success has given him a flying start

B.C. MINES SET RECORD

VANCOUVER. — Production of British Columbia mines in 1947 was more than $100,000,000 in value of any previous year, it was announced at a B.C. chamber of mines meeting here. Unprecedented demands for base metals at high prices caused re-opening of old mines and development of new ones.

LOVE PLAYS SECOND FIDDLE — Princess Royal and Viscount Lascelles (Princess Royal-to-be) engaged couple who made her debut at Carnegie Hall on Jan. 30 says she gave up romance with a boy in Winnipeg but last year the realization came to us both that I had a talent that should be fulfilled." When eight years old she was acclaimed a musical genius, and at 16 won a $5,000 scholarship from the American Society of Music in Chicago. Later the people in her home city established a fund to enable her to go to New York for further study. Now Winnipeggers are raising money to buy her a $12,000 Montagnana violin.

OAT EXPORT PERMITS TO BE MADE AVAILABLE

WINNIPEG — The Canadian wheat board announced it will accept applications for export permits covering shipment of a limited quantity of mixed feed oats to Sweden or Greece.

Shipments will be from Lakehead or Georgian Bay ports after navigation opens on Lake Superior, or from Vancouver.

The equalization fee will be the fee in effect at time of application

HUDSON BAY, Sask.—You can't tell W D Bennett that money doesn't grow on trees — he's living proof to the contrary. Mr. Bennett operates a tipsline east of this north-eastern Saskatchewan town and found one of his traps had been dragged away following the tracks, he finally found the trap up a tree still holding a large beaver, whose pelt was valued at $40.00.

Alberta Farmers Repay Loans

EDMONTON. — Alberta farmers have repaid $7,108,740 of $10,343,810 made in loans by the Canadian Farm Loan board

Nearly seven out of every 100 borrowers in the province had no first mortgage interest arrears at March 31 last. During the past fiscal year, borrowers in Alberta paid $454,538 on account of principal.

The board lent an average of $3,-800 to a year to Canadian farmers during the first 10 years of its operations. There was a decline during the war, but indicates are that this year, loans will almost equal the pre-war average

Chief purpose for borrowing has changed in recent years. In 1940-41 about 75% was used to pay debts and 8% to buy land. In 1946-47, 30% was used to pay debts and 32% to buy land Borrowing to make improvements on farms has increased.

SASK. FEDERATED CO-OP. BUYS LEDUC WELL SITE

REGINA.—Saskatchewan Federated Co-operatives has purchased a 40-acre drilling site in the Leduc area of Alberta for about $10,000. The concern, undertaking its first venture in the exploratory field, must complete drilling operations before May 1, 1948, under terms of the agreement.

The co-op will have to pay a 90% royalty to the Alberta Government, if drilling is undertaken and, presumably, if successful in discovering oil.

Any crude found would be shipped to the co-op's plant in Regina for refining.

What Is Life?

A man comes into the world without his consent, and leaves it against his will. During his stay on earth his life is spent in one continuous round of contradictions and mistakes. In his infancy he is an angel, in his boyhood he is a devil, in his manhood he is generally from a lizard up. In his sluties he is a clarn fool. If he raises a cheque the law raises the devil with him. If he is a poor man he is a bum and has no sense. If he is a rich man he is dishonest, but smart. If he is a politician he is a grafter and a crook. If he is out of politics you cannot place him and he is an undesirable citizen. If he goes to church he is a hypocrite. If he donates to foreign missions, he does it for show and if he does not he is a stingy, mean and a tight wad. When he first comes into the world everybody wants to kiss him. Before he goes out everyone wants to kick him. If he dies young, there was a great future for him and if he lives to a ripe old age he is in the way and only living to save funeral expenses. Life is a funny proposition after all.

We have been quite profuse during the past few weeks in admiring the mild weather that has prevailed here. It is the most part of the winter. We had scarcely finished our last little article when the icy blasts from the north with a few from the East came tearing down from the hinterland and wrapped us all in the icy cloak of frigidity. It seems that every time the Federal Parliament gets away on a new session we find that it has come blowing in from the east in ever increasing velocity.

We have had some pretty tough weather the past two weeks, with most of the roads becoming blocked tight. The bitter winds have been especially annoying.

Now that the Alberta Legislature is again in session we have every confidence that the Eastern winds will be met head on over the dome of our provincial house and blasted back from whence they came.

An Old Saw

After all said and done, we sometimes wonder why people worry. There are only two reasons for worry; either you are successful or you are not. If you are successful there is nothing to worry about, if you are not successful there are only two things to worry about. Your health is either good or you're sick; if your health is good there is nothing to worry about; if you are sick there are only two things to worry about. If you are going to get well there is nothing to worry about; if you are going to die there are only two things to worry about. You are either going to Heaven or you are not going to go to Heaven, and if you are going to Heaven there is nothing to worry about; if you are going to the other place, you'll be so d.... busy shaking hands with all your old friends you won't have time to worry—so why worry?

FREEDOM OF CHOICE — NOT COMPULSION

As long ago as May, 1937, a writer in "The Calgary Herald" said:

"With both the Wheat Board and The Grain Exchange in operation, every farmer would have a choice as to the method he desired to employ in disposing of his grain.

"He could sell for cash through The Grain Exchange — deliver to the Wheat Board and take an initial payment with further payments being made as the grain is disposed of.

"The final price would give him the farmer cash for his grain on any particular day he chose to sell, and the latter would give an average price over the year. There would be no coercion to compel any farmer to use one method against his will".

This is exactly what our members believe in. Farmers who have been selling their grain at the Government's Controlled Prices, through the Canadian Wheat Board are entitled to do so. That other farmers who want to sell on the open and Open Market should have the right to do so and get the full benefit of selling world prices. Under existing conditions, there could be no compulsion, no dictation; each farmer could use the place of his choice.

Freedom of choice — not compulsion — one concrete, should be the policy in marketing all Canadian wheat.

Our members on the prairies believe in a Fair Price for what we do they contend that a farmer should get top prices now. What do you think?

Many farmers' street grooves still do not know how much they are regulated and controlled by the Canadian Wheat Board Act and its Amendments.

Do you? If not, mail the coupon below at once and get the facts. It will be to your interest to read and to study these pamphlets.

To The Winnipeg Grain Exchange,

Please send me the pamphlet explaining the Canadian Wheat Board Act and its Amendments. I want to know how the Act affects me.

Your Hardware Dealer Says:

WRENCHES AND SCREW DRIVERS

In these post-war days there are now on the market, high-quality precision instruments and tools such as the new type torque, wrench and screw driver that the manufacturers claim are 98% accurate Both the wrench and screw driver incorporate a new type of spring clutch which is easily combatted. After setting either tool for the desired amount or torque the operator merely uses them for the usual tasks in the normal way. If the torque required to drive the threaded part exceeds the pre-set, the tool automatically slips. Impact will not cause driving torque to increase nor will it lessen.

The wrench offers right and left hand drive ratchet action and withdrawal. Standard sockets are interchangeable and the torque can be set from 0 to 500 pounds while the screw driver that also has interchangable bits and socket types can be set from 0 to 35 pounds. The tools are manufactured by the Acme Scientific Company of Chicago.

Solving Soil Problems In The West

U.S. Soils Conservation Borrows Canadian Developments in Farming

By T. R. MELVILLE-NESS
Central Press Canadian

NOT so many years ago the average farmer, if you would have wrinkled his brow if asked the meaning of the words soil conservation. figured they whatever it was it didn't affect him, anyway.

That was in the hey-day of the booming 20's. Most prairie farmers had experienced a bit of drought here and there but the country had not suffered long enough for many of them to have seen the disastrous effects of a bad dry season with scorching winds that shriveled everything in their path. Here and there, crop failures had been experienced, but they were regarded as a normal condition every season at widely-scattered points across the prairie provinces.

In those days, farmers plowed deeply into the land with moldboard implements, stirred the soil nine and ten inches down. They covered the stubble and burned straw piles left by threshing machines in the fall. If the stubble was long, they burned that before plowing, too. They used cultivators tools that pulverized and dried the soil surface.

Dismaler Strikes

Gradually the spongy content of the soil, heritage of the prairie sod, disappeared. The scientists at experimental farms, and a few farmers foresaw disaster, experimented with new and better methods that might avert the disaster. They were not quite ready when disaster struck, though, in the early '30's.

No western farmer who went through it will forget the first year of drought. Crops that showed promise right up to the middle of June, 1930, slowly died as the rains failed to come, and the hot winds blew. By mid-July the grain crops were shriveled and dead. There was no cover on the land, and the winds blew the dust for hundreds of miles in great choking clouds. There was dust and despair everywhere.

The story of the drought would fill many large books. It did, in fact, fill plenty of books for the soils scientists who recorded the effects of the dry, searing winds, and the things that happened to the prairie soil, depleted of organic matter, blown by the wind right down to the hard subsoil.

Something had to be done quickly, and the scientists, and they knew exactly what was needed. It wasn't easy to get farmers to change their thinking about how the land should be cultivated, but by example and daily contact, soils workers at the experimental stations and universities managed to spread the radically new gospel.

New Concept Of Farming

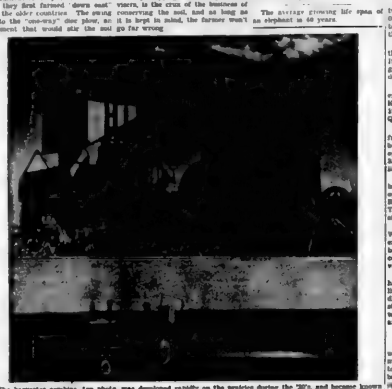
Briefly, the new creed was summed up in a few sentences. Also at shallow cultivation... keep stubble trash on top of the ground... don't burn stubble... don't use implements that pulverize the surface... cultivate as little as possible... study every conservation suggestion that comes your way.

Older farmers had a hard time taking to the new concept of prairie farming. To tie in with the new ideas, they had to abandon the plows and cultivators they had used ever since they first farmed "down east" or in the older countries. The young lad to the "one-way" disc plow, or implement that would stir the soil enough to check weed growth, and avoid drying out the soil. He will adopt chemical weed control wherever possible, so that he can eliminate still more cultivation.

He will make every effort to restore to the land what he takes out of it by cropping. That, say the advocates, is the crux of the business of conserving the soil, and as long as it is kept in mind, the farmer won't go far wrong.



The harvester combine, top photo, was developed rapidly on the prairies during the '30's, and became known as a great aid to soil conservation. The combine scattered the crop residue, straw and chaff, back on the land, where it remained to return some of the humus matter removed by cropping practices. Straw that was once burned goes back to the land to help maintain fertility. Chemical weed control, by dust or spray, is becoming standard practice on prairie farms in the grain-growing areas. The new method by the machine in photo below makes it possible to eliminate some of the cultural practices that resulted in excessive pulverizing and consequent drifting of the soil.

The combine harvester, gaining in popularity in the '30's, was recognized as an important aid to soil conservation, in that crop residues were scattered on the land. Organic matter that used to be burned was restored to the soil, which was able to regain some of its sponginess. The trash cover helped prevent soil drifting.

Western Canada made a lot of headway in the dry years along the line of soil conservation. An official of the United States soils conservation service, visiting in Saskatchewan recently, paid tribute to the accomplishments of soils men and farmers on the prairies, said that a good many of the methods and devices worked out by Canadian workers had been picked up and used across the line. The man from down south, Wilkie Collins, Jr., of Lincoln, Nebraska, chief of the agronomy section of the famous service, spoke to a gathering of agrologists in Saskatoon late in December. "You people have made splendid progress in your soil conservation work," he said. "Your methods we have found to be sound and effective, and the record indicates you are getting results."

But while Canadian workers realize they have made good progress, they know the battle isn't won yet. There are still many farms where harmful practices continue to deplete the land, where wind and water erosion take heavy toll of the soil. The ideal program, they say, would provide for a conservation service available to every farmer, and would include such things as revised cropping and cultivation practices, layouts for contour farming, plans for improving run-down soils, and a host of other things.

Battle Goes On

The dream of such a service may be realized in the future. In the meantime, the prairie farmer, working out his own salvation with the help of the experimental farm and university staff men he learned to trust and rely upon in the dry years, will carry on with the things he knows are good practice.

He will avoid a powdery land surface, and he will keep stubble on top where it will stop the wind from blowing his soil clean across the province. He will cultivate only

Sunday Theatres Hotly Debated

SOUTHEND, Essex, Eng When Southend town council refused by 36 votes to 23 to extend opening hours of Sunday movie theatres, Mayor S. E. Johnson referred to the petition for extension as "disgraceful".

"Do you wonder the world is in the condition it is?" he asked. "I say if these hours are extended you will do definite harm to the children of today and those still unborn."

He described the proposal to increase hours from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. to 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. as a "desecration of God's holy day."

Other aldermen submitted the extension would make no difference to attendance at church and Sunday schools.

"Children go to Sunday school nowadays only because they are sent," declared Ald. William Cox.

Using these new "Mae Wests", the man can float in the water quite comfortably and be warm enough to give him a better chance of rescue in event of accident. Without such equipment, a man can freeze to death in icy waters in about five minutes. The suits slip easily over the fliers' regular clothing. # Dominion Meteorological Office Has Many Workers—Need More

By The Canadian Press

THINK when they send reports talks about the weather, but as one does anything useful," was not aware that thousands of persons on this continent are doing something about weather forecasting every day. In the United States and Canada there are 1,700 persons voluntarily helping their countries weather bureau collect data. In Canada there are 703 volunteers who take temperature readings and read rain gauges for the Dominion meteorological service, homemakers, telegraphers and school-teachers.

Andrew Thomson, controller of the meteorological division of the department of transport, said the need for more observers is greatest and one of North America's leading weathermen, says the headquarters behind other countries is the establishment of volunteers in this country's north.

Information gleaned from the many reports is used to make weather maps and show normal rainfall and temperatures for every part of Canada. But weathermen can also give specific information on a certain district to individuals.

For instance, a manufacturer of textiles could tell if the region had the right humidity for a factory, or a farmer suffered would find a dry spell, or an engineer could check the rainfall at the site of a dam to find if it varied from year to year.

* * * *

The gathering of detailed weather information in Canada began in 1840, when school principals were ordered to keep a record of temperature and rainfall. Pioneer work in this field is credited to a science master at Toronto's Upper Canada College, who took observations as early as 1820.

Controller Thomson revealed that British Columbia has more observers than any other per capita. The reason: there are many pioneers of England descent in the west-coast province, and they take a greater interest than anyone else in the weather.

"They inherit it," he said.

Curling Championship

Top-Ranking Curlers Swinging Towards The Brier Competition

FOUR coast to coast top-ranking curlers are swinging into action along the playoff trail leading to a berth in the competition for the Macdonald's Brier Tankard, emblem of the Canadian senior men's curling championship. Winners of the provincial crowns will converge in Calgary for commencement of the roundrobin Brier competition March 1st.

Last year in Saint John, New Brunswick, Jimmie Welsh and His veteran rink-mates had all the trouble in waltzing through all opposition to capture the Tankard at Manitoba for the 11th time. Jimmie Welsh has since become known in Northern Ontario and British Columbia. Both have been represented on the Brier five a long time and in the two post-war competitions have provided a good deal of the Brier fireworks. In 1946 Northern Ontario wound up in a first place tie, losing out in the playoff. Last year they were in a tie for fourth position for the first three days, slipping on the final day to wind up in a third-place tie.

In 1946 B.C. wound up behind the three deadlocked leaders at the end of nine rounds and at Saint John "Frenchy" D'Amico's Trail entry defeated Saskatchewan in a playoff for second place.

Southern Ontario will also be regarded with respect, as will New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Both the Maritime provinces have made threatening gestures from time to time and neither of play has improved steadily.

Saskatchewan A Mystery

It remains one of the mysteries of the curling world as to why Saskatchewan has never copped top curling honors. With more sectres curlers than any other province in the Dominion, including Manitoba, Saskatchewan is a hot-bed of bonspiel and stone enthusiasts. Despite their numbers and their enthusiasm, Saskatchewan rinks have falshed in the money only five times—two seconds and three thirds.

"It can't go on forever," mutter the Saskatchewanites darkly. And who knows, maybe this is their year.

Scientists Hunting Cause Of Baldness

WASHINGTON —The Smithsonian institution reported today that science is hunting clues to the cause of baldness in a race to discover some cure. Baldness in the three-toed sloth.

The three-toed sloth is a sluggish beast that spends its time hanging upside down in corrupts trees in the jungles of central and south America. It eats nothing but leaves.

"The sloth, and some of the large apes," the Smithsonian said, "appear to be the only animals that resemble man in that the adult males develop common baldness."

Measuring Standing Trees

OCCASIONS arise with every farmer who has a woodlot when he would give a good deal to know how much lumber there is in a tree before he cuts it down. Sometimes it is a considerable advantage even to know its height. The following method of ascertaining these things will give quite an accurate answer, but will not, of course, show into decimal the kinks of the tree.

The only instruments required are a rule suitable for measuring the diameter of the tree, a plumb line, and a right-angled triangle cut from wood or heavy cardboard. This triangle is represented in the diagram as the triangle AEB, and it will be noted that the two sides which enclose the right angle must be of equal length in the diagram each of these sides is shown as being 2 feet 6 inches long, but they may be longer or shorter if more convenient

To Take Sight on Tree Top

The plumb line is attached to the corner of the triangle at A, and the hand is held up by the shoulder so that his eye is at the corner marked E with the triangle aimed at the tree as shown. Now he moves backward or forward until he reaches a position where the plumb line hangs dead along the side AB of the triangle—the long side, EA, of the triangle is pointing straight at the top of the tree.

The distance is now measured as accurately as possible from the observer's eye to the butt of the tree—in the diagram this measurement is taken to be 100 feet. This distance, with the height of the eye above the ground, is then given to the height of the tree

In the diagram the tip of the tree is marked "T" and the base "K". The spot where the observer is standing is marked "O", and the point "S" represents a point which is the same height above the ground as the trunk of the tree as the observer's eye is at "E". In the diagram the observer's eye is taken to be 5 feet above the ground, therefore in that case SO and SK both equal 5 feet, while KO, as we have mentioned, equals 100 feet.

The height of the tree will be equal to the length of SE plus the length of EG, which are 100 and 5 feet respectively in the diagram, so the tree is 105 feet tall.

To find the ratio content of the tree, its diameter is measured at the base. Half the diameter is then taken in the dividers and this is the result multiplied by the figure 0.54 and raised by half the height of the tree. In the example shown in the diagram the tree is 105 feet high and, let us say, 6 feet through the base. Half the diameter is then 3 feet. This, when squared or multiplied by itself, gives 6 as the figure to be multiplied by 0.54, giving 12.24. This is then multiplied by 52.5 (half the height) and gives 638.4 as the number of cubic feet of wood in the tree.

Second Possible Method

Another simple method of ascertaining the height of a tree which is called on a sunny day. Cut a stick 12 inches long. Place it upright in the ground. Note the height of the stick and the shadow cast and measure the length of the shadow thrown by it. Then measure the shadow of the tree. Suppose this to be 20 feet, and the shadow of the stick to be 6 inches long. The equation then is—If a stick 12 inches high throws a shadow 6 inches long, how tall is a tree which throws a shadow 20 feet or 240 inches long? By simple arithmetic proportion the formula is 6:240: 12: 480; or, forty feet.

This method is used obviously requires no calculation, because in it both stick and tree throw a shadow equal to half their height.

These methods of measuring trees are not exact, but will give a close approximation if the tree stands straight and the ground is level. If such is not the case it may be found necessary to make appropriate allowances for it in measurements and calculations

This method of measuring standing trees will give quite an accurate result if correctly done. Sloping ground or leaning trees complicate the problem.

SPLIT IS-IS

ELBERTON, Ga. — John Harrel's hound, trying to steal a rabbit, flushed a partridge instead. Harrel shot it. A hawk swooped for the bird as it fell. Harrel let go at the hawk with the other barrel. He only got the hawk —and Harrel took the partridge.

Smile of the Week—

An old farmer of a Worcestershire village, after a visit to the local, fell asleep in his wagon, and two other farm hands thought they would play a prank on him, and unhitched his horses from the wagon and took them home. Upon awakening some hours afterwards, rubbing his eyes and looking around, said:

"Well, if my name be John Jones, I've lost two horses, but if it ain't I've found a cart."

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE DIAMOND

By RUBY VON FISCHER

OF THE "Nieuws Kads" in Amsterdam, the gay wharve the big liners serving passenger traffic to London are moored, stood a man with a cigar between his lips. Through a seemingly calm, beaming on the balustrade and contemplating the green waves washing over the granite squares of the wall, he observed the furtive excitement a policeman, who stood motionless, ten apart, some 10 yards away.

The man with the cigar casually turned his back towards the uniformed figure. He was of small, lean stature, with an alive complexion and thin, black moustache. Nobody would have suspected him to be the well-known diamond grinder Willem Verbart, popular society figure of the town, whose mysterious disappearance half a year ago had hugely engaged the attention of police headquarters of many a European capital.

Verbart's method of disposing of the finished cigar into the water. Then he took out another one from his pocket and lighted it. He deeply inhaled the smoke, puffing it out sensuously.

Had the policeman grown suspicious? Was somebody to go wrong at the very last moment, the plans of one year to be frustrated? Carefully he took the Havana from his mouth and held it between his trembling palms. Could the policeman suspect that, behind the tightly closed lids opposite in the middle of the bulging tobacco leaves, there was the missing Vijaul diamond?

Five years Verbart had been one of the most esteemed diamond experts of Amsterdam's flourishing industry. But though the words of praise he took the Havana from his mouth and held it between trembling palms. Could the policeman suspect that, behind the tightly closed lids opposite in the middle of the bulging tobacco leaves, there was the missing Vijaul diamond?

Your Implement Dealer Says:

THE GAS ENGINE

The internal combustion Engine enables operations to be efficiently performed which were beyond the resources of the motive power, or else done very little over ideas in the days of steam and horse labor. But this is not merely or perhaps its chief merit. It enables operations to be performed far more speedily with an equal labor force and in these days a help to the farmer in his struggle against adverse weather conditions. Obviously, if five or six acres can be plowed in a day by a tractor where formerly a plow team accomplished one acre, another factor than the unit cost of the plowing, namely that of speed or of the time of ... is brought into the operations

Again, if 20 acres can be reaped in a day as against 10 or 12 sewed by two teams or horses, the same factors enter.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. S.—

Right up to the present moment all the letters and editorials in the Community Press, and the paper including the Sales Tax, have been completely ignored by the Minister of Finance. He has not even made an attempt to defend it. In plain English he treats all the arguments that are advanced against it with utter indifference if not contempt.

Instead, he has gathered around him a committee to investigate into the why's and wherefore's of the hue and cry. A committee which in our opinion will be a well paid one whose actual value will not warrant the money expended on it. In other words, we believe the committee to be a useless one, the formation of which was undertaken by the federal government as a graft and a bribe to pacify a disgruntled people.

If the high cost of living is giving the government such headaches why don't they call surgery and do something about it? Why not cut out the ration and remove at least one of the causes of the trouble — the Sales Tax. The committee can find ample for six months and then by accomplish anything for the small sellers, but the abolishment of the Tax, at least on the basic staples of life would have an immediate effect.

Have to now staying with us.

The annual meeting of Princess Royal Chapter IODE was held at the home of Mrs J. Edwards. Although the attendance was small due to the cold weather, a number of items of business were disposed of. It was decided to have a tea on a Retured in the early spring, the proceeds to go to the Memorial Rink Fund, as the Chapter throughout the Province has always been interested in the work of the Rink. It was decided that our Chapter should help in some special way with the drive by the Canadian Red Institute For Blind, for the purpose of erecting a service centre and residence in Northern Alberta. Plans for this are to be announced later.

In place of Empire Study, Mrs J. Sheehan read an article "Communism Is Threat To Canada." Following the annual reports of the various committees, the election of officers took place which resulted as follows: Mrs J. L. Cherrian, Hon. Regent; Mrs. A. E. Fee, 1st ... Mrs. Edwards; 2nd Vice, Mrs. A. J. Neely, Sec., Mrs. Larker; Treas. Mrs J. Hue and Standard Bearer Mrs. R. Smith.

Tea was served by Mrs Edwards The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs Smith.

M. D. FLAGSTAFF NO. 68 ANNUAL MEETING

The R.O., Mr. K. Oberg opened the meeting at 1 P.M. Mr. J. Gunne was elected to the chair and Mr. C. Brown was asked to take the minutes of the meeting.

Reeve's Report

The Reeve, C. P. Hayes, was asked to give a report of the activities of the Council for the previous year. The District had spent $173,982.48 on Public Works with the following results: 101 miles of scattered roads and 14 miles of graveled roads.

The average cost per mile for the scattered road was $626, and for a mile of graveled road $441 the Reeve must remember that road maintaining, brush cutting and snow grader work is included in the figure.

In 1947 new machinery was purchased to the amount of approximately $15000. This included a D. Tractor and Lumer and an 8-11 yd. Scraper. The working of the latter has been very successful, although it lowered back in the fall of the year. There were two snow clearing machines and a snow grader used by the operators were doing their best to keep the roads open with the equipment. The main job was to keep the roads between villages opened for the M. D. had placed an order for a complete grading outfit to be ordered in the fall at a cost of about $20000. There were no main roads now in the M. D. added this if this outfit appeared necessary

In the four years that the M. D. has been functioning, a little over $45 000 had been spent on road building or an average of about $12500 a year. The Council had kept strict account of all monies spent by each division. The main plan of joint all villages by re-located graveled roads is now nearing completion

We were fortunate in receiving grant of $40,000 for last year. To this amount credit must be given to Mr. A. E. Fee, M.L.A.

How Your Dollar Was Spent

It might be of interest to the ratepayers of each dollar was spent on the various services administered by the Council

Protection to Person and Property 1 cent
Public Works 29 60
Health Welfare 2 20
Education 31 05
Debt Charges 2 20
Capital Expenditure: 8 60

The Reeve then explained the division in the cash position as compared with the previous year. Bonds in the amount of $25 600 were issued to purchase the new machinery, and where previously the M.D. held $61 000 in cash, this balance had dropped to $40 000. Collections of taxes were good for the year, approximately $23,000 being collected. This at of money is slightly more than current taxes. Some $37,000 in arrears of taxes The M.D. dipped into the surplus reserves and these were becoming depleted. This could not go on indefinitely in there was only one way to offset the heavy expenditures, which was to raise the mill rate to take care of current expenses In this connection he pointed out to the auditors had collected arrears and from crops in the district. If the Council guesses right and collections and expenses then financial matters will proceed smoothly for the M. D. If it guesses wrong and there are no collections resulting from poor crops, then the opposite would result.

The Health Scheme

The Health Scheme, as may be seen from the list, cost the District 11 48 cents out of every dollar The expenses wrung and there are no collections resulting from poor crops, then the opposite would result.

'PIONEER' ANNOUNCES DISTRIBUTION OF FORTUITOUS PROFIT ON OATS AND BARLEY SOLD UNDER PRICE CEILINGS

All customers of 'Pioneer' Elevators are requested to call at their elevator and receive a cheque covering an additional payment on oats and barley delivered during the current crop season, between August 1st and October 21st, 1947, when price ceilings were in effect.

This payment is an interim distribution of the fortuitous profit made by the Company on oats and barley which it had on hand, and unsold, when price ceilings were removed on October 21st.

This payment is 12 cents on oats and 10 cents on barley.

Final payment will be made at a later date.

IT PAYS TO PULL TO THE 'PIONEER'

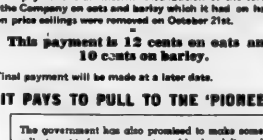
The government has also promised to make some adjustment to farmers on oats and barley delivered at ceiling prices between August 1st and October 21st, 1947. We trust they will take definite action to implement this promise in the near future.

PIONEER GRAIN COMPANY LIMITED



Are You Free to Choose When, Where, and to Whom You Shall Sell Your Wheat AND AT WHAT PRICE?
The Answer is—NO!
If you are entitled to sell it to the Wheat Board at a price based on cost of production, you are not free to sell it at any other price.
But if you want to sell your wheat on a free and open market and get a much higher price than the Wheat Board pays, why should the Government stop you?
Freedom of choice should be yours as to when, where, to whom and at what price you shall sell. Do you have it now?
Why should prairie wheat growers be compelled to pay the whole cost of subsidizing those of Eastern Canada with such as cheap wheat for home consumption? These subsidies should be paid by the Government, that is by all the people and not loaded on to wheat growers alone.
You are compelled to pay top prices for everything you buy. Why not then demand top prices for your wheat?
We repeat—If some farmers are satisfied with a low price for their wheat, why should they prevent others from getting high prices for yours?
Do you realize how you now controlled and regulated by the Canadian Wheat Board Act and its Amendments? If you don't, send at once for the pamphlet which gives you the facts
Mail the coupon below and DO IT NOW.

Making New Citizens

THERE IS NOW A STEADY FLOW of people immigrating to Canada from various parts of Europe, all hopeful of finding a new and better way of life in this country. At such a time, it would be well for Canadians to give consideration to the many problems which these people must face in adjusting themselves to the life here and to interest themselves in helping the newcomers to become good citizens of Canada. Attention has been given to this matter by the government and by various voluntary agencies, but none of these efforts can be entirely successful unless they receive sympathetic public support. It is now realized that in the past too little interest was taken in foreign-born residents once they had been admitted to the country and consequently they tended to form their own groups, instead of assimilating themselves with the rest of the population

* * * *

To Be Taught The Language is the past, many of the first generation of foreign-born settlers never became completely familiar with the English language, or with all that this country had to offer in the way of interest and opportunity. Efforts will now be made to help newcomers to learn English as quickly as possible so that they may be able to mix freely with the people, read our newspapers and magazines and be absorbed into the life of the country rather than existing in small national groups. Canada's Citizenship law, which came into effect more than a year ago was an important step in increasing new Canadians with the privileges and responsibilities of citizenship, but there is much that could be done for them in the interval between their arrival in this country and the time that they become eligible for citizenship, through the interest of the people around them

* * * *

Is A Need For Good Citizens This matter was discussed at a recent convention of the Canadian Citizenship Council and of the Canadian Association for Adult Education. Numerous recommendations were made to the Dominion government concerning the treatment of newcomers to this country. One of these was that there should be a plan for social services for immigrants during the period in which they were meeting the residence requirements for citizenship. Another subject which was discussed concerned the evil of misrepresentation conditions in Canada to those who are about to come here, causing them to be disappointed when they arrive. Canada is a land of opportunity and we have need of new citizens who will help to build up the future. It is timely that the government and private organizations are giving thought to the need, not only of bringing in immigrants, but of encouraging them to become good citizens and to learn in fully understand our way of life. It is an effort which should be supported by all who have occasion to come in contact with newcomers to Canada.

Ontario Wants Alberta Gas

WINDSOR, Ont.—Adv. W. G. Riggs of Windsor said a $65,000,000 pipeline to carry natural gas from Alberta to northwestern Ontario is being considered by a Canadian company. He did not name the company.

"Alberta has enough gas to supply all Canada for 200 years," said Adv. Riggs.

He said he will introduce a motion before council aimed at curbing the all recurring gas shortages in Windsor and intimated Ontario operation of a pipeline to Alberta would be part of it.

Man. Holstein Sets Record For Dominion

Cow Owned By Rockwood Holsteins Of St. Hubert Establishes New High For Butterist Production

Amulree Baronent Pietje, a pure-bred Holstein cow owned by Rockwood Holsteins, St. Norbert, Man., has just established a Canadian record for butterfat production for two consecutive yearly tests on three times-a-day milking. Starting on test as an eight year old she produced in 305 days 1,098 pounds fat from 26,070 pounds milk, average test 4.21 per cent, butterfat. She now has just finished her next yearly test with 1,230 pounds fat from 22,000 pounds milk (3.82 per cent. butterfat) for a two lactation total of 2,357 pounds fat from 48,150 pounds milk. Not only is this the largest two lactation butterfat record ever made by a Canadian Holstein on three times-a-day milking but it stands second regardless of times milked daily having been beaten only by the total of 2,367 pounds fat from 56,150 pounds milk made on four times-a-day milking in 1922 and 1923 by Dekol Pietje Segis Dixie, owned by Hon. D. Raymond, Vaudreuil, Que.

The only Holstein in the world ever to surpass on three times-a-day milking the latest yearly record of 1,250 pounds fat made by Baroness, was Montvic Ayrie Calamba Abbekerk who in 1941 established her world championship record of 1,262 pounds fat from 29,806 pounds of milk at Mount Victoria Farms, Hudson Heights, Que. Canada thus has the honor of having the two top Holstein cows of the world on three times-a-day milking. It will be noted that the butterfat record of Baronent is just five pounds below that of the champion. Her milk record stands fourth in Canada.

Baronent's record of 1,098 pounds fat was the largest completed in Canada in 1946 and her 1947 record of 1,230 pounds fat was the largest in the Dominion in 1947. Both records were "tops" regardless of age or times milked daily

"Baronent" is a good sized cow with great capacity and a good udder and made these exceptionally large records without difficulty She was bred by Hon. T. A. Crerar, Chesterpre, Man., and is one of 17 tested daughters of Rattlerjunk Rover Pietje of whom 11 are still in the Rockwood herd. Springbrook Rover Pietje is a son of Montvic Hag Apple Pietje noted inbred son of Johanna Hag Apple Pabst, the foundation cow of the Hag Apple family in Canada.

This great cow is passing along her inheritance for high production for her 15 daughters in the Rockwood herd has produced 629 pounds fat from 12,921 pounds milk in 365 days as a six-year-old; another has given 723 pounds fat from 14,531 pounds milk as a three-year-old and a two-year-old has just finished a 700 pound fat record.

"Baronent" made both her records under the personal supervision of Martin Carrico, herdsman at Rockwood.

Under Baronent law, a wife may be head of the household if her husband drinks too freely.

SEED ME FOR A GOOD HARVEST
By R. J. DEGAREY
Director
Manitoba Seed Growers Association
Winnipeg, Manitoba.

The Case for Seed Treatment

The kind of crop Western Canada's farmers harvest in 1948 depends to a very great measure on what kind of seed farmers plant in the Spring. Farmers should not only be interested in the quality and variety of the seed they sow in 1948 but also in its freedom from disease.

Seed Treatment Needed During the last few years Local Plant Examiners have examined thousands of farmers' seed samples of wheat, oats, barley and flax. Three extensive seed tests have clearly established that a very large proportion of the seed-grain that is sown each year in Western Canada carries disease - producing organisms, or is damaged by weathering or threshing, in sufficient amount to make seed treatment a profitable necessity. Therefore, the best advice we can give to a farmer at this Time we change! Unless you know your seed is undamaged and free of smut and other diseases, treat it.

Seed-Treating Methods The seed disinfectants (fungicides) recommended for the control of smuts, loose smut and other seed-borne diseases of wheat, oats and barley, and for the treatment of flax, are the organic mercury dusts (Ceresan, Leytosan, etc.). For small grain crops the rate of application is ½ ounce per bushel of seed; for flax, the rate is 1½ ounces per bushel. Seed of these crops can be safely treated months before it is needed for sowing. It is important however, to give such treated seed an a cool, dry, well-ventilated place. For best results, wheat seed should be treated at least 24 hours before planting. On the other hand, the seed of oats, barley and flax should be treated at least 7 days before it is sown.

Remember that the organic mercury dusts are poisonous. The precautions given by the manufacturer should be strictly observed. Seed treated with an organic mercury dust should not be used for food purposes, or fed to livestock.

For further information on seed treatment consult your local Agricultural Representative, or write to Line Elevators Farm Service, Winnipeg.

M. D. FLAGSTAFF MEETING

matter of the Council was constructing hospitals as they had reported that the per diem rates were not sufficient and that they were going behind in their financing.

During 1947 it may be of interest to see the suffering statistics with regard to the three hospitals there were 1865 patients treated for a total of 16,245 patient days, 186 major operations and 235 minor operations. No babies were given, there were 191 births and 20 deaths during the year.

Education

Education is still a heavy item of expense. The audience will notice that it takes 24 cents out of each dollar raised. This was every odd cent taken in local rate for 1948 will be higher. This statement was substantiated by the Chairman of the School Board who was present.

Administration

The administration of your M.D. takes $ 12 out of very dollar. Public Welfare includes Old Age Pensions, Mother Allowance, Grants, Etc., and take $ 20 cents from each dollar. The Reeve stated that there would be many points in his talk which the audience would wish to discuss.

Mr. Probst suggested that it might be better for the audience to submit questions for the coming year for the Council than to spend all the time explaining the Fire Report. With this the Chairman fully agreed

Time Element

The meeting was then thrown open for discussion. The first item discussed was the snow plows. There were various opinions as plows and the running of snow plows. Most ratepayers thought that a double shift should be maintained on the operation of these machines so that the utmost efficiency could be obtained from the machinery. It was agreed and carried that the Council arrange to have a double shift work on the plows and also on the motor graders in working months.

The Sedgewick representatives complained that snow plows could not keep the school bus routes open all of the time Mr. K. Olsen stated that if ratepayers wanted as expected results to be kept open all through the winter, then the M.D. must get much more machinery than they had at the present time

Mr. Stoever spoke of the possibility of putting snow fences along the stretches of road that were known to be blocked with snow each year. This statement was emphasized by Lou McKane. The chairman pointed out that the Prov. Gov. had been unable to purchase any snow fences and it was practically impossible to obtain any at the present time

It was suggested that a snow plow be chosen in the any tractor should be purchased so that ratepayers with a suitable tractor could help to keep the roads open This motion was moved and carried

Various speakers stressed the point that there should be one unit only only in charge of snow plows and all heavy machinery)

Medical Scheme

There was some discussion on the Medical Scheme. The Reeve stated that the Council was taking steps to put in a card system in each ratepayer would be the number in a family and which doctor the family would prefer to have. According to the number of cards signed for each sub-to, the money would be granted to the assessment. Mr. Hayes said that several times the amount had been asked to submit lists of how many patients each treated in a year, but as to these lists were not forthcoming it was moved and carried that the carsystem for medical services as out

The Reeve stated that he has client in the future all Villages in the M.D. would be embraced by the scheme The scheme had not been enlarged to include native farmers If the scheme were further enlarged to take in another category of people, it would almost certainly be necessary to raise the mill rate

Mr Leif Osbeck asked the Chairman what the additional cost would be if the ratepayers in the Village Municipal Hospital District voted under our Medical Scheme Mr Hayes told that there would have to be a small increase in the amount of tax to be take care of the al charged

Motions was made and carried Cross Medical Scheme be improved medical service, whereby more people to advance for service in the

METAL HARDWARE FOR YOUR HOME

One of the most popular locks in use today is the Yale Lock. Finger plates add greatly to the appearance of a door, and protect the painted work. Sash fasteners are fixed at the meeting rails of double hung windows to prevent the window being opened from the outside and serve also to clip the two sashes tightly together. They should be of a pattern to resist the attack of a knife inserted between the rails. Sash lifts and pulls of brass or bronze are fitted to large sashes. Ornamental casement stays and fasteners in many different metals are made in numerous designs and styles. Fanlight openers for single lights, or gearedfor a number of sashes, may be designed to suit positions difficult of access.

If your hardware man has not the particular part you wish to obtain he will be pleased to get it for you His service is quick and efficient, and he is your neighbor and supplier will do all that he is able in your remodelling and building problems.

What's the Good of UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE?

$87,500,000 was paid from the Unemployment Insurance fund to unemployed Canadians from September 1, 1945, to March 31, 1947.

$31,000,000 was contributed to this fund by the Government of Canada.

500,000 individual unemployed workers and their dependants benefitted from these payments.

In many cases had payments not been available the unemployed would have suffered want!

What's the good of Unemployment Insurance?—Can there be any doubt!

Unemployment Insurance helps the employer by providing unemployed with purchasing power; and helps the worker by providing maintenance allowances during unemployment. Employer and Employee and the Government all have an interest in Unemployment Insurance is a large factor in a healthy National Economy.

The case of the 7 strangers

By Gladys Walker Wilkinson

There is a man in Canada who has the blood of seven total strangers in his veins. Maybe you wince at that idea. He doesn't. Without it, he would be dead.

Two years ago he was seriously injured in a crash. He received de-spensive blood injection, and a delicate operation was impossible. But about 5 out loss of blood had so weakened him that he couldn't stand the strain. If ... strangers had not stepped in.

Today, seven Canadian men and women who had never given a blood donation to the Canadian Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service, when the doctors called for blood to save the life of the wounded victim, it was the blood of these seven which pulled him through.

"Were you one of them?"

Today, he is a healthy, happy, family resident of Victoria, British Columbia. The only thing that makes him so different from the ... man is a rather unexciting look that sometimes comes into his eyes as he walks along the street. For he often thinks of the seven who saved his life and wonders who they are. As he looks into a stranger's face, he silently asks: "Were you one of them? If so, I thank you from my heart."

Similarly, the mother who gave birth to twins and would have died except for blood transfusions ... the baby so anaemic at birth he could be kept alive only by donated blood ... The maimed ... the ... the old—all those who owe their lives to blood transfusions—say: "Thanks, unknown friend."

Free blood for Canadian hospitals

The Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service plans, as soon as possible, to extend whole blood and plasma free to all patients needing it, in hospitals across Canada. Already two provinces British Columbia and Alberta—provide this life-saving service. Last year, Alberta and British Columbia distributed 21,564 bottles of whole blood and 2,364 bottles of plasma, resulting in the saving of many lives.

But it takes money as well as blood to save these lives. Remember this, as the Canadian Red Cross appeals to you now for funds. Give generously. A life may depend upon your donation.

The work of mercy never ends... Give generously to the CANADIAN RED CROSS

:: CAR THIRTEEN ::

By E. ARVIS BLOODFIELD

BENTON wiped his glove over the frosty inside of the windshield, his breath showed in the pinch against the two orbs of the swipes.

"A couple degrees drop and it'll be snow, sergeant."

I nodded myself. "Yeah. Makes dirty driving. But we only got a quarter hour till four."

"Right."

"We haven't been shooting the breeze much. Don't you and Williams talk?"

"Not much. I'm no hand at gossip."

"Married?"

"Uh.

"How long?"

"A bit over a year."

"Tough having to work nights."

Harry Benton was a new man. When his partner was taken sick, I'd had to pinch hit.

Car Thirteen eased onto Fifth Street, and the clock showed ten to four. The dash was getting fidgety and both the trailers didn't show any longer.

The radio crackled and I saw Harry stiffen.

"Car Thirteen. Calling Car Thirteen. Code sixty-seven. Code six seven. Test in effect."

That woke me up plenty.

Harry turned around and stepped on the gas. The wheels spun. I was getting mad.

"A hospital call, with ten minutes to go! I tell ya, Benton, there is no justice!"

He nodded, "Maybe not and again, maybe not."

We hadn't gone two or three blocks when the radio peeped again. Harry eased on the gas.

"Calling all cars. Calling all cars. Code twenty-three. Code twenty-three. All cars..."

We overtaken a little as he touched the brakes. I was too sore to speak.

"Well..?" he asked tentatively.

"That's inner blockade — that's dynamite," I said. "What could you do if you were sergeant?"

Reluctantly he started the U-turn "Head for West Waterway—that's our station. But they could be to call."

Then the radio came in with details: "Slick-car at Maynard's. Getaway car in tan sedan. Car Thirteen cancel code seven."

"There it is!" I swore. "There is no justice. It's not fair enough they ever show up—just keep you waiting all night."

"Yeh!"

Harry looked grim as he pushed the waiting car into the wilderness night. It didn't take two minutes to reach the bridge. He came in a step in the middle of the viaduct, switched on the spot spot, unlimbered his holster.

"Never do show up. Just keep you waiting until you're from."

Then two headlights showed from the city side, grew bright and wider apart. They were hailing right now.

Harry twisted the spot as I selected. The light caught the other driver. He locked his wheels, swung sideways.

I heard Harry yell, "Get clear, sergeant!"

He backed his spinning wheels over the footboard, and for points north. The tan sedan spun between us like it was acting for the movies. It backed one circle, kept going.

The tail-lights faded, and I heard Harry howl, "It's them! Jump in!"

The outfit was well in the clear before we got out again. I called HQ on the two-way and gave them the dope. Then we started to edge up on them. The way we travelled over ... and ... and ... and ...

"Keep this up, and we'll finish in the morgue."

"Yeh! Better lumber your gun and start on their tires."

Little sparks of red flame came from the car ahead. Our windshield collapsed and we the dash.

I pushed open the gun port, went to work — and I wasn't aiming at rubber.

The driver gave a little jerk and the sedan skidded to the right man on the right bound over, tried to unshackle the wheels, but that time curb, slid on one side until a building stopped them. It took another hundred yards to get ourselves under control.

Back at the wreck you could hear the wail of other sirens, like a pack of hungry coyotes. It wasn't long the ambulance and dead-wagon had that job over the lieutenant gave us the good word.

Back to the station and make your report. Then you can check out."

I stamped the snow from my boots. "About time. But I'm glad we were there. They sure came belting across that bridge."

Harry wheeled us right smart to town. But he missed the turn off Fifth to headquarters.

"Hey! Where ya going?"

He grinned. "I haven't forgotten that code six seven."

"Hospital call! That's forgotten. What's in you mind? Let's get back to the."

"Pa. wife's there. I asked them to tip me off—I'd like to know if it's a boy or a girl."

Gives Warning Of Grasshopper Plague For 1948

REGINA — Warning that grasshoppers, the bane of western farmers during the mid-thirties, would be more numerous and widespread in Saskatchewan in 1948 than in any year since 1906, was issued by Agriculture Minister J. C. Nollet.

Referring to the 1948 grasshopper forecast prepared by the Dominion entomological laboratory, Saskatoon, he urged municipalities to order bait and other supplies immediately in preparation for an all-out control campaign.

"Bait sprenders should be put in working condition now," Mr. Nollet said. "A good poisoning campaign can prevent spring damage to crops and poisoning in the spring can also reduce the extent of crop damage by grasshoppers in the fall."

The Dominion entomological laboratory forecast showed grasshoppers present in sufficient numbers in 170 municipalities to threaten crops this spring, with the infested area considerably larger than the Palliser Battleford to the U.S. border and from Alberta eastward to Wynyard, Regina and Estevan.

Intensity varies from very light and patchy to continuous and severe. Infestation is largely of the roadside and field margin type, although light to moderate stubble infestation was found in all the severe and moderate areas south and east of the North Saskatchewan river. Over the rest of the area field infestation was the most severe except in a few areas of light soil.

Continuing largely to the severity of the expected outbreak are heavy concentrations of eggs of the two-striped grasshopper, Packard's

Your Implement Dealer Says:

There seems to be a widespread impression that the Art and Science of manufacturing are relatively new and developed than those of agriculture and that the manufacturing industry has outdistanced in rural industry. This is not so in this country at the present time. Farm output per man has advanced as far as factory output per man Improvements in agriculture apply to both extensive and intensive cultivation and the new types of machines and new methods of cultivation have made it possible to carry out farming on terms that at one time could only be touched by primitive implements

The advance of production per head of the farming population has been greatly aided by the farm implement dealer, for they are the distributors of the machines that make this possible. They understand your wants and needs and are willing to aid you in securing them.

LEGION BONSPIEL DRAWS VETS OF THREE WARS

If the Sedgewick Legion Bonspiel Committee was over-doubtful as to the successful outcome of their first annual bonspiel, they now know that the effort put into it was realized beyond all doubt. Twenty-one rinks took part, 14 local and 7 from two of Killam, Lougheed, Hardisty and Strome. The prize list was definately one for the purpose of get-together for Legion members and visitors. No thought of competitive or financial results were thought of by the committee, however, it did turn out that way as competition and entry been competition too.

Veterans of three wars took part, namely the war of 1914-18 and the 1939—46 and the South African War of 1900, the big war that is. There were three events. The Soccer, Tea and Ortona. The winners were as follows Vimy Event—Jim Crunch of Hardisty who defeated C. Butt on the final end. The Ortona Event was won by Thorburn of Strome who defeated V.D. Hardy. The Soccer Event went to U. Shugrue who took the measure of Henry Metz from the Lougheed Rink.

Your reporter has it that the grass, John L. Meirhead went through the various battles in quick fashion and ended up in the Ortona.

Splendid prizes were donated by the following: Benistre Bros.; Sedgewick Motors; Gosnell Grocery; The Sedgewick Cash Store; Cooper's Drug Store; Pioneer Meat Market; Hopkin Motors; Community Press; Sedgewick Beauty Parlor and J.L. Muirhead. Thanks also go to Mr. Bert Cumberland for his valuable aid at the rink. The wives of the Vets also deserve much praise for the efficient catering and the committee express ed the hope that they will be ready to help again next year.

The Legion would like to thank the Curling Club for the kindness in loaning the rink for two days and to anyone who in any manner assisted in making the spiel such a success

So long curlers, see you next year when the furnace requires shaking again.

ALF LORENZ AS AL JOLSON PLEASES CARNIVAL CROWD

The large crowd which attended the Carnival in Pea's Hall last Friday evening had an enjoyable time and the funds for the Memorial Rink are quite a boost from the proceeds.

The following people were among the lucky ones: Mrs. Harold Grant won the bridge table and chairs; Jean Schessler won the chenille bed spread and Mr. Brick Erickson won the frying pan. These were the special door prizes.

The Grant families must carry the proverbial lucky four leaf clovers Jim Jr. was first prize winner at last year's carnival and Rose won a car this summer on another draw

There was a splendid crowd in attendance and the evening was kept lighted by a short program consist ing of a male quartet and chorus singing. Al Jolson in the person of Alf Lorenz, put in an appearance with his rendition of the ever popular 'April Showers', and as usual was loudly acclaimed by the fans. Bert Hayward played two selections on the accordion.

National Health

WHEN NATIONAL HEALTH WEEK was observed in February, an official of the Health League of Canada suggested that "every week should be a Health Week and that every Canadian should be healthy." The great importance of good health, both to the individual and to the nation cannot be overemphasized. Illness is costly to the individual both in personal inconvenience and money while a nation with poor standards of health suffers an economic loss far beyond the expenses in maintaining hospitals and medical services, and in all its provisions due to illness among workers. Money spent on health education and on preventative medicine is likely in the long run to prove to be an economy both in increasing the efficiency of labor and of reducing human suffering.

* * * * *

ignorance, apathy and neglect in matters of health are among the greatest enemies of mankind. Medical science has provided us with the means of preventing many serious diseases, yet there are still some communities where either through lack of interest, or the lack of proper medical facilities, the health of the people is not protected as it should be. Immunization of children against preventable diseases, the pasteurization of milk to be sold for human consumption, regular physical examinations and healthful living and working conditions are all measures which are known to raise standards of health and should be available to every one. Continued attention to health education and steady extension of medical services would be needed to bring these benefits to all the people and there is no reason why in Canada we should not make continued progress in this matter.

* * * * *

Rural Health Service Asked

At the twelfth annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, held at Brockville, Ont., the question of rural health service was discussed and a resolution was passed demanding that the government set up a national health service which will provide benefits for those living in rural communities as good as those now provided in the cities. It was also suggested that departments of rural medicine should be set up in the medical faculties of Canadian universities to train young doctors to seek careers in districts in question, as at present those who live on farms and in small towns should not be deprived of the benefits they would enjoy if they lived in a city. For some time there has been demand for this with rural districts in all parts of the country, and it is to be hoped that the demands of the members of the C.F.A. will receive attention. Canada is a growing nation and it should be realized that high standards of health are important, in building for the future.

New-Type Wheat Ready For Growers

OTTAWA — Canada's wheat scientists, who experiments produced results in rust, lodging and rugged ness and first-rate straws for the Prairie farmer, came up with a new strain wheat called Canus, especially well-suited for growing in east-central Canada.

The agricultural department announced that the new strain developed in the central experimental farm at Ottawa, is available to farmers. Limited quantities of seed are being offered for sale next spring for seeding.

Like the other best the prairie quality and rust-resistant Reward, Canuck was developed to serve a special purpose this time to meet the frequent shortage of soft wheat suitable for the cake and pastry trade. It has been on the seed general stage since 1938.

Canada is a while, semi-hard bread wheat and resulted from a number of crosses of bob producers and pre-existential types. Under examination, it is during the last few years it has proved to be of excellent yielding ability.

SMALL ENOUGH TO ENTER THE BIT, HE'S—Lyle Esser Brooks farmer, is shown with his Hereford steer which, although he will be two years old on May 1, only is half as big as the yardstick Lyle holds. "Shorty" would be an obvious name for the steer, but—guess again—he's known as "Toby Small as he is. Toby has come a long ways from his baby days when at 21 months he might be could walk under any cow on the farm and probably had to stand on tiptoes to tickle a pet and has nearly 50 pounds [illegible] to his credit. # Pipeline From Edmonton To Regina Considered

EDMONTON. — H. H. Hewetson, president of Imperial Oil Limited, announced his company was considering construction in the near future of a $30,000,000 pipeline to carry crude oil 500 miles south and from Edmonton to prairie refining centres at Regina and Moose Jaw.

He said completion date for 1946 and 1948 would save Canada at least $40,000,000 in United States currency.

His announcements included a $20,000,000 exploratory and development well drilling programme for the Leduc-Calmar sector of the Edmonton oil field in 1948 and immediate start on erection of a gas gathering system and a $7,500,000 gas absorption plant for the field. Imperial will drill two development wells in the field by the end of the year.

In record years annual flood losses in the United States have exceeded $100,000,000.

No Australian Butter For Canada

OTTAWA. — The government has dropped the idea of obtaining butter for Canada this year from New Zealand or Australia, Trade Minister Howe told Commons.

Mr. Howe confirmed reports that Canada had sounded out the Antipodean governments on the possibility of augmenting the Dominion's stocks, but said the proposal had been attacked when it was found the United Kingdom had heavy requirements in that area.

CANADIAN EGGS STILL WANTED BY BRITAIN

LONDON — Britain's egg agreement with Australia, which is up for sell will double the quantity Australian eggs during winter months over the next four years, will not affect egg purchases from Canada, Minister John Strachey said.

Strachey told the weekly parliamentary conference that British would continue to want the maximum quantity of eggs from Canada "as long as we can pay for our supplies."

TOURIST ATTRACTION

Suggests Mounties For Border Points

VANCOUVER.—American tourists are pouring into Canada in greater numbers than ever before, despite adverse publicity in the U.S. and Canadian "austerity" plan.

R. H. Baker, secretary manager, Greater Vancouver Tourist Association, reported that tourist traffic through border points adjacent to Vancouver had increased 40 per cent. during January.

Mr. Baker also suggested that "mounties" be posted on duty at the main border crossing points. He pointed out that presence of the red coated officers would be a "major tourist attraction."

A warning to auto camp operators in B.C. was given by E. G. Robertson, deputy minister of trade and industry, who said that camps not conforming to standards set by the B.C. government travel bureau will be closed.

Shipbuilding was considered such an important occupation in the United States in 1820, that shipbuilders were exempted from military service and other public duties.

Restrictions Lifted On Alaska Road

OTTAWA. — Restrictions on tourist and pleasure travel over the Alaska highway have been removed and permits to travel over the route will no longer be required, Hon. J. A. Glen, resources minister, announced.

The announcement of and an increase in travel facilities and accommodation along the 1,523-mile route has made it possible to lift the restrictions. Previously the war-built gravel strip from Dawson Creek, B.C., to Fairbanks, Alaska, was held for military use and permits to travel over it were limited mainly to persons having business reasons for using it.

"An important contributing factor" the statement said, "has been the establishment by the Canadian government of public camp grounds at several locations along the Alaska highway in Yukon territory."

About 40 per cent. of all rope made in the United States is used on ships and in related shore activities.

B.C.'s ONLY GIRL LIGHTKEEPER RESIGNS

VANCOUVER, — Leslie Thomson, 18, only girl lightkeeper on the British Columbia coast has resigned from her post on windswept Pine Island Light. Queen Charlotte Sound, in favor of her brother, Allan.

Leslie, two years ago at the age of 14 became assistant lightkeeper when her father took over the light.

It is believed that when she got her last pay cheque, government officials did not know Leslie Thomson, who died a lonely night vigil never once a week, was a girl.

The attractive black-haired girl was christened "Leslie" and when the lightkeeping service wanted an assistant officials booked the family for her. They thought his young son Leslie was just the man for the job, and so she was appointed.

Soolingly, Leslie said she loved the sea, the light and even the seagulls.

Only visitor to the island is the supply ship which comes once monthly if it isn't too stormy. But Leslie said she had dozens of friends she saw every day. Coastal boats steamed past and blasted her a whistle. At night the friendly winking lights of passing steamers kept her company.

Leslie is so proud of the lightkeeping tradition as her grandfather was before her. For many years he, and her own father as a boy, kept the famous Scottish light of Isleseraye, first landfall of the wartime ferry pilots' trans-Atlantic trips to England.

ONE SECOND FROM ETERNITY

This letter, which first appeared anonymously in an Omaha paper and attracted wide attention, is revealed to be the work of Chester Beltz, 38, of Council Bluffs, Ia., who was Sweetest aboard a speeding United Pacific train that came close to striking an automobile at a crossing.

Vivienne Belts
"Stop, look, and listen."

"I don't know who you are, it's true, but I do know you were snared to death Sunday evening about 9 o'clock when you drove your car across the tracks directly in front of a speeding passenger train. It was so close that I, in the cab, could see the young girl (your sweetheart, I presume) throw her hands up in front of her face and cringe up against you in stark horror. If I were that young girl I'd pull away from you, fast. You don't show good sense, son. You probably say you love her. I wonder. Those we love we try to protect. But not you.

Wouldn't that have been a nice present to hand her mother—a broken and battered body? And how do you think that we in the cab of that engine would feel? We are human beings, too. We have young ones waiting home for us to return. We, too, could have been killed.

"You and your girl were one second from eternity Sunday, son.

"I hope you read this and know it means you, and that the girl will, too. Next time you go driving around, stop and look. We don't want to hit you, but we are helpless, as we cannot swerve away from our given rail.

"If I were you, son, and you, too, sis, I'd thank God for that split second he granted you Sunday evening.

"I said a prayer for all when I realized you were going across. Perhaps that's what saved us all.

"Now think it over, both of you. And I'll bet you are both still shaking at your shoes. And please for heaven's sake, don't try it again."

Reindeer Run Rings Around Snowmobile

THE PAS, Man.— A motorized bobsleigh is no match for the speed of a caribou as Chief Guardian Edward Johnanson found out.

Johnanson said he had been tobogganing from Cross Lake to Wabowden when his machine, traveling well above 30 miles an hour, overtook an astonished herd of caribou on a small lake.

The caribou observed the low-slung vehicle with interest and playfully galloped ahead for a time. But then, said Johnanson, they apparently tired of the "slow speed" and began running in circles around the traveling machine.

May Build Continent-Wide Fence Along Mexican Border To Prevent Entry Of Cattle With Disease

By A.P. Staff Writer
Central Press Canadian

WASHINGTON — It is good bet that there will soon be a $5,000,000 fence going up along the Mexican border as part of the U.S. government's plan for protecting the country's livestock from the ravages of the hoof-and-mouth disease now raging rampant in Mexico.

Should the fence be built, as many lawmakers and officials now urge, it will be the longest barrier in the world a wire curtain stretching for 1,954 endless miles between the U.S. and Mexico from the Gulf on the east to the Pacific on the west.

That would be 500 miles longer than the Great Wall of China, painstakingly built over several centuries across the north of that country to stop invading barbarians.

At first, many officials and congressmen were cool toward the idea of the super-fence. It would cost, they pointed out, heap loads of money to carry out the disease idea completely. But that was a year ago. Now they are ready to grab at straws.

This country, co-operating with Mexico has spent $15,000,000 in a vain attempt to wipe out the disease. Actually it has spread until it is here that the fence idea comes from—Pecos, Texas.

Government experts readily admit that if it were would amount to half-a-billion highly contagious infection machine the American border.

They sure-fire method of eliminating the disease is by slaughter and immediate burial of all infected and exposed animals. Until recently some Texas Americans, true as many Mexicans and most of the Mexican army were following such an eradication program. But procedure soon was quickly abandoned, at least temporarily, due to the impact on the Mexican cattle economy.

Some 500,000 cattle alone had been slaughtered, but the numbers of stricken and exposed animals remaining to be killed kept right on increasing.

Widespread Opposition

For some time, Mexican officials had argued for an end to the cattle-killing program due to the loud protests of Mexican farmers. Many have lost most or all cattle which serve both as work animals and provide their meager share of their food.

The agency was rigged for slaughter units on the Rising Sun.

Washington officials do not admit it publicly but sometimes U.S. field forces in Mexico were afraid to leave their hotels. When they took to the field they were constantly guarded by armed Mexican soldiers.

To the farmers south of the border the sanitary rifle, as they termed the guns with which cattle were dispatched, became a hated symbol for the whole slaughter program.

It is no secret that seven Mexican members of the sanitary forces were shot by village villagers who could not satisfactorily bribe them to stay their bloodlust. Unofficial estimates of the number of Mexicans killed during the eradication campaign run as high as 200.

As a result of the wide-spread opposition the slaughter campaign was slow and frustrating. Sanitary forces would work from a fenced unit" area, only to find later that the disease had reappeared there again because a farmer had concealed his infected animals in a remote hideout.

Now Mexican believed cattle slaughter was the preliminary to loss of their own lives or confiscation of the herd of. The Gringo. The Yankees of the North, they believe, are much again. Now economy has thrown some gum-rocks into Uncle Sam's Mexican public health projects.

Meanwhile, U.S. cattlemen are understandably worried stiff. Many have publicly protested abandonment of the eradication plan. But at a recent closed session in the White House President Truman scotched the suggestion that we should in effect start a get tough policy at Mexico.

Since the problem is international it could not be solved by diplomatic negotiations and persuasion.

It would effectively reports of what has been happening south of the border have not moved the president. U.S. congress for an immediate. Chairman of the senate and house agriculture committees who believe such a get tough committee to Mexico to review the eradication program have asked the agriculture department for all the facts leading up to the halt of all-out slaughter.

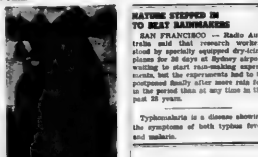
Rumors that both Mexican officials have lined their pockets with U.S. dollars paid out as indemnities for slaughter cattle are denied by agriculture officials.

Meanwhile the agriculture department, with Mexican government officials, is revamping the attack on hoof-and-mouth disease.

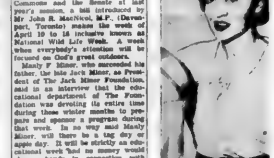
Slaughter of exposed and infected animals has stopped, as announced, within the 1,000-mile wide zone of infection clear across central Mexico. However two quarantine lines have been established in northern Mexico with slaughter continuing in a 50 mile buffer zone between them.

Slaughter Stopped

Research on the disease is being expanded and intensified in Mexico.



DOOMED — Blowing nose of this Mexican cow indicates sore feet, symptoms of hoof-and-mouth disease. A worker for the Mexican-United States commission for the eradication of hoof-and-mouth disease puts out cash-incentive to cooperating cattle farmers; for loss of their diseased cattle which have been killed. Even so, many cattle owners have protested against the slaughter of their stock.



SLAUGHTER TRENCH — Mexican sanitary corpses bury hoof-and-mouth diseased cattle, which have been killed, in trench. Lime is spread on animals to hasten decomposition of bodies. It is hoped that a 5,000,000 dollar fence would prevent diseased cattle from crossing the border into the U.S. It would be some 500 miles longer than the Great Wall of China.

Jack Miner Foundation To Sponsor National Wild Life Week

KINGSVILLE, Ont.—By a unanimous vote of The Canadian House of Commons and the Senate at last year's session, a bill introduced by Mr. John R. MacNicol, M.P., (Davenport, Toronto) became the law as of April 10 to 16 inclusive known as National Wild Life Week. A week when everybody's attention will be focused on God's great outdoors.

Manly F. Miner, who succeeded his father, the late Jack Miner, as President of the Jack Miner Foundation, said in an interview that the educational department of The Foundation was devoting its entire time during these winter months to prepare and sponsor a program during that week. In no way said Mr. Miner, will there be a big day or apple day. It will be strictly an educational week "and no money would change hands in connection with same.

A week when all churches of all denominations will be asked on Sunday, April 11, to emphasize in their sermons God's great creation and the love apparent in it to conserve the natural resources God has given to us.

The various service clubs will be asked to not only have a speaker that week speak on our National Wild Life and Conservation of nature but they will be asked to sponsor bird house building contests in the schools. The public schools will be asked during the week of April 10-16 to stress in the school classes the value of bird life and all Canada's natural resources. Canada's great outdoors.

All business concerns that advertise their goods in the press will be asked to devote their advertising space in the papers calling attention to the value and conservation of all Canada's National Wild Life. Many large stores throughout Canada have already expressed their willingness to devote their windows calling attention to the educational value of such a week throughout the entire Dominion. The newspapers, magazines and periodicals have always stood ready to do their part, said Manly Miner, in any such a worth while project which all Canada can and will benefit. In fact, he said, several magazines are already having drawings of paintings made to use on their covers to call people's attention to the importance of the week.

LESSONS, STEAKS (MAYBE)— In her father's store at Brampton, Ont., Lorna Graham gets food on cost. Hooks are 42 cents a pound, lemons two cents each. ## Home Of Tomorrow

ELECTRICAL RADIANT HEATED

RARITAN, N.J.—A "home of tomorrow" with electrical radiant heating—that is, no coal, oil or gas furnace—was exhibited here.

The new system is practical now where electricity can be obtained cheaply, and in the years to come may provide an answer to the country's dwindling oil and coal resources.

The new heating unit is installed in the ceiling of the room, and cannot be seen. It sends out heat waves that do not warm the air but do warm objects — and people — in the room.

Officials of the U.S. rubber company which developed the system pointed out that the sun is the best example of radiant heat in that it heats the earth without heating the atmosphere between the earth and the sun.

The dwelling with the new system which was exhibited is a laboratory home. It was put up by the John B. Pierce Foundation, an organization of that organization have been making tests. As part of the experiment, Mr. and Mrs. Burt Johns have agreed to live in the four-room home.

The heating panels, called radons, are heated by a conducting rubber resistant element. Manufacturers claim that rubber normally is an excellent insulator against electricity, but in these panels the chemical nature of the rubber has been reversed, thereby making it conduct electrical current. The panels are made in sizes of four feet by four but can be manufactured in other sizes. Installation is simple and less expensive than installing pipes, radiators or hot air systems.

The only hitch in the cost of electricity, the company scientists said. Estimates indicate, they said, that the system can be operated as economically as existing ones in well-insulated houses where electricity can be obtained for one and one-half cents per kilowatt hour or less.

Green, in a wide range of shades, promises to be an important color in the spring picture.

There's a lot of talk about navy for spring and navy and white certainly is as refreshing as the spring flowers and don't overlook navy and white pants.

Don't overdo the cotton dresses already being shown. They're nice for housework now and all-time wear come June. Wise women do their cotton picking before the best of the crop has been harvested!

FREE LUNCH

A man lunching in a crowded restaurant, broached to his waitress the subject of a second lump of sugar, and was sternly refused. When she had gone he felt a tug at his sleeve, and looked up into the eyes of an old gang man sitting at the next table

"Here you are, young man," she whispered, and pressed into his hand a lump of sugar she had dredged up from the bottom of her handbag "I always carry some. In case I meet a horse, you know."

LETTER TO EDITOR

The Community Press does not necessarily endorse and cannot be held responsible for the views expressed by contributors.

Dear Sir:—

The first part of last summer we had the privilege to travel by car through Alberta, B.C. and a part of Washington, Idaho and Montana. We did not take the shortest route but planned our trip so as to see as much as possible of God's wonderful creation. We saw many lone ranches along the road which were a real joy to the country, but we also saw those towns which were in such condition as to make us wonder how anyone could want to live in them. We also saw during the many years we have been living in the district, seen many fine farm homes which were a credit to the community, but these same farms changed owners and in a very few years they were a shame to the district. They have neglect written all over the place. The people of our town do not have to go anywhere to have the town depredate in every way. All that is needed is to live interest in the town and it will soon fall below the standard of all the towns along the line. We realize the many things that should be of interest to the people at Sedgewick, to a part, so far as I know there is one, a well planned park between Wetaskiwin and Saskatoon. We have the advantage of the lake and if our town fully would be an asset both to the town and to the district. Many observant people have an eagerness to see it, but a small park would not need to cost much money.

The Board of Trade was organized for the interest of the town, but unless the people take an interest in it the organization will surely die.

The annual meeting of the dramatic and District Board of Trade is to be held on MARCH 16th. Lets all be served. A speaker is invited to come and there will be an opportunity for a round table discussion on the above subject, as well as on anything that is of interest to the town and the district. Visit shows no there.

Your Hardware Dealer Says:

ENAMELWARE

Before 1850, in addition to the improvements which were made in finishing processes, several new varieties of hollow-ware came into existence. Processes had long been known for the coating of iron with vitreous enamel and, early in the century, they had been applied by Continental producers; but it was not until about 1840 that an enamelled hollow-ware manufacture was established in Great Britain. From then on wards enamelled ware began slowly to supersede the tinned articles, chiefly owing to the former's resemblance to glazed pottery and to the ease with which it could be cleaned.

Today's highly perfected enamelware includes many sizes and shapes, from the dishpan to any style or size of saucepan, double boiler, etc. necessary for your needs and they may all be found in your neighborhood Hardware Store where the owner is pleased to give you his quick and efficient service.

"They couldn't walk like other children"

It was a great day at Last Bend when they bundled the little girls with the twisted legs into the waiting plane

Few people come to Last Bend by plane. On the map the place isn't even marked. Dotted lines indicate the river course—aimless as the lives of the crippled children whose parents' sketchen parents owned the two-room shack.

Margaret had been hump up there on the bush, about 400 miles south of the Yukon border. It is a tough country, even for hard-bitten woodsmen and trappers. It demands strength and stamina. Margaret had neither. Instead, she had congenitally-deformed hips.

Only fourteen . . . and helpless

A doctor, explaining matters in lay terms, would have said that they were out of joint—the femurs parted from the sockets. Margaret merely knew that she couldn't walk like other children. Her feet turned outwards at right angles. She moved haltingly, fearfully, as if she were very old. But Margaret was just fourteen.

She had been low when Jean arrived —the little sister of the dark solemn eyes, the quick intelligence.

But a little sister born, like Margaret, with crutch-dislocated hips.

A school teacher came to Last Bend Margaret learned something then, of the world beyond the bush; heard whispered references to hospitals for crippled children. Hut, of course, her case was hopeless. It always had been.

Into another life

Yet it happened. The plight of Margaret and Jean came to the notice of the Yellow Red Cross. One morning a plane landed at Last Bend. Pilot Price friendly words among cheerful hospital children. Margaret and Jean were being treated and schooled. Already deep thinking better—much so hoped of an operation. Hope will not be denied to Margaret and her the life of an "ugly duckling."

For Margaret, too, a brighter future beckons—after an uphill fight. Age makes a difference. And 14 years is a long, long time . . . at Last Bend.

When you are asked to "help support the Red Cross", remember: It is to such hospitals and other Red Cross services for the relief of suffering, that your money will go.

Brief Sketch Of The Activities Of H. A. Head, Founder And Publisher Of "The Fertile Valley Enterprise"

HENRY A. HEAD, owner and editor of the weekly newspaper "The Fertile Valley Enterprise" published at Conquest, Sask., has disposed of his plant and The Enterprise, which has been published continuously since 1912 now passes out of existence.

Mr. Head began his printing career as a lad when he was "devil" in the office of the Hamlets, Manitoba, "Echo" published at that time by Messrs. Bd. L. Stone and Chas. W. Venables. After a few years in that office he moved to Harris, Sask., in 1911, to accept employment on the staff of the Harris "Herald". In 1912, an election year in Saskatchewan saw a change in the set-up at Harris, and Mr. Head, who at one time had hoped to purchase the plant of The Herald now these plans gave a glimmering, and in September of that year he accidentally learned that the new village of Conquest, about 30 miles across country from Harris was looking for a printer. He drove to Conquest via horse-and-buggy and by good fortune arrived in Conquest the same night the Board of Trade was meeting. After a discussion with the Board who decided to "back" him in the venture Mr Head returned for Winnipeg, and there a country lad, still in his 'teens wandered into a printing equipment wholesale house to emerge a few hours later with a deal completed to set up a plant at Conquest.

The paper press was damaged in shipment and was held up for repairs but in the early hours of the morning of November 1st, 1913, the first paper was printed.

From that time Mr. Head's round of activities has been a remarkable one. Shortly after opening, he purchased the plant of the Bounty "Advocate" which he incorporated with his own, and later published a second paper—the Ardath "Advance". Just as things were rounding out into an era of advancement the First War broke out and Mr. Head rented his plant as a going concern and enlisted with the 128th Battalion in training at Moose Jaw, Sask. Proceeding overseas he was drafted to France to the 46th Battalion and in November of 1917 was wounded in the right arm at Passchendaele. Invalided back to England he was later transferred to Pyretry Corps and again to the Railway Corps, and was stationed at Purfleet, Essex, when the armistice was signed. Held as an "indispensable" sergeant at records office at Knotty Ash camp near Liverpool he was not able to get back to Canada until late in May, 1919. Without loss of time and eager to return to the printing business he resumed control of the Enterprise in July. Business boomed but setbacks occurred. Serious breakages made it necessary to purchase a new press, and a typesetting machine. Additional territory was brought into the scope of the paper, so that to make it more embracing the name "Conquest" was dropped from the heading and the community name of "Fertile Valley" was added. Sections for the villages Bounty and Ardath were contracted for. Later a section was added for Midon.

Mr Head married Miss Dora Sibbald, of Ardath, in 1921, and their family consists of three daughters and one son. The eldest daughter, Joan, a qualified stenographer, was a member of the R.C.A.F. (WD) signal section, and is now a member of the Alberta Government Telephone executive staff in Edmonton; the second daughter, Mabel, graduated as registered nurse at Grey Nuns hospital, Regina; the third daughter, Doris, has passed through Saskatoon Normal and is now teaching at Warman, Sask. Philip, the only son, is at Ilona attending school and showing great interest in sports of all kinds.

Mr. Head carried on all the work single handed during the whole period with the exception of about three years in the late '20s.

His community service has been of dynamic and untiring nature; he was a member of the hockey team for some years; a curler; a member of the baseball team up to the time of enlistment; is a Past D.D. Grand Master of the I.O.O.F.; Past E.R. of the R.P.O. Elks; a Past Master of the Masonic Lodge; for two years a member of the Village council; for 25 years superintendent of the United Sunday School, a member of the United Church board for 30 years; a past President of the local Canadian Legion; a former director of the Fertile Valley Agricultural Society.

H. A. HEAD

This photo was taken during the First Great War, when Mr. Head held the rank of Sergeant in the Canadian Army.

A motion picture projectionist, Station Board member; organized the local Red Cross during the past war; and on committees and boards without number; also Victory Loan committee chairman.

The sale of the plant and a "tapering off" of activities was made advisable for health reasons. During the entire management of the Enterprise Mr. Head missed only three issues by reason of ill health. A fire in 1945 almost destroyed the plant but although the loss was heavy no major equipment was ruined.

Mr. Head is not retiring from public life as he will continue in his position as local postmaster.

WORD CHAUFFEUR IS FRENCH FOR STOKER

Collier's says the word "chauffeur" which has become the occupational title of drivers of all kinds of motor-cars in the French word for stoker, which was first applied to operators of the early coal-burning automobiles who literally were stokers.

Eleven hundred Methodist missions in England have learned the word "choy" in marriage ceremonies.

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

SULFA DRUGS

The sulfa drugs are so widely known, so remarkable in their effect, and so easily administered that a few words of caution about them are in order. Since these drugs have simply to be swallowed in pill form, there is a tendency for them to be used as a means of home treatment without medical advice.

These drugs form a group each especially potent against a particular number of infections. Like many effective drugs they are dangerous if not administered wisely and with the necessary precautions. This is a point that must be stressed because these drugs can result in, and have caused, death.

Fortunately your doctor can provide you with the necessary "do's and don'ts" when he prescribes a sulfa drug for your illness. He can also make certain tests which will guide him as to whether it is necessary to discontinue treatment with sulfa.

VICTORIA. — A cellophane wrapping secures the heart of a new patient in St. Joseph's hospital here after a rare and delicate operation.

The patient received the wrapping to stimulate the growth of a new wall of the heart and to prevent rupture after Dr. J. D. Silverthorn had corrected a defective condition of the aorta, a main artery from the heart.

Dr. E. I. Roxburgh, superintendent of the hospital, said he believed the operation was the first of its kind performed in Canada.

COYOTES GANG UP TO SLAY DEER WHILE RUNNING ACROSS ICE

CRANBROOK, B.C.—Around a dozen coyotes have fallen to hunters in the immediate vicinity of Cranbrook recently, victims of their own greed.

All have been shot on ice, most of them on Moyie Lake. Johnny Bayley, assistant game warden, reported seeing a coyote run down and harassing a deer on the ice, joined by a second who ripped the deer's throat, then ten others joined to feast on the carcass. The coyotes have evidently discovered the precariousness of deer running on ice, but in addition to the deer stuck in the open, many are falling to coyotes in the woods. A carcass is usually cleaned up over night.

Hunters after these predators look for the carcass on the ice, then wait near there to take a head on the gorged coyote as it lies for its lair to digest the feast, unable to run fast.

His Luck Held

PETERBOROUGH, Ont — After a giant snowplow weighing 32 tons had crossed a bridge on a sideroad here it came to another bridge that was too narrow. The driver turned around, and coming to the bridge he had just crossed, noticed the sign: "Gross weight limit: 8 tons." He took the 32 tons safely across again—with his heart in his mouth.

New Development At Nylon Plant May Revolutionize Canadian Textile Industry

The improved lap is carded into "slivers" and the spiral wound into cans. The drawing machine is fed from 24 cans and combines a group of six nylon and wool "slivers" into one. These will be long wearing, easy to clean and will have excellent appearance and handle. Sheets, blankets, other fabrics, process efficiency may be improved owing to the strength and uniformity of the staple.

While still in its infancy, nylon staple fibre is another test-tube baby slated for a bright future. From pre-liminary opinion surveys, there appears no doubt it will grow into an all-hard-working a giant as its parent— rayon — to obtain Nylon staple.

Its Advantages

From the manufacturers' viewpoint the use of nylon fibre has important advantages. It can be processed in the same manner as the natural fibres on the cotton, woollen or worsted systems with a minimum of alterations or adjustments. In blends with other fibres, process efficiency may be improved owing to the strength and uniformity of the staple.

From the consumer's viewpoint the use of nylon staple in the manufacture of fabrics for clothing, furnishings and industrial purposes will undoubtedly be of great benefit. It is confidently expected that the greatest strength, abrasion resistance and resiliency of the fibre are the particular properties which make its use in these specific products so desirable.

Its Future

The manufacturers' viewpoint is that the use of nylon staple in the manufacture of fabrics for clothing, furnishings and industrial purposes will undoubtedly be of great benefit. It is confidently expected that the greatest strength, abrasion resistance and resiliency of the fibre are the particular properties which make its use in these specific products so desirable.

Revenue From Alberta Oil Almost Doubled

Daily Income For December Was $87,857 Compared With $36,923 Of 1946

CALGARY — The rush of revenue from oil production in Alberta almost doubled during the past year. Oil revenue in December, 1947, was $87,857 daily compared with $36,923 daily in December, 1946, according to the monthly report of the Alberta Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board.

Footage more than doubled in December, 1947, when a total of 81,000 feet were drilled compared with 39,083 feet in December, 1946.

Daily production was 21,648 barrels in December, 1947, compared with 18,251 barrels daily in December, 1946.

In December, 1947, Leduc produced 90,756 barrels of oil, compared with 89,211 barrels from Turner Valley. The Valley also produced 43,800 barrels of natural gasoline. However the Valley was still on the decline Leduc stood a good chance of being Alberta's first producer by the end of 1949.

The total value of oil taken in December, 1947, was almost double the 1946 figure $2,670,700, compared with $1,113,198 in December, 1946.

TINY TRACTOR CLAIMED BOON TO FARMERS

NEW YORK — A new lightweight all-purpose tractor which its producer said "would emancipate the small farmer" was given its premiere showing here.

Joseph W. Frazer, president of Frazer Farm Equipment Corp., told distributors and dealers that "a farmer using this machine with its rotary tiller attachment can prepare more ground for planting in less time than if he used an old-fashioned high horsepower tractor pulling two 12-foot plows."

Smaller than a midget automobile, the tractor is labeled the model T. Jacques-Frazer tractor.

Frazer said the air-cooled, aircraft type engine was the smallest ever to power a tractor in this country. It will run one to two hours on a gallon of gasoline, he said, or after a warm-up can be switched to burn kerosene.

:: Two-Implement Hitches ::

This hitch system will keep two seed drills tracking properly behind a tractor. The second drill is hitched to the hitch plates permit the drills to bend as the tractor and truck cavries the tongue of the rear drill.

WHERE it is necessary for implements to track perfectly as it is in seeding operations the multiple-hitching problem which will permit the full exploitation of the possibilities of tractor power becomes a little difficult.

In order to hitch two seed drills behind a tractor it is necessary to build a truck to be hitched behind the tractor, the drills being hitched to the truck. The accompanying drawing shows such a truck arranged to hitch two drills or other tillage machines of similar construction behind it. These trucks can be built in almost any farm shop. The hitch plates are made of ¼-inch by 2½-inch engine bars. Holes are drilled into these hitch-bars to permit sideways adjustment of the hitch so that the machines can be made to track properly with each other.

You will notice that one drill is hitched close to the left hand side of the truck, while the second drill will need to be hitched behind a trailing truck. Since the drills cannot be hitched alongside, one must be hitched behind the other, so that they can be made to track properly. The wheels of the truck are ordinary implement wheels about 3 ft. high with holes which will fit straight stub axles. Axles may be bolted or clamped to the underside of the long axle timbers. Yellow pine or fir should be used for these timbers. Stub tongues are used on the drills, and the hitching iron should be so made that the machines will run on an even keel. That is, the tongues of the drills should be carried at about the same height as would be the case if hitched to horses.

MOVIE STAFF TAKE WAGE CUT

HOLLYWOOD. — Producer Samuel Goldwyn announced that the entire executive staff has agreed to a 50 per cent. pay cut. The wage slash does not affect stars' salaries.

The cut reflects a sharp income drop in the movie industry, particularly in overseas revenues. Britain last year sharply cut her import quota of Hollywood productions and 16 countries have taken similar dollar-saving measures.

Smile of the Week—

PUTT-PUTT

"Where have you been?"
"Having my hair cut."
"You know you can't have your hair cut in Ann's time."
"Well, it grew in the time's time, didn't it?"
"Not all of it."
"Well, I didn't have it all cut off."

Cargo tonnage on the Great Lakes in 1945 exceeded all exports and imports of the United States at all salt water ports.

Scene Of Macdonald's Brier Tankard Event

CALGARY — True Scotsmen will shudder—or is it the thought, but the 1948 Canadian curling championship is going western. In fact the well-dressed curler now may be wearing a tam-o'-shanter and a modified version of the traditional Tam-O-Shanter and kilts.

For this Foothills city, home of the world-famous Calgary Stampede and host for the annual Brier, has great plans to add a touch of the Old West to the ancient Scottish pastime.

Not only will there be a few new prizes for visiting curlers of a devoted western flavor — K. Thompson, president of the Alberta branch, Royal Caledonian Curling club of Scotland, said. The branch is in charge of arrangements for the championship event which will find rinks representing each of the nine provinces competing in a round-robin series for the Dominion title.

"We are not going to reveal our full plans, but the programme this year will be something vastly different from anything attempted before," Mr. Wilson said with a chuckle.

One of the keynotes of the tourna- part in the welcoming ceremonies. ment is a display of true western hospitality for visiting rinks and officials starting with a civic reception and parade when the majority of the rinks arrive here. Civic officials and Alberta government heads taking

Despite the emphasis on a western spiel, traditional Scottish ceremonies observed during the last 18 years of the competition will not be forgotten with kilted pipers scheduled to lead each parade honoring the curlers.

THE SPORT WORLD

Distance means nothing to Walter Pehkit of Virginia, Minn., when it comes to entering bonspiels and the veteran skip has estimated he had travelled 50,000 miles yearly the past few years to compete in bonspiels. Playing in Manitoba's Diamond Jubilee bonspiel at Winnipeg, the Pehkit rink has also been on the mat down at Quebec City, Montreal, Chicago, Milwaukee and Nipawin Sask., in its quest for curling honors and fun since the start of 1946.

Brooklyn Dodgers has announced that Jackie Robinson, their star Negro first-baseman, had signed his 1948 baseball contract. Terms of the contract were undisclosed but it was taken for granted he received a good boost above the $5,000 he received in 1947, his rookie year.

If Max Bentley, high-scoring centre of the Toronto Maple Leafs wins the N.H.L. scoring title this season, he will be the first player to ever win the scoring championship for three consecutive seasons. Bentley finished the 1945-46 and 1946-47 season at the top of the scoring parade.

Doug Bentley of the Chicago Black Hawks received an assist on a goal by Roy Conacher on Thursday night without even having a stick in his hands. Although Bentley had lost his stick, he still was able to hitch the puck over to Conacher and Conacher was credited with an assist by the official scorer.

Vancouver may be the scene of a western Canada amateur boxing tournament if plans of the British Columbia Department of Recreation materialize. The department plans to organize elimination tournaments in the four western provinces with the winners of each province meeting for finals late in April.

President A. W. Pickard of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said "every consideration" would be given a recommendation of the Ottawa and District Hockey Association that the R.C.A.F. Flyers, Olympic hockey champions, be permitted to challenge for the Allan cup.

University of Alberta Golden Bears hold the western intercollegiate hockey championship for the fifteenth consecutive year. The Albertans defeated University of Saskatchewan Huskies 7-1 to win the four-game series 10 goals to 14.

Canada could probably stage the 1952 world figure-skating championships if it wanted, M. J. Clarke of London, president of the International skating union, said. He added that the I.S.U. has not been formally approached by Canadian or United States figure-skating associations but he understood they were keen to getting the championships next year.

Helpful Hints

To remove berry or other fruit stains from the fingers, rub the hands with lemon juice. Table cloths that have become stained with berry-juice should be draped over a basin and boiling water poured on the stain.

The bonnet silhouette is being adopted for many of the early spring hats. These hats, while not really bonnets, fit the back of the head snugly, but flare becomingly at the face.

Manitoba's Dairy Industry Growing

MANITOBA'S dairy industry is now in a healthy condition, and also showed progress in 1947, according to Wm. Hollingsworth, Kirkfield Park, president of the association held its 43rd annual meeting in Winnipeg recently with Wm. Hollingsworth, Kirkfield Park in the chair. He also presided over the annual banquet at which some two persons greeting up. This year was one no doubt to become popular with both of the farm power. Wide areas of the land, and the present increasing load, for years and more, and a strong, change toward labor saving machinery. The tendency at to the adoption of farm power was to use tractors for the heavy work of plowing and the seeding work of harvesting where their use of unusual importance. The speed with which power and machinery have changed the various methods of getting food and clothing from the soil and such a mass from the begin of power-driven man hours is attracted by specially prepared statistics. The most outstanding of these advantages of course recognized as resulting from the use of power and machinery, better quality of products as the result of having the work particularly the harvesting of the right time, better yields resulting from precise planting of certain crops, greater workmanship and less waste through wastefully and cutting

The Fate Of Fair Rosamond

The evening sun was shining On old stone castle walls
The merry peaks were dimly rose Where evening shadows fall.

There sat beside the wishing well, A maiden young and fair;
Her lips were red, her eyes were blue And jet black was her hair.

Young and lovely as she was Her thoughts were sad and deep;
Her love was to meet her there The promise he did not keep

Then from against the sunset Came the silhouette of a knight—
He was so strong, so gallant That she forget her plight.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to Fr. McCarthy the Sisters and staff of the Killam Hospital, Dr. Yaholnitz and all those who in any ways helped make our loss beloved husband and our worthy stay in hospital pleasant, and to the many friends for their spiritual and floral tributes, expressions of sympathy and many other kindnesses shown us in our recent and bereavement
Mrs. Geo. Borgel and Family

"Lovely maiden, did he say, when He sighted from his steed,
'Why weepest thou' Must surely be A predicament indeed.'

Ah, strong and gallant knight, spoke she
'I know not why I cry'.
She really did but do you think She'd really tell him why'

Fair one, do not be so sad
Will thou come with me"
I'll give you gold and silken jewels If you my wife will be'

Then with a surge of joy in her heart She dried her tear-stained eyes, He lifted her to his saddle, Despite her fathers cries'.

Her father, Sir Charles, was raving To see his daughter borne away; He sprang to the stirrup and called to his sons,
They all were determined to stay.

Though they sped thru' the woods and the wilds
Sir Charles caught up and drawing his sword
The two began to fight.

Fair Rosamond in sad once more— She pores through the halls; She is more lonesome than before— No admirers come to call.

Sir Charles has cast upon her a curse That if it should ever
She venture past the castle walls 'Twould be the last of her.

Canada's Resources

IT IS APPARENT THAT CANADA'S vast wealth of undeveloped natural resources is assuming increasing importance as a source of raw materials as the continent's once present supplies of oil, minerals, and forest products do not now give promise of meeting the growing world demand for them. Although there are extensive developments here in mining for gold and metal production, there are still great areas which have yet to be explored and where this is done it will afford Canada a future in many fields, including the fields of employment and bringing increased activity to the business and economic life of the country. Although extensive developments are expected to take place in the immediate future it is interesting to speculate on the vast store of natural resources should, in time, be brought into use and already geologists, prospectors and engineers have made reports of finds considered likely to yield valuable raw materials.

Rich Deposits In Labrador

What is Labrador where for some time large numbers of men have been engaged in staking maps, and preparing the foundation to be developed. The results of this work are of the utmost importance to Canada and to the industrial world of the whole continent. At present the richest source of [illegible] North America is in the north-central United States but this area is now practically exhausted. As they cease to yield iron ore, the steel and allied industries will gradually move to the Labrador coast and that the deposits in Labrador will become the chief source of iron material for the industry on this continent. Recent surveys have also been made of the area bounded by Yellowknife, Hudson's Bay, the Manitoba boundary and the Arctic Islands and it is expected that valuable deposits will soon day be developed in that territory.

Interest Shown In Oil Fields

Recently a shortage of oil supplies on this continent have directed attention to the Leduc oil field in Alberta which gives promise of ranking as one of the most productive in North America. There are also possibilities of some day producing oil in quantity from the tar sand deposits in northwestern Canada. In fact to-day the production of oil in Western Canada is also expected to expand in the future although the other industries already been highly developed in this country. Advantage is also being taken of the pulp and paper industry, where there is a great attraction of waste products now contributing to the greater output in these fields. The fact that Canada has a small population in comparison to the extent of the country and also to the fact that our natural resources are further removed from the centres of industry in the great areas of the United States have retarded the development of many of these areas. It now appears, however, that we are about to see some of these areas developed, and it is to be hoped that such developments will be carried out with wisdom and in a manner which will be of benefit to the people of Canada and to industries both here and abroad.

Trapper Captures White Wolf After Struggle In Snowbank

FORT ST JOHN B.C. Struggle staged in and grappled with the wolf, he take a knife which he used a pistol of the beast's ay was 11 lbs. by Leo-la Callison name hugged the animal down into the Callison trapper. Callison found a snowbank and managed to slip the fur-bearing beast in his trapline sled handle over its fangs and jaws, and carried it to Hudson Bay Harbour.

The wolf is the largest of the game birds seen by the trapper this season, he said, although Callison decided to take the wolf alive with a hope of increasing the animal with his big Kenai Reindog dogs.

Callison's trapline extends to gasoline and must travel 150 miles to fetch supplies. He has roped the wolf's front paws and tied the jaws so another free.

Eide, a Norwegian, told an audience here that Alaskan gold fields have barely been scratched, while untapped oil seems to the surface in other areas.

Eide warns against over-optimism, however. For instance, he said, he spent 18 months alone in waste country before he made a "find."

Eide also warned potential prospectors that Alaskan economy is based on the purchasing power of mated prices there to be about 60 per cent higher than in the United States.

The palm tree is so named because of a fancied resemblance of the leaves to the outspread hand. The same means "palm of the hand".

GARDEN NOTES

Sod Too Soon For Planting

There are a lot of things a gardener can do in the garden as soon as ready for planting, such as sod a lot too early to start in them. There will be plans to make seed catalogues and bulbs to buy and supplies to be ordered. It is of no early either to start looking around for damage, to see what frosts and flowers have come under during the winter, to make a note of gaps to be replaced.

In this preparatory work planning for the coming season is the most important and probably the most pleasant. A good garden is one with help in this will be in those that people put in their time of blooming over the whole vegetables of a season. Remembering these facts will help in getting a garden with flowers and vegetables such as plenty of small things which large ones, big vegetables and flowers together. In planning the vegetable garden it is best to keep in mind the need of all.

By making careful, in time of blooming or the order of dates to maturity it is [illegible] and [illegible] flowers. Here is a list of vegetables in their order of maturity, beginning with the earliest: Radish, onion, lettuce, peas, beans, beets, carrots, parsnips, cabbage, cauliflower, celery, corn, tomatoes and melons. It is also advisable to plant several times, say, once a little ahead of normal, then normal then later than normal. This will spread out vegetables and flowers for.

As Soon As Possible

One of the first seeds to be sown will be peas. They should go in just as soon as the soil is worked. They are a hardy plant and like a deep fresh, rich soil. Sow in a fairly well raised manner or [illegible] firmly pressed down with a hoe. Peas are long-legged, gradually the trench will fill in and a deep, straight row of good growth is developed. Later on sow brush or stronger should be provided for support. Frequent picking of flowers will assure long blooming.

Grass Seed Early, Too

Good seed with lawns is vitally important. For special purposes like shady places there are special types of grass or mixtures. Select a seed with as little weed as possible to sow the grass seed, and sow it both across and lengthwise. Now plenty of seed and fertilize. Then, well-fed grass will crowd out most weeds. 2706

Little Hope Of Rise In Game Bird Bag Limit

BRANDON Man. — There was little hope that the bag limit for migratory birds would be increased this year, Bob Roberts retiring president of the Brandon Rod and Gun Club, Manitoba stated at annual meeting.

While there had been a fairly good duck hunting season Manitoba in fall limits has been made in some other sections of the country.

He said hopes could be held over the suggestion presented for a prairie chicken season on a limited scale and upland game hunting a good combination. Discussion had also with regard to the possibility of game farms with a view to restocking. Big game was particularly mentioned he said and as a result of considerable damage done in that district was asked to [illegible] an open season on [illegible] deer.

Due to high water in both rivers and lakes fishing had not been too good in the district so far. There was a prospect he said that Sandy Lake would be restocked.

ALBERTA COMBINES EARNED $820,000 IN U.S. HARVEST

Largest acreage was in Kansas approximately 15,000 acres of wheat. Trek started in August the combines to the United States also hauled an estimated 1,500,000 bushels of grain during the harvest.

No definite arrangements have yet been made for a similar scheme this year, but inquiries have been received from about 250 persons

LETTER TO EDITOR

Dear Sir:

Referring to the coming election in our Municipality, I would like to call the attention of the electors in Div. No. 7 to give serious consideration when casting their votes.

Flagstaff M.D. has been fortunate indeed in having a Reeve with the foresight and capability of Mr. C.P. Hayne, which is quite apparent to anyone attending the annual meetings and hearing him in his report, giving statistics from the different Municipalities in comparison to ours, and also having the other Municipalities' business right on the tips of his fingers.

I admire the courteous manner in which he replies to all questions asked, and no matter who puts a question to him, it is answered in fair manner.

With all due deference to the present Councillors and to the new candidates, we will get a long way before we get a man to look after our interests better than our present Reeve. — Div. 3 Ratepayer.

CUTLERY

There is a certain amount of cutlery displayed in all Hardware Stores, knives and cutting instruments used for domestic purposes. It also includes razors, scissors, carving forks and steels used for harpening knives.

Among primitive peoples in pre-historic times, cutting tools and weapons used in hunting and defence were made from stones and flints. Later with the coming of a knowledge of the use of metals, cutting tools were made of bronze and iron. The Romans taught the early Britons much concerning the working of iron, and the Norman invaders are said to have brought over many smiths and skilled workers in metal. Some of the early knives and other weapons acquired a high reputation for perfection and skill in production, and examples of Toledo and Damascus blades remind us of the high quality of these productions. ## Institute Reports Progress In Its Research For Cancer Cure

PHILADELPHIA.—Mice have been immunized against some forms of cancer, Lankenau Hospital's institute for cancer research disclosed. A human blood test to detect the disease has worked in at least one case.

The developments in fighting the second most deadly disease in the United States were reported as the American Cancer Society gave the institute $100,000 for research directed towards a cure

But Dr Stanley P Reimann, institute director warned: "We must guard against raising false hopes."

The immunization work has been done with bacterial polysaccharides — a group of starches the institute said.

It also disclosed it has been experimenting with teroplasts, a toxic acid derivative which has growth-control points

Both polysaccharides and teroplasts have been used on human patients. The folic acid derivative relieved symptoms of cancer and in a pain killer.

Detection of cancer through a blood test was accomplished for the first time only a few weeks ago, another institute scientist, Dr Gail Miller, reported.

Dr. Miller said the patient had been examined by X-ray and cancer was not indicated.

Then a test was made by passing an electric current through human mangles.

Dr. Miller described the test as "electrophoresis", a process which causes proteins to migrate to the negative and positive electrodes under the influence of an electric current.

THE DAYS WHEN A DOLLAR BOUGHT SOMETHING

Grace Lockhart, in the Vancouver Province, tells of days of sixty minutes.

I'm a presbyter for old newspapers When I finished reading the columns and columns of eulogy given Sir John A. Macdonald, in the June 11, 1891 edition of the Belleville Weekly Intelligencer, I spent hours poring over the old advertisements.

Right at the top of page one, as the best place on the page, right beside the lead about Sir John, is an ad. for Ball corset. This catches your eye because there in a drawing is a buggy-load of corsets flying in the air. No sign of the corset, but this description:

"It's easy enough the Ball corset. That's because it has coils of fine wire springs in the sides. They follow the figure closely, but yield to every motion. They give and they come back. So does your money if you've worn a Ball corset two or three weeks and find you don't like it."

Fair enough Thank of being enamoured of fine wire springs!

You could buy dress muslin, fast colors, for 10 cents a yard shrunk Five eight cents a pound, butter 14 to 20 cents a pound, eggs 10 to 12 cents a dozen, potatoes 30 cents to $1 a bag, chickens 30 to 50 cents a pair, geese 60 to 75 cents, turkeys 50 cents to $1.50 The market for fat cattle was considered good at 4½ to 5 cents a pound. Dressed sheep were from $3.50 to $5.50 each You could buy a six pound tin of tea, the best, for $2.10

Wouldn't you wonder why every body seemed to have consumption or the itch, or rheumatism, when food was so plentiful, and so good." Nobody ever got licked by a motor car in those days a though there seemed to be the odd murder here on the path—mail.

Even if you didn't have a car, you could buy a top buggy for $65; but what really got them excited was a Gladstone The newest thing in a carriage "The seats, which work automatically, can be change from a two to a four-passenger vehicle by simply lowering the backboard It is particularly adapted for a ladies' Gladstone and the novelty, combined with its stylish appearance and comfortable ride, makes it a great favorite."

This firm also had some new phaetons and road carts

The C P R. advertised an excursion to Manitoba and all points in the Northwest, leaving on June 9 $28 return, good for 60 days. That really wasn't so cheap My father went West for $90 in '76.

At a smart wedding the bride wore a dress of cream cashmere and a handsome pair of white kid slippers.

Life seemed to have no complications in those days. With all the butter and eggs you wanted, with cheap clothing and a buggy for $65, with the good Queen sitting firmly on her throne, no wonder the country dreamed the long days away. Little knowing that right in front of them was a succession of wars — the atomic bomb — the Communists, the butter seventy-five cents a pound."

China To Get Canada Wheat

WASHINGTON.—The administration's China and programme provides for the purchase of approximately 120,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and 67,200,000 pounds of Canadian flour.

Purchases in Canada would not begin until after July 1 because of the current world wheat shortage. New crops after that date, the department said, should prove ample to meet China's requirements

Wheat for the $120,000,000 China programme also will be purchased in the United States and Australia

About three-fifths of the proposed Canadian wheat and flour is programmed for the July-December period. The remainder is scheduled for purchase between January and June 30, 1949

MAN WITH LONG SLEEP WILL NEVER WAKEN AGAIN

FRAMINGHAM, Mass.—The long sleep that began for Ralph C. Abbott, 32, over a year ago, continued today and doctors said he never will waken again. On Feb. 17, 1947, his automobile struck a tree and he was hurled against a stone wall. Surgeons reported that damage to his brain governing voluntary motion, consciousness and the emotions was past repair.

DOG SURVIVES 37 DAYS IN WILL.—Well at Perth, Ont., held dog 37 days until Stewart Moodie, laborer, went down on rope to rescue him. From 55 pounds, Nuggy starved to 17 pounds. He is said to have lived on water Well was 70 feet deep. Experts says 37 days without food is a record, so the dog survived.

Sask. University Fees Increased

SASKATOON.—University student fees have been increased $20 to $100 in the first move of the board of governors of the University of Saskatchewan to remedy the $179,305 deficit in university operations this year The new scale of fees will go into effect after July 1

This was decided, Dr. J. S. Thomson, president, announced at a meeting of the board of governors

The greatest percentage increases occurred in the college of medicine, and in the school of agriculture, where fees were boosted 100 per cent Next fall, when students make their annual visit to the bursar's office, medical students will have to pay $275 instead of $175 while students enrolled in the school of agriculture will pay $40 instead of $20

"The reasons for the increase is the sharp rise in costs of maintaining the university," Dr. Thomson said. "All costs have gone up—material, equipment, heating, lighting, wages and salaries. The board of governors has not decided that free must be incurred at the university is to carry on its work

Thirty Seismograph Parties To Work In Alberta By Spring

EDMONTON. It was announced here that as many as 30 seismograph parties will be working in Alberta by late spring The parties will cost approximately $250,000 a month to maintain.

It is estimated that a major part of the $28,000,000 to be spent in a search for oil in 1948 throughout the Dominion will be spent in Alberta

The seismograph procedure alone will employ about 900 highly-trained experts, geologists engineers, geophysicists, parties, surveyors and computers.

Seismographs have long been used to record earthquakes but in modern days searching for oil they are employed routine They are made earthquakes in order to find traps beneath the surface

The theory is that by exploding charges of dynamite perhaps a hundred feet down, they set up shock waves in all directions

The shock waves bounce off each layer of rock below and a nearby sound truck records them as they return for his book, "Utopia."

The Life Of A Country Editor

Saskatchewan weekly journalism is still robust

After reading it country editors all over the province — and some farmers on the district will appreciate the feelings of Editor Bert McKay as he sat down to write the following for his Weird Spectator at Moosomin:

The office staff had a generous cutting of pie to handle last week, on the morning of paper day, and the effort was not pleasant. We don't mean pumpkin pie or pour pie, but prenier a pi

In other words, the front page shot off the press and crashed in a shuddering heap on the floor. After saying "ist, ist" and goodness sake, we started in to mend the damage.

That front page was shattered of the floor, into a basin, where it was smashed, mixed and put back in place, a mere matter of a couple of days

A new front page was set up, with all members of the staff going all out. We had the paper back on the press by Tuesday and just they the paste went to the mix.

"While we fixed it, we run off about 1000 papers. Just when we started the folder, the power went off. So we folded a thousand or so by hand — how would you like to cut your crop with a scythe."

Finally the power came on, the paper was held over. If your paper was late, we're sorry Now you can be sorry for us more on long strips of photographs

From these lines, gathered in repeated tests in the Mojave Desert, determine location of the rock traps. There is no guarantee that the traps will hold oil but chances of finding oil are better in area of seismic highs when moderate salt traps a mile below the surface

So Thomas Moore English statesman and author (1414-1535), lived at Beaufort House, Chelsea, London, Sir Thomas is chiefly known today for his book, "Utopia."

Old Dutch Paintings On Display In Ottawa Retain Glowing Beauty After 400 Years

Consulate Helped Restore "Old Masters" Cracked Oil By Germans During The War

By ERNA JAQUES
Central Press Canadian

OTTAWA — This week Canada's capital city has quietly visitors not there, but 400 and 500 years ago, which came through fire and water, been lost and found again, survived strange and hostile lands, and finally, after all or you from gold- and frames and their beauty glows as a fresh as created yesterday! They are a full 15 old Dutch paintings on loan to the Dutch government so that the United States and a few Canadian cities in Canada might rejoice over their restoration.

His excellency the Netherlands ambassador to Canada described them as "Some representative monuments of our nation's grateful remembrance would be found than our old masters ranging probably among the world's greatest achievements, they are at the same time entirely characteristic of the nation they spring from: they reveal the essential traits of our people in their clear and patient realism, in the mystic quality of their light — in their love of still things the Rembrandt — the deep sense of freedom and dignity . . . To Canada these paintings shared our wartime destiny and bring a practical message that what brave Canadian soldiers helped to save and they have not only the soil and the air they have in the hands and soul of a

Taken By Nazis

Hundreds of the most precious masterpieces of Holland were carried off by the Germans and stored along with priceless art of Hitler and his henchmen lists of Nazi propaganda and looted from other occupied countries, in castles in Munich, Berlin and other centres. After the Allied armies marched in one of their first jobs was to search gathering up these priceless treasures and returning them to their respective countries.

They set up art collecting points and dispatched treasures" and identified people from the claimant countries to prove their Art scholars were called in and all the marvelous work of restoring them to their owners was set in motion. As soon as a painting or jewelery tapestries furniture is safe, or sculpture piece was identified beyond question, it was set aside and when a truckload was gathered they were sent back to their respective countries.

Great was the rejoicing in Holland some few precious paintings came home in gratitude for this. A small selection of them are now on loan to America to be shown in the United States as it was mostly Americans who had charge of this phase of restoration. Ottawa Montreal and Toronto will be the only Canadian cities so favored as they must be returned to Holland by April 1st

One of the paintings is a church interior showing the square paving of the times, the rich woodwork and the forefront the dignified figure of a woman as prim and sedate as her modern sisters walking with clasped hands, while her little boy toddles after

A shating scene, done in the 16th century, shows men playing a sort of hockey with shorter sticks than in use today but the idea and where details shown are identical and you realize that ice hockey wasn't started by the Maple Leafs.

Dead Peacocks

Dead Peacocks shows two birds and a woman lolling at them rather nasty for they ravaged beauty. The name of Rembrandt is painted in the corner in clear "locked letters like a child's printing

One canvas dated the middle of the 16th century shows a stately man all and serious tall and well dressed whose rich costumes tell the story of their day "Show Piece", dated 1643, is a group of articles arranged on a satin damask table cloth. Here fine white leaves of parchment, a plate of fruit, an orange half peeled a beautiful large shell whose colors are so true to life and so luminous you would think you were looking at a shell just fished from the ocean yesterday. A tall silver teapot with delicate carving completes this picture

The "Eavesdropper" is rich in humor and color, as a playful girl hides behind a post, listening to her suitor and her lover in the hall below His crimson cloak, embroidered in gold, hangs over a chair and the light on her face shines brightly down over three hundred years of time.

Still Fresh Color

Dutch art never requires far from water and shore lines and many of these paintings depict the sea moods ships, as well as pastoral scenes from this little country so rich in pride and culture, as cruelly and proud of her heritage of art and beauty.

The serene brilliant colors of these paintings have depths and glow that when held day-by-day after day beauty leaves one with a sense of amazement. It makes one wonder that anything so fragile and beautiful could survive wars and flood and fire and still retain their excellence

The Netherlands ambassador spoke truly when he said, "These are not dead museum pieces but a living part of our world, and Netherlanders still feel reverently at home with

Alberta's Athabaska Tar Sands Contain 'Billions of Barrels' of Oil

(By Charles J Woodsworth
In Ottawa Citizen)

ALTHOUGH Canada today produces only about 10 per cent of her crude oil requirements, her oil resources are considered by government scientists to be almost limitless. One principal drawback stands in the way of immediate exploitation That is cost

Here is the Dominion's 1947 crude oil production picture

The North-West Territories crude, produced at the Norman Wells field, is now used to speed only locally at Yellowknife and at other mining developments on Great Bear Lake

By far the greater part of Canada's production is extracted from Alberta's Turner Valley For years now the output of this field has been steadily declining Then on February 1947, after an estimated $25 million had been spent in fruitless exploration, oil welling the Imperial Oil Company's trish oil at Leduc

IMPROVEMENTS IN MACHINERY

Improved steels really made it practicable to have lighter, less bulky machines that tend to avoid soil compaction and return to the original line of travel, thus reducing draught; enclosed gears that require infrequent lubrication and hence keep longer; long life bearings; force feed lubrication on some of the more complex machines; planting depths and seeding spacing devices that greatly improve accuracy of plant placement and cut down later blower in seeding the crops.

HOTTON'S CAMROSE RINK LOSES A CLOSE ONE

The one and only Tate' Hotton rink of Camrose, and hereby a local fame, aided and abetted by William The Bill' Rowe (alias wife Rowe herself), Peter Kline and Carl Revers, invaded the local stamping ice last Saturday evening with the avowed intent and purpose of instilling into the minds of local residents a correct knowledge of the arts o curling as is done at Camrose, and also to renew old acquaintances.

The Secretary of the Sedgewick Club, who went by the J.B. Tom berland acquired the services of A. P. 'Cesse' Smith, Lefty Cooper and Biddy Eisely, and promptly took up the challenge issued on the Alberta Cor. Telephones.

Right from the start it could be seen that here was going to be th epic event of the season and the curling climax to a dreary month. The two rinks battled down to the judge time with the score tied at 8 all, and with Hotton holding an eye in the form of last rock. He came through nee with a beautiful draw shot to the top line to punish the cherished ideals of baron and enter the local hall of fame.

It will be remembered that Tate Hotton and Bill Rowe have been curling around here in the not too distant past. They haven't lost much over the years.

THANK YOU

To the electors of Division No 7, Flagstaff M. D. N. ... ... ... for the confidence shown in me for the renewal of confidence shown in the recent election. It shall be my endeavor to merit your continued confidence. — C. P. Hayes.

Methods For Defense

AT THE PRESENT TIME THE PROSPECTS for establishing permanent world peace could not be said to be encouraging, but neither is there reason to believe that a third World War is inevitable. In no country is there greater hope for lasting peace than in Canada, for although we were not subjected to direct attack this country has participated actively in two great wars in the last thirty years and has learned the great cost of modern warfare in men and resources. It is now realized, however that with the present rapid developments in armaments we would be liable to attack in the near future regardless of where hostilities should break out. With this in mind Canada is being armed forces are being trained in advanced methods of defence although it is earnestly hoped that it will never be necessary to use them with effect for this purpose.

Learn Lessons From The Past

In this as in many other things an attempt is being made to profit by the lessons of the past. Had Western Europe been well prepared for attack in 1940, the Germans might not have set out on their great program of aggression, or had they started, they might have been successfully turned back. Preparedness against attack by peace-loving nations may indeed be a powerful instrument in discouraging aggressive warfare and in framing an efficient defensive force for Canada is in no way giving up hope for a lasting peace. In framing her armed forces Canada is also profiting from experience gained in the last war, and is emphasizing the value of combined action of the army, navy and air force in modern warfare. The effectiveness of such co-ordination was proved by the Germans in their blitzkrieg attacks in the early part of the last war and by the gigantic combined operations used by the Allies in the invasion of the continent.

Officers Now Being Trained

At the National Defence College at Kingston, Ontario, officers are now being given training in interservice co-ordination as well as in the industrial mobilization which is required for war. They are also receiving instruction in international politics with emphasis on the underlying political situations which lead to war. As a further step in broadening officers' training, permission has been made to re-open the Royal Military at Kingston next fall, and to admit cadets from the three armed services. At the Royal Roads Naval College at Victoria air cadets have already been enrolled and next September army cadets will also be admitted there. In this way, reserve officers will be trained in the very important matter of co-operative action among the three armed services. While it is not pleasant to contemplate the possibility of another war, we should nevertheless appreciate the fact that thought is being given here to the need for preparedness in three uncertain times.

Not Just Exactly What Farrier Meant

May Develop Perennial Wheat In 10-20 Years

University Of Saskatchewan Scientists Say Plenty Of Time Needed To Cross Wheat And Grass Plants

SASKATOON University of Saskatchewan scientists estimate 10 to 20 years may be needed for completion of experiments that hold staggering possibilities for wealth agriculture development of perennial wheat.

Cautious researchers will make few predictions except that plenty of time and a fair amount of luck are involved in crossing thousands of wheat and grass plants to obtain a hybrid of wheat that will come up every spring without seeding.

But many agriculturalists say perennial wheat, if developed, might be a shot in the arm for western farmers.

A perennial wheat would mean a tremendous saving in seed and rubber costs. The heavy root structure characteristic of perennial plants would add to moisture conservation—vital on the Prairies with uncertain rainfall and frequent winds that sweep away precious top soil. The straw produced would have a higher nutritional value for the soil than would straw from annual crops.

Achievements to date are growing in a greenhouse plot comprising less than 50 square feet. From crosses of wheat with a hardy native grass in 1938 Professor L. H. Shebeski has a few prime perennial plants with which to start. Only a few seeds have stays green even after the head has ripened.

But the plants are too tender for rigorous western climates and before the strains are ready for the farm, resistance to cold, drought, insects and disease must be bred into successive generations.

With only the best specimens of each generation suitable for further breeding Professor Shebeski said "It is impossible to estimate the number of required to produce enough seed of economic importance for western Canadian agriculture will be available in the next decade or two."

Professor Shebeski in 1938 was interrupted by war in 1941 and resumed in 1945 fieldier experiments began in Summa in 1946.

"Then sonny finds this it that you send your cousin tomorrow, Ernest?"

Jailer (cheerily): "And not come back? No. You may leave and I'll run after the bail."

"Do your wife takes in washing?" the judge asked a man who was up for vagrancy. "What do you do?"

"Well, judge," explained the accused, "I takes in the washin', the old woman does the washin', I takes the washin' back, the old woman collects the money and I takes her out of most of it."

Dominion Cerealist Retires

OTTAWA — Dr. Leonard H. Newman, for 25 years a power behind the scenes at Ottawa's Experimental Farm, has retired from the post of dominion cerealist.

He was appointed in 1922 to succeed the late Sir Charles Edward Saunders, developer of the world-famous Marquis wheat.

Under Dr. Newman's direction as head of the cereal division of the agriculture department's experimental farm service have been evolved numerous new varieties notable the rust-resistant Regent, Regent and Selkirk wheats used in Western Canada.

These and other varieties—Cotnor, Ion and Cascade Wheats, Vanguard and Beaver oats and Garnet and Renown wheats—have brought wheat-growing titles to many growers.

Dr. Newman, 66, was born at Merrickville, Ont. He graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph in 1903 and did post-graduate work at Iowa State College, Cambridge University and at Svalof in Sweden.

From 1905 until his appointment as cerealist, he was secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association. In 1936 the University of New Brunswick conferred on him an honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

Towel Left Inside After Operation

SAN MATEO, Cal. — The doctors thought Mrs. Lillian Arthur was joking when she complained something must have been left inside her after an operation two years ago.

But when they operated on the 35-year-old mother of six children recently, they found a surgical towel, 12 by 14 inches, in her abdominal cavity. The towel bore the monogram "Harrison Memorial Hosp." Bremerton, Wash.

The towel, neatly wrapped around Mrs. Arthur's intestines, was found by Drs. Henry Brown and Lawrence Martin, who performed an exploratory operation to find out what was wrong with her.

Mrs. Arthur had complained of pains and swelling since a Caesarian operation two years ago when she gave birth to twins.

"I went back to the clinic and complained," she said, and even jokingly suggested the doctor must have left his hat in her when he was in me."

Mrs. Arthur's husband, Frank, threatened to sue the hospital for the mistake. He said his wife had dropped from 250 to 156 pounds since the tumor had submitted to a series of blood transfusions and had aged nearly 15 years in color bills since the Caesarian was performed.

At Bremerton, Dr. Ray Schultz one of the physicians who attended Mrs. Arthur, said Doctors don't talk about things like that.

"Anything can happen in an operation of this sort" he explained. All sponges placed in the abdominal cavity are counted. But towels are so big we usually don't count them.

Dauphin Woman Given Credit For Success Of Clubs

DAUPHIN — Edna McConnell of Dauphin, Man., only one male agricultural representative in the province, focuses on the club's success in her field.

Miss McConnell's record in the work of 4-H agricultural projects is impressive.

"I don't think women can do the work of an agricultural representative," said Miss McConnell. "I got into it only because of the war."

But Dauphin district is not the only area to get the benefit of Miss McConnell's technical contention. They think of the comely 34-year-old miss as responsible for making their area one of the leading 4-H districts in Manitoba. Boys and girls farm clubs are numerous.

Miss McConnell became the first and only female agricultural representative in Manitoba in 1941 when John Conner who held the Dauphin post joined the air force. Previously she had been at Dauphin with the assistance service of the department of agriculture.

Miss McConnell who "grew up in agriculture" from her birth at her parents' farm at Petersfield, took normal school training at Saskatoon, then her degree of bachelor of science in agriculture.

Returning to Manitoba, she joined the Dominion-Provincial youth training scheme as itinerant instructor until she went to Dauphin in 1939 for the extension service. When she succeeded Conner she was first appointed acting representative but the province gave her the full title in May, 1946.

"They sent Jimmy here for me to care for. The way I look at it, I can do it my own way. This is my way. I'm going to try it out."

Jimmy pleaded guilty at Las Animas to second degree murder in the killing of his sister Phyllis Marie Melton, 14.

British Pleas Futile For Soviet Wives

LONDON — Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told the House of Commons that he had been reluctantly forced to the conclusion that there is no hope for the Russian wives of British husbands and women joining their husbands in England.

Asked if he would not limit the number of Soviet wives permitted to join their Russian husbands in British sovereignty, Mr. Bevin replied: "I doubt very much whether it will be effective. I deeply sympathize with the husbands and deplore the Soviet attitude which remains entirely incomprehensible to us, but I have not indulged in retaliatory method yet and don't want to be driven to it if I can help it."

Bring Spring Today Into Your Home And Drive Away Those Winter Blues

Lily-of-the-Valley, left, blooms sturdily in a warm home with very little attention. Tulips from a potted tree, right, brought indoors in March, bring early spring brightness and color into the room.

By LAURA FENNER
Central Press Canadian

THOSE last grey chill weeks of winter are the more easily endured if one brings spring into the house!

How can this be done? Easy. And the result is a fine one as any green branches and foliage and tiny blossoms make gay your house long in March howls and shrieks to fury just the calm calm of your windows' panes.

The twigs or numerous early blooming shrubs and trees are a delight when brought into the warm home at this time and placed in jars of water, and bulbs of many varieties take from the garden, at such time as the ground thaws to permit digging them.

The shrub forsythia responds with the greatest alacrity. Put a small branch or two into a vase of water and also anywhere in the room. Even the darkest corner will not discourage it one mite.

The following day one notices the buds swelling and before many days have passed the flowers begin to open. They last a surprisingly long time, too. Every week or so bring in a fresh branch and have lovely bouquets of yellow blossoms the rest of the winter.

Winter Bouquets

Twigs taken from fruit trees make magic also when brought into the house and placed in water. Peach twigs unfold their treasures first of the fruit trees, and the flat, pink buds are as pretty as the open blossoms.

Cherry, plum, apricot and apple all take delightful winter bouquets, which are combined with fresh, green leaves. The apple is slower to blossom, but its delicate pink blossoms are worth waiting for.

It is better to put each type of twig by itself rather than to combine them, because each one takes in the time it takes to open its buds. Twigs taken from almost any kind of tree or shrub and placed in water will at least put forth green leaves, which is pretty cheerful in drab winter!

When the wind whistles around the house, it is nothing short of foolhardiness to have a pot of blooming bird-of-the-valley on the table. In any fragrant more delightful?

There are few writers that do not have a complete flair or love for the necessary proximity to lily-of-the-valley blossoms in the winter. Nearly every garden or dooryard has a healthy bed of them, and taking some up for indoor planting here relieves the congestion and benefits the remaining plants.

Bulbs Not Lost

Brush aside the leaves and there are the lily-of-the-valley spikes pop ing in the proper name, but that has a timeless sound and is a rank injustice to such a gentle little flower.

Just a few of the spikes planted in a large flower pot or an old pail with a few holes for drainage in the bottom, and brought in where it is warm will prove a blossoms early times within two weeks.

Vegetable Centerpieces

A growing centerpiece for the dining table may be started when the lady of the house is preparing carrots for dinner. If the carrots still have the bobraggled green tops, trim them down to one, but do not cut into the crown of the carrot.

Cut an inch or two portion from the top of the vegetable and place in a dish of water deep enough to submerge all but the top. Put the dish or glass with pebbles to hold carrot upright. Still it will soon send out pretty fern-like foliage. The carrot may be planted in a small pot of moist sand, with the same result.

For winter greenery there is always the sweet potato or yam. This has been a winter household favorite for years. Look for a potato which shows signs of sprouting and place it in a glass or jar of water, with part the root to a point just behind the little toe.

These arches are in the nature of sprouts. They absorb the shock of the body's weight, so that one can stands or walks they are constantly changing their shape to adjust themselves to the weight and thrust upon them. The attached muscles and ligaments help to raise and lower the bones, and which the arches are built.

It is obvious that the arches should have full play, which means that they must be supple and not cramped by shoes which are too tight or too short, or which compel one to walk improperly. Shoes that do not allow the full movements of bones, ligaments and muscles.

The best time to start care of the feet is in infancy. The first pair of shoes is one of the most important pairs in a lifetime. The one thing that doesn't matter about them is style.

They should be fitted—not forced on. Fitting attention should be paid to the fact that the baby's foot is likely to grow quickly. Square toes shoes with straight inner edges and ample room are what the baby needs.

Baby should not be allowed to walk too much or to stand too long. His bones are soft and can be bent under too much strain because his bones and muscles are not yet developed.

Avoid shoes with high heels. Put on a sensible heel, with big things like gladioli, bulbs, potatoes and dahlias. I found flowers to be a failure.

Cultivate First

Either in the fall or early spring the garden should be thoroughly dug or plowed. This will turn in manure, and any immediate shortage will attend to more evenly distribute natural fertility. At this time it is desirable to work in all the old dead leaves, vegetable tops and any manure that has been obtained. The new gardener is too inclined to burn all rubbish and leaves or send it away with the garbage. This is a serious mistake. Anything that will rot in a reasonable time, and there will be few things that will not, should be dug in. Such improves both light and heavy soils, opening the latter and making it less liable to bake and cake, and adding much-needed water retaining humus to sand and light soil.

Health League Topics of Vital Interest

Prepared by the Canada Health League of Canada

FOOT CARE IMPORTANT

Very few of the daily chores one has to top billing when the health of the various parts of the body is considered.

If you don't believe that statement is correct, just ask any of the long-suffering shoes of a nurse, a waiter or waitress, a store clerk, a postman, or a policeman. All engaged in such work can readily testify that to ensure bodily comfort and health the feet must be given careful attention.

As the average human knows nothing more about a foot except that it is most useful to him on a round of housework, it might be wise to look more closely at what has been described as "a perfect piece of mechanism".

The normal foot consists of a longitudinal arch extending from the heel to the ball of the foot, and a transverse arch reaching from the ball of the foot to a point just behind the little toe.

These arches are in the nature of springs. They absorb the shock of the body's weight, so that one can stands or walks they are constantly changing their shape to adjust themselves to the weight and thrust upon them. The attached muscles and ligaments help to raise and lower the bones, and which the arches are built.

Useful Derrick For Farm

Design of a handy derrick to prevent strain on farm horses.

HEAVY lifting jobs are all too common on the farm, especially when it comes to loading wagons and trucks with bales, boxes, or pieces of farm machinery. Quite frequently an exercise requires the designing of derricks and similar lifting devices.

The derrick illustrated here will be found adequate for a great many heavy jobs, and it is simply constructed from easily available materials. It was used in by a reader, and it is claimed that it will lift 1,000 pounds if properly constructed, which it would make it strong enough to lend light livestock when in crates.

The main post is 6 inches square and 16 feet long, set 3½ feet in the ground and embedded in a cone 1 block 3 feet square. Two anchor wires are fastened from the top of the main post to two "dead heads" in the ground. The crane is built of 4" x 6" 8' 8" The main cross piece is doubled at the crank pulley so that the derrick will be loaded in the center and the spool may be made wide enough to give plenty of room for the rope. The crank pulley is made of two disk plates with a spool between. The crank arm will readily lift 100 pounds if properly constructed, which it would make it strong enough to lend light livestock when in crates.

Six Hundred Years Ago Black Death Swept Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six hundred years ago, in 1346—1348—the Black Death swept Europe. It was one of the greatest calamities of all time.

Millions died, and battlefields were made that by the end of the century the disease had killed up to one-fourth of Europe's population, or possibly 25,000,000 persons.

In one month alone 12,000,000 persons died in an outbreak at about that time.

To this day the seeds of the Black Death bubonic plague—are scattered through the world. Since 1894 as estimated more than 12,000,000 have died in India.

But medical scientists believe they now have the means of substantially reducing the chance plague ever will spread again over the globe.

As medical scientists piece together the puzzle, it may well have been there were two super-luxurious passenger-ships in the 14th century that changed the course of history.

One of these was Richard Coeur de Lion, King of England. The other was a black, beady-eyed rat, a hitchhiker. Nobody paid any attention to the rat, but he far outranked the king as a world-wide traveler in the explosive of men and nations.

The rat carried Pasteurella Pestis, Asiatic seed of the Black Death. As years passed, it found a permanent resident out of the Adriatic area until finally he burst over the entire continent of Europe.

Some medical authorities say the Black Death finally burned itself out because no susceptible victims remained.

Developed Immunity

When it returned in 1361 it is estimated that 1,000,000 died. Another epidemic came in 1369. One authority, the late Hans Zinsser, says each succeeding wave became less destructive of life because more people were immune.

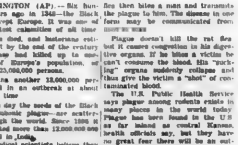
All through the centuries plague vaguely connected plagues with rats. Dead rats were observed when the disease raged. But generally it was considered a form of divine punishment.

It wasn't until around 1900 that it was definitely established that the rat or other rodent harbors the disease; the rat is bitten by a flea, the flea then bites a man and transmits the germ. Other forms of plague forms may be communicated from man to man.

Plague doesn't kill the rat flea but it causes congestion in his digestive tract. He bites in his frenzy to consume the blood. His "packing" organs suddenly collapse and thus give the victim a "shot" of contaminated blood.

The Public Health Service says plague among rodents exists in many places in the world today. Plague has been found in the U S and in Central and Central America.

Medical scientists recently have discovered and drugs are valuable in treatment and believe the new drugs, streptomycin, may prove also. New and more powerful flea and rat killing insecticides DDT and the poison D-1606, are proving extremely effective.



The enterprising Town of St. Walburg lorded in mother-modern Saskatchewan hands of up-to-date businessmen and result: total business, as above pictured, is the envy of many other communities in other parts of Main Street: Top row, The Enterprise office, and upper right showing a part of the residential section.

Good Plans Will Help

The special weekend bulletins on the subject and in Canadian seed catalogues will be worth a lot of vital information to the gardener in addition to descriptions of the Souvenir Gold Medal Sweet Pea and gardeners would never think of planting vegetable seeds in the flower beds because of the dual attractiveness. With a little planning a jungle rather than a delightful garden will be the result.

Some medical authorities say the Black Death finally burned itself out because no susceptible victims remained.

Developed Immunity

When it returned in 1361 it is estimated that 1,000,000 died. Another epidemic came in 1369. One authority, the late Hans Zinsser, says each succeeding wave became less destructive of life because more people were immune.

All through the centuries plague vaguely connected plagues with rats. Dead rats were observed when the disease raged. But generally it was considered a form of divine punishment.

It wasn't until around 1900 that it was definitely established that the rat or other rodent harbors the disease; the rat is bitten by a flea, the

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE BEAUTY AND HUNCH

By EDWARD EARL LEE

HUNCH MORANO had been sitting in Brady's just enough watching seem to prevent the woman from passing as alone. Now, after hearing her proposition, he heard running the barrel drawer and forcing full attention upon her straightened up. That is, thought Marilyn Brandywyne, rammed every pocket as his small, stoop-shouldered body would permit.

She noticed rat-like eyes mirror in decision. To the scrutiny he subject, or her, she presented the face that admirers complimented as being pretty as a doll's, and which she hoped now was just as impersonal.

"Cost," Hunch commented, mentally. Most damsel would have been hospital cases by this time. Hunch had ascertained her quarters in this resident apartment hotel and effected a stealthy entrance. Warned to remain silent the woman had crossed the hook she had been reading and requested a few minutes' undisturbed eyes.

However, that emotionless attitude disappeared when Hunch demanded the diamond necklace he had noticed on the dresser and with his back to the tenant and the reason for his truthfulness. He had then had time to rose and relieved to reveal it.

Hunch's big fingers fondled the necklace as he glanced at the woman. It's worth a grand, sure."

"I'll make it worth to you My husband gave me that necklace on our second anniversary. A week later he died. I cherish it."

Marilyn opened a large pocketbook she held and let tumble out a roll of currency.

"Five hundred dollars she said in a voice ing tone as she replaced her purse atop the book just under the lingerie cover. "I'll pay you that to get it back."

Hunch surprised by her tone at first, but he recovered himself. He straighter his shoulders and his tone was saying. "I will if I kill for it!"

Ain't it sure her life might depend upon this answer, Marilyn fumbled in her purse, and, quickly ing: "You're a swell-timer, not a killer."

Hunch breathing air seated Her self on the edge of the bed and his glare. One letter moment this and the shooter in Hunch's eyes and, despite all his efforts to the contrary, he glanced downward, saying:

"Okay. Carry the ash."

That's what you like, eh?"

Hunch shrieked in the direction of that thing there." His eyes bulged as he caught sight of the lingerie cover and drawn aside to reveal a gun.

Either the N.H.L. goaltenders are displaying a better brand of puck stopping or else the loop's foremost goal getters are not finding the mark with their customary consistency. Last season after 112 games had been duly recorded in the record books a total of 846 goals had been scored by the ten National League teams. After 113 games of the current campaign 822 goals were notched by the six spotters—a decrease of 24 goals.

Al Meigard, organist at the Chicago Stadium is now caught lacking an opportune time to swing into action when the Black Hawks perform before home town fans. When fans showered the ice with pennies and silver during the recent Boston-Black Hawk game, the genial master of the organ swung into the number "Pennies From Heaven." When the Hawks shaked off the ice hoers at the end of the game he burst into that popular tune of yesteryear "Am I Blue?"

When Chicago fans showered the ice with coins on February 18 and held up Chicago-Boston game for 15 minutes, the entire battery of Stadium sweepers and members of both teams took over clearing duties. Although the exact amount of money pitched on the ice will never be known it is true it was a considerable amount. Doug Brumley of the Hawks won the "sweepstakes" in picking up $6.15. Doug said he didn't bother with the pennies, etc., but concentrated his efforts on quarters and half-dollars. Incidentally, he captained the "sweep-stakes" with a brawny left thumb. Wonder how he would have made out with the right?

Al Hardy, general manager of the B.C. Turf and Country club, said that the company's Landsdowne racetrack at Lake Tabeau, Saskatchewan would not open this summer. Five United States imports again may line up with any senior team next season but Canadian football will attempt to eliminate the need for importing help by a new program aimed at developing its own junior talent. MACHINERY IN RELATION TO THE FARM
The use of Power and Machinery on farms throughout the country was at one time thought to mark the beginning of the end of the family-sized farm, but the family sized farm is larger than it ever was (also depending on the kind of farming), and engineers and manufacturers have built machinery for use on smaller farm units. The small so-called hand Tractors are a good example of this trend. Many improved machines are of as much benefit to the family sized farms and small tract as to large farms. This may be said of many planting machines and fertilizer distributors
It can also be said of much labor saving equipment for use about the farmstead for example milking machines, combines and shop equipment such as saws, and drills and grinders.

Wedding Bells

A wedding of interest to the people of Strome and district took place in the American Lutheran Church, Edmonton when Alberta Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fraser of Strome and Lyle Bruyn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvel Gillis of Edmonton were united in holy matrimony, Rev. Hjemdal performed the ceremony. Mrs. Adley Gaster of the bride, was matron of honor. Mr. Don Gillis, brother of the groom, was best man. Mrs. Hjemdal played "I Love You Truly" during the signing of the register.

The bride was attired in a blue gabardine suit and wore a corsage of orchids. The matron of honor was dressed in a navy blue suit trimmed in white and wore pink carnations. Mrs. Gillis, mother of the groom, appeared in black crepe and wore red roses. Mrs. Fraedrick, mother of the bride wore a two-piece dress of light blue with a corsage of carnations.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Edmonton Room for 34 guests. The reception was held at the home of the groom's parents. The happy couple left for Whitehorse by plane at Friday noon.

While we are on the subject of snapping and smiling, we wonder how many people in the Village of Sedgewick has the idea that the Village of Sedgewick has no many dogs both on and about the streets. The other day on my way up town I counted exactly no less than seventeen dogs all running loose and not one with a collar on and not one displaying a dog tag to indicate that a license had been issued. Personally I like dogs, with the exception of that snapping and snarling breed which seems to enjoy chewing man's right to wander the public thoroughfares of the town.

We know that dog days come later on in the year but we wonder if we could not arrange a dog day for early spring and sort out those multitudes of canines and fleas at the same time with the proper physical action.

We have been in communication with Mr. A. B. Crawford who lives at Bowsdore Illinois, off and on during the past year Mr. Crawford had been quite interested in our reports on the weather up here and also in crop conditions Al was a former resident here and still owns land in the community north of town He has informed me that if U S Weather Bureau attempts to forecast the weather even on far away as Ottawa and the fact perhaps have pressure maps. We were offered some of the maps but Mr Woodward not so far we have neglected to inform him that we would like to have them I am probably the world's worst letter writer, so when Mr. Woodward read his crop on the article I hope he will take the hint and send along the material in question.

I was very pleased to hear from Mr. Bowsmell recruiting an article this coloumn last month In reply all I can say is that I wish he would take a look at the remains of the last box of B.C. apples I bought Very Discouraging

PERSONAL STUFF

It is an old and time-worn adage, that he who edits a newspaper of any kind or size, must inevitably be prepared to have his fellow men (and women) use magazine in his books in a degree comparable to his editorial writings. As a specimen of the peculiar brand of man who has chosen to spend his time editing a weekly sheet weekly, I have developed the hide of a brahma steer, from which the pointed barbs and shafts of my reading public are deflected in such casual manner as to leave me practically immune to any otherwise unbearable evil after nerve-tie.

It is indeed fortunate, in my most humble opinion that Editors on the whole have developed the hardened outer crust so otherwise many a renowned writer of the past would never have blest the present world with his masterpieces.

There is an old and trite saying to the effect that "The mistake bares the doctor's mistakes but the Editor publishes his for the whole population to read."

Dr. Newman

OF INTEREST IN AGRICULTURAL and scientific circles throughout Canada was the retirement at the end of February of Dr. L. Newman, who had held the post of Dominion Cerealist for the last twenty-five years. In 1921, Dr. Newman succeeded the late Sir Charles Edward Saunders who had been a noted cereal research in Canada, and developed the famous Marquis wheat. This work was carried on by Dr. Newman, and while he was head of the cereal division of the Department of Agriculture's Experimental Farms Service a number of new and important varieties of wheat, including Garnet, Reward and Cascade Saunders, Regent and Coronation were introduced as well as Vanguard and Bronze oats. Some of these new varieties, it is in Reward and Garnet wheat, have brought high honors in competitive tests in many Canadian provinces.

Attacked Wheat Stem Sawfly

In addition to his successful effort to breed wheat which would resist stem rust, Dr. Newman also attacked the problem of the wheat stem sawfly which at that time was causing damage in some sections of Western Canada costing the farmers millions of dollars. In co-operation with entomologists and plant pathologists of the Agriculture Department's science service, and the Dominion experimental station at Swift Current, Sask., he experimented in breeding a wheat which would resist this destructive insect. Out of more than one hundred varieties which were grown in the course of the experiment, one which became known as Rescue showed the greatest resistance to sawfly attacks.

A Contribution To Agriculture

Dr. Newman was born in Ontario and graduated from the Agricultural College at Guelph in 1903. He later studied in the United States, at Cambridge University in England, and in Sweden. From 1905 until he became Dominion Cerealist in 1923 he was secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association, and he is a past president of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculture. The achievements of Dr. Newman, who has devoted his time and energies for many years to reducing the hazards to farm crops, is a notable contribution indeed to the progress of agriculture in Canada. To him, and to the others who share with him the great credit and appreciation are due for their efforts result in the saving of millions of dollars to farmers here and in other countries. Although Dr. Newman has retired as Dominion Cerealist, his interest in agriculture will not cease and he will no doubt continue to play a part in advancing scientific agriculture in Canada.

Sell Canada To World Through Pride

Advertising Men Says We Must Be Vocal About Our Pride

ST CATHARINES Ont — "We are not going to sell Canada to the world by name-calling, senseless boosterism or under a bushel basket, says Don Bradman a senior executive of the Merchants Advertising Agency in an address to the St Catharines Kinsmens Club.

"We have to be proud of Canada and we have to be vocal about our pride We who had ourselves that Canada is going to amount to something and must continue to play it some are among the strong nations." Mr Bradman declared Canada today has the greatest opportunity of any country in the world since the United States grabbed its golden chance after the first war We have a nation of riches and possibilities It was conceived in no other nation ever was in the interests of cheap transportation and political stability but it has forged ahead at a world pace.

But we are entirely too relaxed in the matter of the future of our land of ours" Mr Bradman stated "We have national heroes We take them for granted We have not borne them in mind to children The voice of a Canadian Boy Scout has not been heard more thought of than the voice of a Hardcore Kind."

Stating that he had become a Canadian citizen in 1939 after living born in United States Mr Bradman said he was prompted to make the move by the things himself he had learned in living in Canada for five years previously and his marriage to a Canadian girl

To Speed Up Elimination Of Level Crossings

OTTAWA — Plans to eliminate dangerous level crossings of railway lines in Canada may be expected to go forward this year Hon Lionel Chevrier minister of transport, has a bill before the commons to increase the annual appropriation for the railway grade crossing fund from $300, 000 to $500 000

Under existing legislation the federal government contributes up to 50 per cent of the construction costs on eliminating level crossings, but not more than $100,000 for any one project. Thus few large projects could be handled with $300,000

With a bubbling of projects waiting to the war and with higher construction costs it has been considered necessary to increase the fund. The board of transport commissioners has a number of applications for eliminations but it could not be learned how they would be disposed of

While little has been done in recent years in the construction of bridges or subways, the work of providing automatic protective devices at railway crossings has continued slowly

C. J. BROWN, Secretary-Treasurer.

(Extract from The Alberta Gazette of February 28, 1946)

MR. FARMER, IT'S UP TO YOU NOW!!

This is Your Opportunity To Help Yourself!!

Legislation is before Parliament at Ottawa to extend government control of wheat marketing for another year, if enacted YOU WILL BE COMPELLED TO SELL YOUR OATS AND BARLEY AS well AS YOUR WHEAT TO THE CANADIAN WHEAT BOARD.

However, to make this monopoly effective, it may be necessary that each provincial legislature pass a law permitting provincial government monopoly.

So this is your opportunity to protest against the extension of the monopoly. You will be given an opportunity to protest against the wheat monopoly. But You Can AND Should make protest now. Those who favour the monopoly are working hard and mail to get control over your grain. You must fight against them and all your might.

IF YOU DON'T PROTEST NOW, and your neighbours, of like mind, don't protest now, you may have only yourself to blame. Provincial Legislatures may fail in line with Parliament and all those dependent upon grain growing for a living will be absolutely in the power of political pressure groups and so-called "farm leaders."

The Winnipeg Grain Exchange has endeavored to show what grower when monopoly has cost them. Controlling prices for wheat was a war measure. Nobody grumbled about that But the monopoly was extended to prove times without even asking the consent of wheat growers, who, as a result, have lost hundreds of millions of dollars. They shouldered the burden, instead of it being paid by ALL THE TAX-PAYERS.

If the Government monopoly is extended so sure and barley another link will be forged in the grain grower's chain of slavery.

YOU SHOULD LOOK AHEAD

It is the future, not the past, that is now most important to farmers. Think of the dangers that threaten you. No man, and no group of men, or WHO enough, is GOOD enough TO BE TRUSTED WITH UNRESTRICTED POWER. All power tends to corrupt . . . absolute power corrupts absolutely."

Your wheat is now marketed at POLITICAL PRICES and for POLITICAL PURPOSES Oats and barley are subject to every control pressure, and since VOTING POWER RESTS WITH CONSUMERS, there will be a constant political battle between consumers and producers . . . and PRODUCERS WILL BE THE LOSERS.

The Grain Exchange has done, and is doing all that it can to uphold the farmer's Freedom of Choice in selling his grain. Let those farmers for which we sell through the Wheat Board do so, but demand the Right to sell your grain where, when and to whom you choose at prevailing market prices.

If you are Opposed to Government Monopoly and Compulsion

ACT QUICKLY BEFORE IT IS TOO LATE.

Write at once, or better still, WIRE your Member of Parliament at Ottawa and your Provincial Representative in Regina, Edmonton or Winnipeg. State your strong objection to extending Government monopoly to oats and barley. Tell him you want freedom to choose between selling to the Wheat Board or on the free grain market, whichever is more profitable to you. Get neighbours who agree with your views to do it. The more get involved, the better. This may be your last opportunity to help yourself and keep entire out of your grain, but you must ACT QUICKLY—OTHERWISE YOUR PROTEST WILL BE TOO LATE.

WRITE FOR THIS FREE PAMPHLET

We have published a pamphlet "Just a Minute with the Grain Exchange". It shows what CONTROL OF WHEAT has cost Western farmers, and will indicate what can happen to control of oats and barley. Fill out and mail the coupon below and a copy will be sent BY RETURN, POSTPAID.

New Role For Princess Margaret Rose? May Serve As Good-Will Ambassadoress

By JUDY PECK
Central Press Canadian

BRITAIN'S top-hatted, soft-spoken envoys the world over work ceaselessly to create and keep good friends of the British empire. However an super salesman of empire they may soon need to be is a slim, smiling 17 year old girl.

She is Princess Margaret Rose, second daughter of King George and Queen Elizabeth.

Residing from her uncle the Duke of Windsor as the Prince of Wales, created immense good will for the empire, British diplomats circles see high possibilities in Princess Margaret Rose serving her king and her people in like manner.

The job of selling Margaret and thus Britain to the world should not be difficult, for already the young princess has displayed her inherent personality.

It is only now, however, with Princess Elizabeth safely married and temporarily out of the way that English newspapers decided that the time is ripe for Margaret's debut into the public eye.

Just why the planning for Margaret's sale assumed a job did not begin sooner is a matter of conjecture. Some heretics suspect that was unhealthy for the future personality of Elizabeth to play understudy to a little sister.

They suggest that had Margaret been given more notice by the Fleet street gossip columnists the "put Elizabeth across would have suffered.

However that's all over now and the British press can begin concentrating on the new princess. Formal coming out party be of infinite value to the British empire.

What is also really like — this younger daughter of the House of Windsor? The world is now beginning to find out.

An English noblewoman, comparing Princess Elizabeth with Margaret, comments that it is the elder sister whose nature it is "to warn, to comfort, to command."

Princess Margaret Rose—To British eyes—a billion-dollar smile

Margaret, the writer poetically noted, seems fated to "haunt, to startle, to worry"—and a little less poetically, to put across another "Buy British" campaign in the world market.

To put it another way, Margaret is a press-agent's dream — even a palace-versed press-agent. Slim, blue-eyed and with a smile made the princess in already of such stature as to cause one of her father's subjects to style remark that:

"The Old Devil" are to keep an eye on that one, you can be sure."

Just exactly Margaret is going through the same teen-age ups and downs in settling 17-year-olds the world over. Given to ultra-sophisticated hats and rather violent splashes of lip-stick, her parents nonetheless take these manifestations of growing up with a royal grain of salt.

Temperamentally, the princess is of somewhat gayer nature than Elizabeth. An excellent mimic she has more than once thrown the Windsor dinner table into gales of laughter with her takeoffs of some very important persons grooming her for her new job.

One incident that reveals more than any other the less regal side of Margaret's nature is often recounted by admiring relatives.

The royal sisters were guests of honor at a rather formal and stuffy dinner party and, doing what come naturally, they stepped out on to a balcony with their dates for a breath of fresh air.

After a time, Princess Elizabeth, thoughtful as her duties to the empire, said: "I think we'd better be getting back or we'll be missed."

To this, Margaret rather testily replied: "You go back and take care of the empire. I'll stay here and take care of myself."

Lest this story be misleading, it should be noticed that Margaret has a serious side as well which would lead her to respond readily to the call of duty.

A good student, she speaks French and German fluently and can hold her own in any conversation on current affairs. She is also a budding author, having penned the pantomime staged by the children of Buckingham palace at Yuletide.

It was in one of these performances, incidentally, that Margaret best displayed her characteristically regal mood.

Margaret's role in the self-authored work was that of an angel. Draped in bedsheet gauze and sprouting a pair of ethereal, though cardboard wings, the princess' mother admonished: "You'll have to be very good if you want to play your role well."

Well, I don't look like a holy angel" the quick witted young lady replied, but I certainly feel like a holy terror."

If Margaret is to play an important role in empire affairs, it is only noticed that the question of a husband for her should be of great interest.

But one have already begun marrying off the princess to royalty both near and afar.

Ex-King Michael of Romania, for example, was considered a very likely contender for Margaret's affections until his recent abdication to wed Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma.

Whatever the case, Princess Margaret will undoubtedly be hampered by fewer restrictions in choosing a husband, and greater guidance in her career, than was her sister.

There have even been hints that she would wed a commoner. Rumors that the king had forbidden Margaret to marry until her 21st birthday were hotly denied by Buckingham palace, which usually doesn't take the trouble to deny such talk.

Margaret herself is not worried about finding a mate from among the titled and handsome young men who now take her dancing and to the theatre.

In 1860, in North Carolina they were special taxes levied on buggy whips, gold-headed canes, harps, watches and politicians.

GARDEN NOTES

Handling Nursery Stock

There is a wide range in the grade and quality of shrubs, vines, plants and other things which come under the general heading of nursery stock. The best test is whether the stock will grow quickly and sturdily. If the roots are dry and the upper part of the plant shrivelled, brownish and lacking buds, then one can be quite sure the stock is poor no matter what the actual price. It will probably die or take three or four years to get really growing.

Healthy stock, on the other hand, will come along quickly with hardly a check, especially if handled correctly. Plants, shrubs, vines, etc., should be kept cool and moist and if they cannot be planted on their permanent location right away they should be "heeled in", that is temporarily planted in a trench with the soil heaped up well above the roots. When replanting it is advisable to supply plenty of water and keep watered for the first few weeks. Planting in best done in the cool of the evening or on dull days, and some shade from hot sun is advisable with tiny things.

Are They Suitable Here?

In the magazines and newspapers one reads of lists of beautiful trees, shrubs and vines vegetables that may not grow well in many parts of Canada. Those things were developed for the Southern States or England where the climate is milder or the growing season longer.

One wastes money, time and work on trying them here. Our climate, soil and other conditions are not suitable, and as their eradication does not end certain things that thrive abundantly here. The general advice the discouraging efforts to produce those tender plants here are so ad-vised to stick to those flowers, shrubs and vegetables that are specially recommended for Canadian conditions. The latter are the varieties and types listed in the Canadian seed catalogues. These have all been tested under Canadian conditions and they are the only ones recommended by the Canadian authorities.

Building Up Garden Soil

With both clay and sand, cultivation plus the incorporation of rotted vegetable matter will work wonders. One of the best treatments, of course, is plenty of barnyard manure, but this is not always available and especially so on urban districts. Good substitutes are vegetable refuse like tops of beets, carrots, pea pods, lawn clippings etc., or specially-sown green crops or short dug or plowed under. With clay this opens up the soil and makes it more easily workable, less inclined to bake. With sandy ground the manure or vegetable material adds strength and helps it retain moisture.

Canadian Winters—Are Exhilarating, Keep Us Hardy, Is The Basis For Health

(The Toronto, Globe and Mail)

The weather has lately been setting up records for future generations to look back upon for comparisons with their own unusual conditions. Three years ago it was for Toronto the biggest snowstorm on record. Last year there was the wettest, latest spring in two or three generations, and the mildest, driest fall in forty years. For the latter we have been paying in power in stages during the recommendatory hours of forced fires, and doubtless will suffer further on the spring from the lack of water in the soil. For many people, however, the year's weather has not proved, or their complaints are not justified, on the grounds of mildness.

Despite our unceasing complaints, the increase in the number of colds and similar ills the Canadian winter is good for us. It keeps us from getting soft, and contributes greatly as to the making of the Canadian temperament, which so strongly attracts other people. We are inclined to run ourselves down, and to belittle our achievements in these walks of life. But what we have failed to do on one way we usually make up for in some other field usually one where origin is more effective than taste. What we have failed to do in the arts, for instance, we have taken with physical explosive, excellent with nature. There have their pretty even when they fall a bit flagging in the race.

Just the young are healthy cold weather is exhilarating. Nor the old probably of middle age and other outdoor winter sports. The cold is a challenge to exertion and we have especially responded to the tonic of health. But what has the whole illustrious youth ever payment of winter sport may also be safely earned this conclusion? We would, if necessary. Defying the cold, the hardy producer of furs and hides best obtains his winter pelt. So fatal was the arrival of animals permitted by the recording Polar animals that Canadian scientists were forced to develop fast-maturing grains and vegetables. These have been very successful in permitting Canadians to live much further north than might have been economically possible. Thus cold has stimulated many beneficial and the starting energy and enterprise which other lands may know a fame in the current wins would have remained unchallenged.

Of course, cold has its tragic side. There are still people who, to the shame of this wealthy nation, freeze to death. On the whole, however, the bitter effects of the new temperature are less destructive than the were when conditions were more primitive. Those of us old enough to have read Hakwatka's well read the vivid descriptions of the remorseless winter which people from ice starved unable to find animals, or other food in the deep snow. Other writers familiar with pioneer conditions have drawn pictures of a degree of cold we seldom seem to have. It is thought that the presence of vast forests made the difference must assist that of wind.

In any event it is still possible for Canadians to beat the startling record of trees, ice even brick walls, as the old pioneers more frequently. There is nothing many about our climate some days, however, a few more breezes would not be kinds. Enough is enough, even of the best

Forecast Bases On Moon To Launch Missiles In Future Wars

By Tom Chase AP Writer

LONDON—A grim war for bases on the moon "from which to launch guided missiles against the earth" could develop within 50 years says a report published in the journal of the British Inter Planetary Society.

The Inter-Planetary Society numbers among its members many prominent British scientists noted for work in the fields of propulsion, guided missile design, biology and astronomy.

The article written by A. V. Cleaver chairman of the organizations council outlines possible development of solar-planetary conflict far more horrible than the atomic bomb.

No doubt it will sound far-fetched to many people now. Chances are, however, I find it very easy to believe in a future race to establish colonial bases on the moon, a literary-grabbing competition closely analogous to the one already in progress on earth.

If such bases could include facilities for manufacturing fuel and other products, so eventually their flight from there could be no better still from which to launch guided missiles against the earth.

Cleaver explains the "fundamental advantages of moon-based projectiles to simply a matter of gravity. The relatively small gravitational pull encountered on the moon will provide a much more favorable ratio of payload to fuel than on earth.

The means whereby first establishes a working base on the moon will be able to learn to indirectly target and hit it minutes than any earth-bound enemy.

Cleaver predicts as still more favorable the possibility of mine-laying ha wars with fuse into the rest of the solar system, if intelligent life is found there to oppose him.

JACK MINER BIRD SANCTUARY SAVES PHEASANTS

KINGSVILLE, Ont. — The Jack Miner Sanctuary at Kingsville, the most southern town in Canada, became known throughout the world through the migratory waterfowl finding a haven of rest. As Jack Miner used to say, "If there were no guns or nets there would be no need of a Sanctuary to afford the birds food and a place of safety but with North America increasing in population it is up to man to provide a place of safety for the birds."

In no way was Jack Miner opposed to a limited amount of shooting because he said, "God put the birds and animals on earth for man's use and control." The Sanctuary which he started has become the greatest means of conservation and best encouraged not only in Canada and the United States, but throughout the world as the greatest tool of saving species from extinction.

Saves Pheasants

For fifty years the place has been serving a breeding supply of pheasants in the property Jack Miner had planted fifty trees when the grew trees and in the fall the ring necks come from their farmland to find shelter and food which is provided for them under the trees. The ground has been covered with ice and snow and all surface food could not be reached by the upland game birds thus a greater influx of birds than has been known to ever have the Sanctuary discently, as official census was taken and over a hundred were seen. To give a better estimate of the number, they have not been disturbed of rest of the year, but on each day since early November

In the evening they can be seen roosting in the evergreen trees all around the Jack Miner home, which is a natural environment for them because with a dog proof fence around the Jack Miner Estate, cats, dogs and foxes can not molest them and traps are kept out for certain species of hawks and owls that might within the inside the 78 per cent within a year of admittance only a small proportion were returned for further treatment.

Certain mental health "misconceptions" should be made clear, the mental health expert added. These were that mental illness is a disease and that it is hereditary that it happens suddenly and that some never always recover.

Hats You'll Want To Wear This Spring

With spring coming, milady's interest naturally turns to Spring hats so here are two fashions that can be worn throughout spring and summer. The model at left wears a hat of chartreuse novelty straw, very simply accompanied by matching accessories. The model at right wears a hat of American beauty velvet and trimmed with ribbon of the same shade. The hat is a profusion of variegated flowers. At right the model wears a shocking pink Sorus brand, trimmed with striking shades of forsina and violet-hued taffeta ribbon. It is the kind of hat that goes good with any plain costume.

Doctors Discover Secret Solution To Keep Flowers Fresh Forever

PATERSON, N.J — Two doctor brothers, who worked for 30 years with chemicals used by the ancient Egyptians in their mummy process, have announced discovery of a secret solution that will keep flowers fresh forever.

The petals of the fixed flowers are supple and life-like.

The Jaffe brothers, who are general practitioners, came upon the idea in the process when they made a formula to prevent paper from aging. The experiment failed in that work, and the brothers made a rose in the mixture out of curiosity. The solution preserved the form of the flower, but not the color.

Then began a series of experiments, which worked out through the years have made it possible to preserve roses in their beauty.

The importance of the discovery to medicine, Sidney Jaffe said was that it would permit surgeons to cut tissue taken from a living person and graft the form permanently for further study.

The brothers said they have had numerous requests from the country's museums, railroads, state hospitals and museums.

The process would also be useful in military camouflage Jaffe said the preserved shrubbery was impervious to infra-red ray detection.

"One of the things we are" Jaffe said, "was used by the Fatyptians in their mummy process."

Mounties Fly Over Northland

For Two Years Modern Methods Used To Cover Atom Of The Arctic

EDMONTON — The modern methods employed by the R.C.M.P. to police the northern Canada's remote northland are typified by the 43-ft. Norseman aircraft known as CF-MPP which in the two years of operation has covered hundreds of thousands of miles north into the Mackenzie river and into the islands of the Arctic.

For the two years the pilot has been Sgt. J. H. Reid, 33-year-old native of Sydney, B.C. who has flown out of Edmonton with the RCAF and the R.C.M.P. since 1941.

The engineer is Special Constable H. F. Sharpe, who has been trained in the United States and served with the R.C.A.F. as flight engineer with the U.S. forces in the Aleutians.

All Reid's flights are directed from the headquarters of "K" division here by radio and the system of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals.

The experienced crew of the little aircraft faced hazardous, usually caused by unexpected weather conditions are matters of course. Emergency landings average eight times a year. The plane is equipped with skis for most of the flying season. Floats are used in the summer months when the lakes are open.

No Close Calls

Despite the dangers of most of the plane's flights, its pilot reported no close calls. "In" during his 3 600 hours of northern flying time The crew has never been stranded for any long period nor has the ship suffered serious damage in forced landings Prisoners being brought out have always under escort. So far none has undertaken a desperate attempt to regain his freedom.

The result of the plane's trip is an improvement in the diet of officers at remote detachments. On every trip the aircraft carries some fresh food as possible Most supplies are transported aboard one or two boats a year, but such commodities as eggs and vegetables go in regularly by air

Another service performed by the plane has been establishment of good and food caches along the route. Set down by the roaring engines over the frozen tundra

Working out of river posts, Sgt Reid has carried fuel and frozen fish to dog teams in percentages of cases for the use of constables on their periodic patrols This practice greatly lightens the load carried by the patrolling officer on his trip of up to two months.

In one trip, Sgt. Reid and Special Constable McCready descended on a country than do most Canadians in a lifetime And in the line of routine duty they convey through the Territories and Arctic the realization to the natives that the law of Canada is never far distant from any settlement

HAS RIGHT IDEA

The Ottawa Citizen says: A judge at London, Ont., told 80 new citizens that this is the "land of tomorrow". And maybe it is at that, but we think it would be better to call it the land of "the day after tomorrow" There's such an awful lot to be done before the old place is fit to be lived in.

HEALTH LEAGUE presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST of CANADA

COMPLACENCY ILL ADVISED SAYS DEPUTY

Voluntary agencies make their greatest contribution in the health field by pioneering new instruments and encouraging public understanding of health problems intelligently to the tasks that are theirs. It was stated by Dr. G. W. B. Cameron federal deputy minister of health, at a civic "Health Week" luncheon in Toronto recently.

"They promote the democratic process when they supplement and encourage local government services and create demands for public enterprises," Dr. Cameron said. "This type of collaboration from a responsible voluntary agency like the Health League of Canada deserves our warmest thanks."

He said the democratic way in to many problems of public health but may it called for the acceptance of responsibility and the groundwork for its strength on the united will of informed people. He said, during such an observance as "Health Week" that the public should have the objective situations directed to the state of the public health, and should be told where they have failed to measure up to their obligations, and to have pointed out the steps which must be taken if desired goals were to be reached. It was in that regard that the health agency had a vital rule to play.

In reference said Health Week" also provided an opportunity for large departments to subject themselves to rigorous self examination. "This should include not only the facilities of the department but also the direction of their policies.

The deputy minister took occasion to warn against complacency about the nation's record of freedom from diseases like smallpox and diphtheria.

"A moment's thought should curb that tendency," he said. "We know perfectly well that these diseases are only a flicker. The price of freedom is continual pressure against these dangers by immunization."

Comadn In Need Of Mental Health Clinics

OTTAWA — Canada is in desperate need of mental health clinics as well as a more comprehensive understanding by the public of the magnitude of the mental health problem in the dominion Dr C G Stogdill, chief of the health department's mental health division, declared here.

He addressed the closing session of the second dominion-provincial conference of health educators and stressed the necessity for mental health clinics of which there were few in Canada. The mass drawback was the lack of trained personnel.

"Many provinces have voted money for the establishment of these clinics but have to wait until personnel have been trained," said Dr. Stogdill. We must develop interned training facilities to meet this demand."

The lack of public understanding of the seriousness of the mental health problem was indicated by Dr. Stogdill in the fact that although $20 000 000 will be spent this year in the maintenance of mental institutions, less than $20 000 is being spent on research.

The speaker believed the public had little knowledge of the advances made in the treatment of mental illness and said that 60 per cent of admissions were now being discharged within six months and 78 per cent within a year of admittance Only a small proportion were returned for further treatment

Certain mental health "misconceptions" should be made clear, the mental health expert added These were that mental illness is a disease and that it is hereditary that it happens suddenly and that some never always recover.

IMPROVED QUALITY of WOR

With Machines and Power avail able Farmers soon found that an only could they do more work and usually do it more economically, but that they could do a better quality of work. For example plowing could be done deeper and even in the more difficult soils with a smooth steel moldboard a proper design and a good mat ter of power. The importa t of this power advantage is shown when it is necessary to plow in ter a heavy growth of rye or some legume crop for soil im provement Farmers with relati ly lightweight work animals for difficult or even impossible to match work in a way to beat the growth sufficiently covered with soil

On the other hand, with ade quate mechanical power, it to possible to do much better work and, what is more, the job may be finished in a favorable time

PERSONAL STUFF

—W A. W. E—

At first I read the article with a sort of amused tolerance, finding nothing to resent in the mere thought of a red-blooded man considering his life in such an absurd manner. Suffering further, I reread the article the second time, arriving at its conclusion with a vague feeling of commotion.

So that you may share with me in contemplating upon the unfortunate of the situation, perhaps I had better let you in on the mystery

It seems that a bus conductor over in England has recently been awarded the title of 'London's Perfect Husband'—which required the following qualifications to win: 1. His boys his wife a bouquet of flowers 2. Takes her to the movies once a week 3. His wife's superior judgement; 5. His wife's mother cold feet; 6. His wife's mother cold feet upon every anniversary occasion. 7 He writes a love letter to his wife on every anniversary of their marriage; and last but not least, he turns over his every pay check to her. Keeping out cheerios—not one cent.

Now you see why at first I was amused and later resentful. Instead of amusing to the average man at this age that one of his kind could be run down in such a cold and harsh humiliating manner. And then again there is cause for alarm. Just suppose that such unheard of things were to spread to the four corners of the earth. Can you imagine as on by nation of Hard Working Men handing a cash on Saturday and massaging the little women's feet before running to their kitchens to prepare supper for them? Imagine a million men timidly approaching their wives for 10 cents to buy a coke.

The fall of the British Empire has been predicted time and time again. Hitlerites have been predicted and to these prophesies but now I for one am not so certain.

As stated above, this man won the award for a model husband. In my opinion he should never have been given it, rather should he have been confined in London Tower as a source to mankind.

While I expect to be taken for a ride by the female species for this article, I do not expect this same species to scream in the sixties' over the label husband they have been over the Ladds and Sinatra—cause after all a real woman loves to real be real and has no desire to be to him to the status of a mere mouse.

'Tis not often that we see rare and rarin tabled in snow drifts on the 1st day of April, nor is it often that we see curling going on with the ice down as a critic's tongue during the first week of April. But such has been the case this year Alberta has been visited with subnormal weather the past week, with from 2 to 4 inches of snow falling over the various sections of the province Whil this sort of thing is not particularly enjoyable from the standpoint of personal comfort, it has assured the finest crops of substantial moisture for the starting growth

ooo

Once more Alberta has proven to be a record-breaking Province. Last Monday night of this week was said to be the coldest one for any April night in Edmonton. In Edmonton the mercury registered 11 below zero. I don't know just how cold it was here at home but it was cold enough.

CURLING CLUB HOLDS FAREWELL

The ladies of the Sedgewick Curling Club went all out on Tuesday of last week in an effort to make their get-together in farewell for Skipper Vernon Crooks something one will remember for a long time.

The event took the form of a chuckwagon and began at the curling rink where two or three cods of the roaring game in common was rolling off by a male dancer on the ice. The spectators had the unusual privilege of seeing a brawn grass-skirted girl from Waikiki throw her curls, and followed by a ferocious looking char acter from New York's Bowery in blue serge coat stepped something a bone caper. A gauster maid ( a girl from the last quarter era) played third when the whole rink appeared to be skipped by the Easter Rabbit! Besides these weird figures there were Scotch Lassies, a mysterious Chaw; Lady Light Bulb, Pirates, Cowboys; Indians, Dashing Continentals, Ladies of the Pumkinette era, Lady of the Evening Fifties and one with the New Look in Kilts

The second part of the evening took place at the Anglican Church Hall where the contestants were judged by Mesdames Weber, Johnson, T. Stackman and A. McCrenan Much amusement was caused by the prizes which turned out to be hats, suckers and potatoes and turnips.

Games were played while coffee perked after which President Mrs. Burch presented Mrs Crooks with a scrapbook of pictures of the curlers as a token of love and friendship.

Lunch followed to close another farewell party to another of Sedgewick's much liked old timers.

HENRY METZ FAMILY FETED AT LOUGHEED

LOUGHEED A large crowd gather ed at the Community Hall Thursday night to bid farewell to the Henry Metz family who left for Spring Lake where they will make their home. Henry has been an old timer around the district and he will be greatly missed by the entire community.

The evening commenced with the showing of 2 films, one of which proved how to play baseball. A program followed which proved that we have many talented people in the district Tom Ware started off the program with a piano solo. Kurt Lammes appeared on the stage ac companied with 'Now Is The Hour' Joyce Metz and Denham displayed skill in club swinging The fourth item on the program was a quartette by the Four Flats, or better known as H. Lets, L. Ingvaldsen, C. Nesland L. Berg—who sang 'Lets Go Down To Jordon'. After this the boys gave their own version of Hank Metz Had A Farm. Ingrid and Ricky Nims sang a duet 'There Is No Night Without A Star'. The Musical Skit proved that Elmhur Chase and Phil Holman were right on the beam in distinguishing the top tunes.

Six of the local curlers, A. Olson, O. Probst, W. Reed, A. Matheson H. Metz and F. Pedlar, told of their best curling shots The reporter does not know whether the winner was best or worst. Anyhow the prize went to Miss Gritha Hays.

The program ended with some effective remarks by Reed for Sid Peterson, H. Lammes for baseball, F. Sadowski presented Hank Metz with a scrapbook of baseball from his fellow players D. Wimmer then gave the final speech on behalf of the community, and presented the Metz family with a token of esteem after the singing of Jolly Good Fellows and Auld Lang Syne, lunch was served

The Trans-Canada Highway

FOR MANY YEARS THERE HAS BEEN considerable interest in this country in the completion of an up-to-date highway, linking Canada from the East to the West coasts. There are some parts of the present transcanada highway which complete favorably with any roads to be found on [illegible]. But this section [illegible] falls far short of modern standards for a transcontinental highway. Canada is a very large country and the transcontinental highway must of necessity pass through many miles of sparsely populated land, where then would be little other than long-distance traffic. Uneconomical [illegible] hard-surfaced roads requires a great deal of [illegible] expenditure of large sums of money. During the [illegible] which have followed labor has been scarce and construction materials have [illegible] commanding a ready prices of the extent of [illegible] and labor.

Many Favor Such A Road

There are, however many who favor the building of such a road as soon as conditions are opportune for such an undertaking. Recently a delegation representing the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, visited upon the Honorable J. G. Gardiner, Dominion Minister of Mines and Resources in connection with mines matters and submitted to him that the Chamber of Commerce believes that the present trans-Canada road facilities are inadequate. "A modern hard-surfaced highway would be a great asset in helping to unify the United States and Canada, increasing tourist traffic, and for purposes of national defence, the spokesman for the delegation stated. The completion of an up-to-date highway system from the Atlantic to the Pacific by Federal and Provincial governments, to be undertaken when conditions are favorable was advocated by three delegates on behalf of their organizations.

An Advantage To Canada

It has been pointed out frequently by interested organizations such as the Chamber of Commerce, that it would be to the advantage of the whole of Canada to build and maintain a fine highway across the country. Tourists have become the mainstay of many industry here and good roads have come to be recognized as not only a convenience to the local population, but also as a source of revenue from tourist traffic. At present there is no direct connection between Eastern and Western Canada by means of a first-class motor road, and as a result, much money is lost to this country each year because motorists travelling between the East and the West must travel a considerable part of the way in the United States if they are to have a hard-surface highway all the way. The building of an up-to-date trans-Canada highway would undoubtedly be a great asset to the country and it is to be hoped that one may be completed as soon as conditions are opportune for such an undertaking.

Grasshopper "Storm" Signals Are Out

The above map shows predicted grasshopper infestations in Saskatchewan and Alberta next summer, and indicates the relative severity of the attacks in different areas.

PERIODICALLY, Canada's Prairie Grain belt is devastated by another grasshopper plague. Federal, provincial and municipal entomologists started in this particular part, and farmers had little knowledge or advance notice of these scourges, but now are warned in advance when extra severe outbreaks are expected.

This year, entomologists of the Dominion Department of Agriculture at the laboratories in Lethbridge, Saskatoon and Brandon, and in co-operation with the provincial entomologists, have mapped out the areas where serious hordes of grasshoppers can be expected to attack farmers' grain crops.

In the accompanying map, the areas in which outbreaks will be severe, moderate and light, are shown for the southern half of Saskatchewan and the lower part of Alberta. There are also a few areas in Manitoba where a light emergence of grasshoppers is expected, and it is in Manitoba where that the worst outbreaks are feared.

With the provincial authorities in the lead, farmers both in Saskatchewan and Alberta can do much to ward off the worst effects of these grasshopper outbreaks. Poison bait will be available through municipal-ties and local improvement districts, and there will also be leaflets as well as bait supplies and instructions available from your agricultural representative. Farmers themselves must get busy and organize in preparation for bait spreading and should watch for the hatching reports from district officials.

The above map was supplied by the Dominion Entomological Office, Lethbridge, Alta. Rainfall will have some bearing on the damage.

U.S. Population Now 145,340,000

WASHINGTON. — The United States population reached a high of 145,340,000 at the start of this year after 1947 proved the biggest single year of growth in history as record number of babies 2,906,000 were born in 1947.

Continuance of a low death rate and a net immigration of about 215,000 persons also helped the net boost last year.

Canadian Maple Trees Planted At Nurses' Rest Home in Britain

VANCOUVER. Three maple trees, flown from Canada were planted by Princess Alice when she officially opened a nurses' rest home in Richmond, Surrey of the furnishings for this retreat in the country for nurses injured during the last war, were provided by nurses in this Dominion.

This was described by Miss Grace M. Fairley when she spoke in Women's Auxiliary to Vancouver General Hospital recently.

The Canadian Nurses' Association has contributed $30,000 as a rehabilitation fund for British civilian nurses unable to carry on. Some have received courses to refit them for earning their own living. Income taxes have been varied help.

Canada's War Book Started

OTTAWA — Preparation of Canada's Second World War book of records — a detailed, precise task expected to take five years — has been started here by Lt.-Cmdr. Allan D. Beddoe, 54-year-old sailor-artist.

The book will contain some 45,000 names of fallen Canadian service men, compared with 58,651 names in the First World War book, now in the quiet sanctuary of the Memorial Chamber in the parliament buildings' peace tower.

No decision has been made on the ultimate location of the second book.

The memorial chamber, a small, peaceful room of which the first book is the centre, is devoted wholly to the deeds of Canada's First World War forces. Its solid, intricately-carved stone work depicting First World War scenes and emblems might not easily be altered to accommodate tokens of the recent conflict.

The first book took 19 years to complete, the work being delayed by the death of the artist who had illuminated.

Lt.-Cmdr. Beddoe, who completed the decoration of the first book, is in charge of the new work.

He served with the RCNVR during the Second World War.

The first part of his new work—compilation of a card series on which appear the names to be inscribed in the book by hand—is under way. The names will be listed by year of death.

The new book, about 150 pages will be of rare vellum, a Shropshire material manufactured in England. The first 100 sheets already have been received here.

The exact boundaries of Saudi Arabia are indefinite, but the country contains more than 600,000 square miles.

Bus Made 30-Hour Dash To Meet Deadline

PENTICTON — Bus service by Columbia Coachways Ltd. is in operation here, but it was a race against time and the elements to get it started.

A year ago the company was granted a franchise to operate a bus service with January 25, 1948, as a time limit, and postponed a $3,000 bond as good faith.

January 21 the company got delivery of its first bus—in Vancouver. Five winter roads company nets drove in a 30-hour dash to get the bus on Penticton streets before the deadline.

Mayor Cliff Connell him doubled the company substantially complied with its agreement to provide service, and returned its $3,000 bond.

11-YEAR-OLD VANCOUVER BOY MAKES SOLO FLIGHT

VANCOUVER — A silver monoplane took off from Vancouver airport, climbed to 1,000 feet, carried the field and made a perfect landing. Only one of the pilot was John Davies, 1620 Salsbury, believed the youngest solo flier in B.C. air history.

John, an 11-year-old Vancouver boy, has been flying for 20 months. But he won't be able to get a license for another six years.

Tonight he was his first solo flight. It drew praise from his Vancouver flying instructor, Ed Bell, who said John was a better pilot after eight hours' dual instruction than most adults.

The lad is the second in his family to take to the air. His mother, Mrs. W. G. Davies, won five hours flying instruction as second prize in the "Learn to Fly" contest last August.

76,738 Homes Built In Canada In 1947

OTTAWA — An estimated number of 76,738 dwelling units were completed in Canada during 1947, the dominion bureau of statistics announced.

This brings the total number of dwelling units completed in the first three post-war years to almost 206,000 the bureau said. In 1947 74 per cent of the dwelling units were built by non-profit and other urban municipalities.

The earliest libraries were probably temples.

New Traffic Gadget Clocks Speed Of Cars Passing It On Busy Roadways .

(By HAROLD KEEN, Central Press Canadian)

San Diego, Cal.—For years, policemen and highway safety engineers have struggling with the problem of estimating the speed of an approaching vehicle without having to swing around and follow it through hazardous traffic.

Today it if Lockenbach, California division of highways safety engineer, believes he has the solution. To determine how fast an oncoming car is traveling he need only place a gadget-filled suitcase by the side of the road. Rich a switch and let electronics do the rest.

When an auto zips by, a band spins on a speedometer-type dial and points to the speed with pinpoint accuracy, according to Lockenbach, who imagined the magical three-eye apparatus.

Lockenbach is putting the device into operation here to improve safety on highways. In California such evidence as furnished by his "electronic eye" cannot be used in court to convict a speeder.

After designing a highway on the basis of known safety factors that limit the legal maximum speed to 35 miles an hour, for example, Lockenbach can use his "magic meter" to clock the average speed of traffic.

The device also is used for research when one of which is clamped to ing average speed between traffic signals so that they may be set to provide a smooth flow of cars at a safe pace. Time lengths between signal changes vary with the time of day. These can be determined by measurements of speeds in correlation with traffic volume.

What happens to traffic when a motorcycle officer suddenly appears on the scene? Lockenbach has measured the psychological effect of this phenomenon.

The average motorist slows down 10 miles an hour when he noticed a policeman on the highway," he says.

An oncoming speedometer-type electronic eye for Lockenbach at his request. His engineer, John Barker, tackled the problem in the sonic field. At first echoes from buildings and hills interfered with the sound waves which the meter was to record.

Eventually Barker overcame the difficulty. The meter now is essentially a broadcasting and receiving

When the switch is turned on, the needle begins dancing across the dial, recording the speed of each passing car by use of the "Doppler principle".

This is best understood by comparison with the whistle of an approaching locomotive. The closer it gets, the higher the whistle pitch becomes. This is because the sound waves are shortening. Then as the locomotive passes and moves toward the opposite horizon, the whistle tone grows deeper as the sound waves lengthen.

Electronic waves reflected from a moving vehicle do the same. The faster the car approaches, the more rapidly do the sound waves shorten. The speed meter calibrates this change and shows the result in miles per hour.

As though he were a "ham" radio operator, Lockenbach had to get his electronic eye licensed by the federal communications commission. He has a call letter, WKHTD, and operates on 2,465 megacycles.

Polymyxin, Powerful New Germ-Killer Cures Dangerous Infections

BALTIMORE—Successful clinical use of a new powerful germ-killer, Polymyxin, is described by John Hopkins hospital physicians. They report swift cures of undulant fever, whooping cough and other dangerous infections.

Beyond that, the drug may lead to mankind's final triumph over an ancient curse. Bubonic plague. It will be sent to India to determine how it works against the Black Death, they said.

Typhoid and paratyphoid fever, certain wound infections, types of meningitis, various urinary tract infections, tularemia (rabbit fever), blood poisoning, and bacillary dysentry also are among diseases against which the doctors found polymyxin "uniquely effective".

The drug is derived from bacillus polyma. This is an organism commonly found in soil, water, sewage and mush, the doctors said. It is not yet available for general clinical use.

A nine-year-old boy, near death from a skin eruption with a secondary infection, was the first human to be treated with the new drug.

Physicians injected it in the form of a white powder under his skin. He was well in eight days.

One big advantage polymyxin has over the other recent "wonder drugs" is that the germs it attacks do not develop a resistance to it.

GARDEN NOTES

Layouts

For the average layout around the house, it is advisable to use a combination of vines, shrubbery, trees, perennial flowers and the like. Too planted in clumps make the best arrangement. As result of this, groups of smaller shrubs and larger perennial flowers can be planted with the roots between, especially where the shrubbery is still small, filled in with clumps of annuals. Along the front they edging plants are used, then will come a piece of green lawn. Unclumps rather than straight rows and a wavy edge along the front of the bed as preferred to straight edges. In the foreground, of course, will be the lawn, the shrubbery acting as the main frame for the general picture.

Good Equipment Helps

With a small garden all the tools needed are a rake, a hoe and a spade or digging fork. These are minimum requirements. With a little more equipment one's labor can be lessened. Digging forks, cultivators, special weeders, dutch hoes, etc., will make the work easier and more interesting.

For larger gardens, of course, a garden tractor that will cultivate, plow, etc., is helpful but somewhat costly. They are not expensive and are very handy for many jobs. One can get all sorts of attachments to go with them—lawn mowers, cultivators, mowers for cutting tall grass and weeds even snowplows.

A sharp hoe or cultivator will speed the work. It is a good plan to wipe off all dirt between operations, and a little oil or grease now and on the shiny surfaces is recommended.

Main Vegetable Groups

Vegetables divide themselves into three basic planting groups: hardy, medium and tender. The first are planted just as soon as the soil can be prepared regardless of the weather ahead. They will stand a little frost and must make their first growth while the weather is still cool and wet. In this class are peas, the first onions, carrots and beets, radish, spinach and lettuce. Make the first planting just as soon as the soil has worked up nicely and is no longer mushy. Make a practice of sowing beets, radish, spinach, carrots, etc., at least three times, about two weeks apart.

Next are semi-hardy things like potatoes, the first corn, beans and cabbage, which will stand cool weather but very little frost. Next come the tender things that can stand no frost at all such as melons, cucumbers, tomatoes, pumpkins. Do not plant these until both soil and air are warm.

Motorcar Industry Breaking All Records

Britain is exporting more cars than ever before in the 50-year history of the motor industry. In 1946, the monthly rate was 2'200 in 1947, 3,800. In January of this year it rose to 14,000 or 67% of output. This was apart from the 5,000 commercial vehicles and buses exported. 2720

How the stick got into the cow's stomach remained a mystery.

Finding Life Lonely

Leper Colony On Bentinck Island Has Dropped To Three Persons

VICTORIA — The leper colony on tiny Bentinck Island, 18 miles south of Victoria in the Straits of San Juan de Fuca, has now dwindled to three persons and they are finding life lonely. A small party of newspaper men visited the island recently, with the permission of federal authorities, and interviewed the residents. Two Orientals and a maimonly white woman, formerly a missionary, are Dr Bertram Jenkins' only patients. He is the medical officer for the colony.

Nurse Leaves

There are 10 well, rain-washed cottages of concrete home for the use of lepers and three of these are occupied.

On the reporters first visit to a leper's home they were greeted by a middle-aged motherly woman. She explained that she had a cabin on the "run for the boys"—the two other patients, a Chinese and a Japanese.

She had contracted the disease while a missionary in foreign service. She has also noticed a slight loss of sensation in her left leg and consult... of the... ity in any leprosy.

"I don't mind being alone or single. It is being cut off that hurts," she said. "Why should we not be allowed to live in an institution like a tuberculosis sanatorium? If people knew that we lived normally it might make a different public attitude to an ernst—no wrong."

No leper has ever died of the disease medical officials said, but are taken of a secondary ailment. Two have died on Bentinck from old age, one 89.

Hopes For Company

The Chinese said he hoped another Chinese would come to Bentinck to "keep me company". "If I am not lonely when he come he could show me up there" he laughed pointing to a rough piece of beachwood recording on Chinese calendars the history of 18 lepers who have died on the island. He has been on Bentinck for years having contracted the disease in a Canadian shingle mill.

Dr Jenkins said there had never been a case where leprosy was contracted by a nurse, caretaker or visitor on the island, where no person under 21 is allowed.

Supplies, wood and medical requirements are brought from the mainland every month by Government launch—a which pig back and forth three or four times yearly. Letters leaving the island are sealed in a container containing formaldehyde fumes for 24 hours.

The third patient is a 26-year-old Nisei (Canadian-born Japanese), and he looks the very healthy youth. The disease affects only one leg and since setting on the isle his weight has risen from 130 to 180 pounds.

The humane and understanding manner with which the lepers are treated by Dr. Jenkins and his staff is reflected in the regard in which they are held by the patients. The lepers feel at home as much as possible, their isolated circumstances permit. Dr. Jenkins said chief handicap was a lack of recreational equipment. Even a small movie projector would be welcomed.

Japanese Now Free To Travel

OTTAWA — Japanese in Canada, their movements tied down for six years, now are free to travel all over anywhere east of the Rockies.

But they still may not go into British Columbia without a permit of the type they previously sought for ...ement of any kind.

In announcing the relaxation of restrictions on the Communist Labor Minister Mitchell also made clear the government intends to continue for another year from March 31 the registering restrictive powers of the ...mmand.

Besides the permit provision for travel in B.C. the chief of these other restrictions is that barring persons of Japanese descent from getting fishing ... licenses in that province or serving on vessels operating out of the ...ports.

Provision for the continuation in exchequer, the government's legislation, for extending its emergency powers until March 31 1949.

Mr Mitchell was tabled an order providing for the government to continue until March 31, 1950, part of its financial assistance to Japanese evacuated in wartime from the West Coast province to Alberta.

Though not fully lifting the ties from Japanese travel, the new regulation represents a long step from the previous position. Under the wartime order, persons of the Japanese race could not move anywhere in Canada without a permit from the labor department, and those were subject to be ordered to any place the department considered they should move.

FIND EFFECTIVE TREATMENT FOR UMBILICARY FEVER

Investigations carried out over a 10-year period in the laboratories and clinics of the University of Minnesota Hospitals indicate that combined treatment with streptomycin and sulfadiazine is more effective against human tuberculosis (unchalant fever) than any other known treatment.

Writing in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, four physicians report the cases of more than 30 patients with active bronchiectasis whom they studied and observed, and whose treatment they directed. The doctors are Wesley W. Spink, M.D. Wendell H Hall, M.D., James M. Shaffer, M.D., and Abraham I. Braude, M.D. From the Division of Internal Medicine, University of Minnesota Hospitals and Medical School, Minneapolis.

Recorded in importance by only three other combinations—tuberculosis, syphilis and gonorrhoea—undulant fever has badly menaced men for many years. The Brucella organism is transmitted to humans by contact with diseased hogs, goats or cows, or by drinking unpasteurized milk. The forms which the disease takes are extremely variable, and even after apparent recovery the Brucella organism may remain in the patient's tissues, fatigue and recurrence of symptoms may therefore soon ensue.

The four doctors report that in both acute and chronic brucellosis cases, a sulfadiazine-streptomycin combination brought the most satisfactory results. Also, patients whose symptoms pointed to brucellosis as the most probable diagnosis responded well to the combined therapy, although the presence of Brucella organisms in their tissue or body fluids had not been proved. The treatment also was effective in cases with serious complications of brucellosis.

It had been attempted previously to treat the disease with sulfonamide or with streptomycin, separately, but without success. Only simultaneous treatment with both showed satisfactory results.

THIS GOOD EARTH AND WHAT IT CAN DO FOR US

Extracts from an Address by Professor George H. T. Kimble head of the Geography Department of McGill University, to the Royal Canadian Institute of Architects, in Ottawa.

WHAT does a geographer discover about this earth of ours when he begins to look at it from the geographical—I might even call it the neighborly—point of view?

He discovers that it is a pretty good earth, in spite of all the mishandling it has had, and all the abuse, it still abounds in noble prospects and physical satisfactions—in things that are "pleasant to the sight and good for food".

It still yields its increase in due season, and it can still bring forth abundantly. After more than 5,000 years of continuous cropping, the lands of the Nile Delta today support a denser population than ever before. The same is substantially true of the Ganges Valley, and of the northern streams of China where many an irrigated area is annually reaped twice, producing three separate, and abundable, harvests. Scarcely less important is the record of the lowlands and polders of Western Europe, where, in spite of a capricious climate and perennial drainage problems, the farmers think nothing of threshing 60 to 80 bushels of wheat to the acre.

The truth of the matter is that most of us are still a long way from realizing just how good the earth is. Even the deserts of the earth are good for something. They are merely difficult to show, for example that without the ice cap of the Antarctic the climates of Southern Canada and Northern Europe would be much colder than they are, and much less stimulating to mind and body alike; while the warmth of the tropical world have not they played a leading role in the evolution of the civilizations from which we draw our moral and spiritual standards?

For myself, I believe that, if we had but the eyes to see it, we would find that the present division of the earth into hot and cold, dry and wet, lands is nothing like as wasteful (in terms of population-supporting power) as some people suppose. Anyway, I am all against letting the atomic scientists tinker about with the climates of the "not-so-good" lands. They have made quite enough progress recently without upsetting the balance and the Arch. Anyway, I like to say they would not upset everybody if they were allowed to pep up the atmosphere electrically or chemically? Heaven forbid that.

Or that Congress should start a filibuster
On wheat to clear and when to muster.
They'd still be at it 'ds
Half for rain and half for shine!"

The second thing we discover about this earth is that it is highly expendable. The rate in human terms at which these large parts of it are no longer as good as they used to be, for every country has memories recounting the Nile Delta, the Euphrates and the Tigris-Valley and the Mediterranean lands of Mesopotamia have no modern counterpart because they have become the habitation of Jackals and a court of owls. Petra and Palmyra, Yes and Baalbec have long since perished in the dust, while barely a battalion of Roman sand guard over the ruins of Leptanus. Similar orgies of destruction marked the consumer periods of Greece and Rome of the modern Italian cities, and of Spain and Portugal—in the grievous impoverishment of succeeding generations.

We have smash-and-grab activities by characterized the early immigrant into the Americas, to South Africa and Australia, with results that do not make comfortable reading. In the United States today, after only 300 years of European settlement, more than half the original forest cover has disappeared, more than two-thirds of the land is affected by soil erosion, and the supply of many of its most valuable minerals is running out.

In South Africa, erosion has reached the proportions of a national scourge; according to the most recent estimate, the land has only another 25 years of productivity left at the existing rate of wastage. In Australia, and New Zealand, the youngest of the new lands, the position is not much better.

With such experiences multiplying before our eyes almost daily, it is small wonder that men are beginning to ask whether the good earth is any longer able to carry the burdens put upon it, and whether it will be capable of sustaining the ever-increasing populations.

To the geographer's way of thinking, the earth is able to accommodate earth. I am not unmindful of the prophets of gloom who persist in pushing out with leisurely power almost to the marshy shores opposite, then back. And instead of the earth's resources, with the ever-increasing populations, and that the world's cupboards will soon be bare.

True, there are parts where men no longer gather any harvest save that which they sowed. Other areas (as in the Punjab, the Sudan and our own North American West) which have been ruined by bad methods. And there are even larger areas where the fragile and ever-evanescent margins of our habitable world are being lost through the ...ondemic and technological advances, may very well come to be numbered among the world's useful areas by reason of agricultural, mineral and manufactured products.

But whether all this means that there is room enough to feed, let alone provide an adequate standard of living for its inhabitants, would be a dangerously rash question. The ...ondiveness of engineers, architects, town planners, governments and governments is join forces in furthering the "good life" which, in the words of the Atlantic Charter—"by all states, great or small, victor or vanquished" should have equal terms to the trade and raw materials of the world which are needed for their economic prosperity."

The good thing is perfectly certain: no really adequate way of life for any community can be established by a Robinson Crusoe technique.

Dame Nature does her business on a big scale. When she hands out her favors it is with a sublime disregard for geographical units, national boundaries or military necessities. She is no respecter of worlds within her world. No single country was given all the ingredients of the Good life—not even Canada.

National Health Scheme Sooner Than Expected

TORONTO — Hope that a national health scheme would be announced "sooner than most people anticipate" was expressed by Hon. Paul Martin, Minister of National Health and Welfare, in an interview here.

"The scheme will be fundamentally the same as was presented at the Dominion-Provincial Conference in 1945," he added. Cost, if adopted by all provinces, would be $250,000,000, of which the Dominion Government would pay 60 per cent, or $150,000,000. The rest would be sent from provincials by provincial governments and individuals participating.

Mr. Martin made the remarks last week-end at the Toronto branch of the Canadian Red Cross that Federal-provincial and municipal government in 1947 spent $800,000,000 in social welfare and security.

To raise the standards of living in the British territories of the Empire, Britain is spending $230,000,000 under a 10-year development and welfare plan to reach its zenith in 1955.

Scientists Seek Gasoline From Natural Gas

Vegreville, Alta., Chemical Engineer, Is Successful In Obtaining A Small Quantity from Carbon Monoxide

EDMONTON — The conversion of natural gas to a cheap, high-quality gasoline is one of the problems now being studied by scientists at the University of Alberta research laboratories.

Research men all over the continent have been wrestling at this project for years but as yet none have succeeded in producing a method that will make gasoline cheaply enough to compete with that obtained from petroleum. At the university lab here, gasoline has been made from natural gas but not cheaply enough to make it feasible. The project is particularly important to Alberta with its huge untapped reserves of natural gas.

Initial work on the synthesization of gasoline was begun at the university in 1943 by the late Dr. E. H. Boomer, professor of chemical engineering. Since his death, graduate students have been conducting the experiments.

Most Increase Yield

At present a 23-year-old chemical engineer from Vegreville, Alta. Michael Chmilar, is taking his master of science degree on the project. So far he has made 600 cubic centimetres, a pound of gasoline from 28 cu. feet of natural gas mixture. Theoretically, twice that amount should be obtained and he now is attempting to increase the yield so the gasoline obtained can compete with ordinary petroleum gasoline.

Natural gas is converted to carbon monoxide in the laboratory. The carbon monoxide is then combined with hydrogen gas in the presence of a granulated cobalt metal at a temperature around 200 degrees. The problem at present is to find something besides the cobalt metal to combine the carbon monoxide and hydrogen. It's a big job—but Mr. Chmilar is optimistic about the results.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

A Dollar For Luck

By ROGER S. IRELAND

A LITTLE girl in a pale yellow bathing suit went running past him, interrupting his thoughts. Her dark hair in damp irregular strands flopped up and down on her shoulders. Suddenly she dropped on one knee before him, staring momentarily into the clover whiteness of his presence. Just as quickly, she rose and continued on her way.

He called to her. "Think it was a four-leaf?"

With surprise she looked back and grinned briefly. It was a wide, freshly grin.

Yes! For a minute!" she laughed shyly without slackening the pace of her angly legs.

He had begun to finger the leaves himself and his thoughts drifted back into the channel they had left. His set sobol feet of man lay in the clover near the edge of the sand, big tanned hand turned the blazing sun. Glass bread chest nestled in the cool soft grass, the trunks were about to dump from a long, hard swim. Even in the water he had insisted himself, pushing out with leisurely power almost to the marshy shores opposite, then back. And instead of the earth's resources, with the ever-increasing populations, and that the world's cupboards will soon be bare.

True, there are parts where men no longer gather any harvest save that which they sowed. Other areas (as in the Punjab, the Sudan and our own North American West) which have been ruined by bad methods. And there are even larger areas where the fragile and ever-evanescent margins of our habitable world are being lost through the ...ondemic and technological advances, may very well come to be numbered among the world's useful areas by reason of agricultural, mineral and manufactured products.

But whether all this means that there is room enough to feed, let alone provide an adequate standard of living for its inhabitants, would be a dangerously rash question. The ...ondiveness of engineers, architects, town planners, governments and governments is join forces in furthering the "good life" which, in the words of the Atlantic Charter—"by all states, great or small, victor or vanquished" should have equal terms to the trade and raw materials of the world which are needed for their economic prosperity."

The good thing is perfectly certain: no really adequate way of life for any community can be established by a Robinson Crusoe technique.

Dame Nature does her business on a big scale. When she hands out her favors it is with a sublime disregard for geographical units, national boundaries or military necessities. She is no respecter of worlds within her world. No single country was given all the ingredients of the Good life—not even Canada.

Your Implement Dealer Says:

BETTER IMPLEMENTS
BETTER CROPS

Has home have had an interesting and indirect effect on crops that is since of high economic importance. The strong demand from farmers for more and more machines and even more efficient ones led the plant breeders and engineers to a kind of collaboration that is yielding good results as plants and machines better fitted to each other. Most machines that tend to make better grow better and with less interference from various factory operations. An improvement in quality. Other machines, beyond the harvesting machines, permit a better utilization of varied products. For instance, Fore-finishers, Stalks Cutters and also shredders increase the feeding value of roughage and other feed.

The Manure Spreader two: the more modern manure loaders make possible the better utilization of barnyard manure. Machines of great variety have been developed to make farm products attractive to animals, as food or to people who buy them on the markets.

IDEOLOGY'S FOURTH R

(Contributed)

Human selfishness is not only the cause of human woe but the source of our political and economic system. Capitalism, Socialism, and Totalitarianism — based respectively on the ideas of Reward Regulation and Reincantation " make up society. Here it is, and no, in its own way is chiefly an attempt to deal with selfishness

Capitalism says that selfishness can be made a good thing if we bow out the reward of possession pure and simple. It says production is the aims to harness the selfish instincts of man in a moral way.

Socialism says that selfishness is bad it aims to remove temptation to be selfish by removing opportunity for private ownership and thus the chance to gain possessions and the power and position that go with them.

Totalitarianism says that selfishness is unavoidable that it cannot be changed as in capitalism, or even neutralized as in socialism, so the best we can do is attempt to change the nature of a dictatorship.

Rewards regulation reincarnation which is true? Which is right? The truth is that, after every attempt to harness, regulate or subdue self ishness, the selfishness still remains and leads inevitably to chaos Our real problem is not to deal with selfishness but to overcome it. The approach to this is moral, and not political or economical, and the main agency of society is religion.

The democracies admit religion

Totalitarians bar it out. But it is one thing to subdue religion and another in practice it. If in any democratic country a revival of religion will spring up and a wave of true selfishness across the land — it would call all arguments as to the relative validity and worth or the Three Rs. All three would pale to insignificance beside the Fourth R of newborn Responsibility — the selfless caring for each other which is the response to religion.

Britain's Recovery Programme

IN THE RECENT NATIONAL ECONOMIC SURVEY, published by the British government the people there were once more reminded of the critical nature of their present economic situation and were told of the rigorous programme for recovery which must be carried out in the coming months. It called for a full understanding of the need for stern measures to meet this crisis and for full co-operation in carrying out the necessary measures. "The Government," the survey said, "regards it as essential to the whole conception and success of an economic plan democratically carried out that there should be the widest possible understanding of the facts of the situation and the targets laid down." The magnitude of Britain's war effort and the necessity for rebuilding many industrial sites, has made post-war recovery a difficult matter, but in spite of that, there has been steady progress since the summer of 1945.

Main Object To Save Dollars

In spite of transportation difficulties and fuel shortages industrial production in Britain rose in 1947 by nine per cent, over that of 1946. This increase was due in part to voluntary increases in working hours and partly to great effort on the part of individual workers. Since that time further advances have been made toward the goal for 1948 which is for an export rate 50 per cent above the pre-war level. Since one of the most serious aspects of Britain's economic situation is the shortage of dollars the main objectives outlined for that year are concerned with conserving dollars by decreasing Britain's imports from dollar countries and by producing at home as many articles as possible normally imported from the Western Hemisphere. At the same time, the report aims at increasing the British exports to dollar countries. All this involves continued austerity for the British people and a great effort to step up the production of articles for export.

* * * *

Targets Set For Industry

There is hope that the textile industry will produce 27 per cent. more woollen and worsted goods than in 1947, and that production of cotton goods and yarns will be 74 per cent above that of last year. The target for steel mills is over one million tons more than in 1947, in spite of the fact that this industry has for some time been breaking production records. It is also hoped to raise machinery shipments to 130 per cent. above the prewar average, while manufacturers of vehicles have been asked to raise exports to 240 per cent. of the 1938 figure. All these objectives will have to be reached by individual industries if a target trade is to be 50 per cent. above that of 1938, which is the figure considered necessary if satisfactory progress is to be made in 1948. To achieve this goal the British people will be called upon to make continued sacrifices. Housing schemes will have to be postponed, as will plans for reduced working hours and production of goods for home markets. Even food supplies will again be reduced. The outlook for 1948, according to the survey, is "full of uncertainties and bound to be one of great anxiety." There is, however, no suggestion of defeat and it is to be sincerely hoped that the courage and determination of the British people and their government will soon be rewarded with the success they deserve in their great struggle for economic recovery.

Better Roads For Tourists "Imperative"

OTTAWA.—D. Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau told the Senate committee on tourist traffic that he cater to the vast army of travelers which would continue to visit Canada from the United States year after year it was "imperative" to see that Canada's highway system was vastly improved. He believed Canada's 1948 tourist traffic would exceed that of last year.

He believed that for many years to come automobile would bring to this country from 80 to 90 per cent. of the American visitors who take a tour in Canada.

This year the number of inquiries is running more than 1,100 a day.

If Canada could keep its prices at a "reasonable" level it would get a large influx of tourists, if not compelled from other parts of the continent would seriously cut into Canada's tourist industry, Mr. Dolan said.

Women Inspectors Like Their Job

EMERSON Man.—Four Winnipeg women, working as customs inspectors at the United States-Canada border town of Emerson, believe they have one of the most congenial jobs on record. They say the majority of people crossing the border do not try to smuggle articles across to the other side.

We've had no unpleasant experience," says Mrs. Hazel Pringle, one of the four women who have served back to search anyone, though the law says we may."

The inspectors are told of the regulations before they cross over, so they know what they can bring back, she explained. "Most of them are patriotic and co-operative."

U.S. THANKED FOR AIDING CANADIAN

OTTAWA.—Rescue of a New Westminster woman last November from remote Cambridge Bay, Victoria Island, has helped strengthen Canada-U.S. ties.

Defence Minister Claxton, in a thank you note to U.S. Defence Secretary Forrestal, said the 800-mile mercy flight by American airmen was "a striking and practical example of the close relationship between the armed forces of Canada and the U.S."

Sergeant J. M. M. Craik critically ill, was flown through heavy snow and ice to Fort Nelson, B.C., in a U.S. aircraft which answered a call from "any available place".

A successful appendix operation subsequently was performed on five-year Craik in Edmonton.

ALBERTA CAR LICENSES AT NEW PEAK IN 1947

EDMONTON.—Alberta issued 102,000 car licenses in 1947, shattering all previous records and exceeding the previous year's total of 95,000. Drivers' licenses also set a new high of 184,000, against 71,000 in the previous year.

The year Alberta returns to the old system of two license plates on motor vehicles. In order to meet a rush demand, the province has placed an order for 110,000 sets of plates.

:: Perennial Wheat No Longer Unbelievable Myth ::

Winter Hardiness Needed If Wheat Is To Be Of Value

By I. R. MELVILLE-NEWS
Central Press Canadian

REGINA, Sask.—Plant breeders at the University of Saskatchewan, working with crosses between grasses and wheats, have come along with an interesting development — a wheat-like plant with perennial habit, and none immunity to a large number of races of stem and leaf rust.

The difficulty is that the perennial ones have no winter hardiness and can only be carried through several croppings under green house conditions. The perennial wheat is "progress unbelievable myth, according to Dr. J. B. Harrington of the university field husbandry department. Winter hardiness must be added if the wheat is to be of any value. It will take many years to do this, but the lines we are working on from present many interesting possibilities," he said.

For instance, the plants growing in one of the green houses at the university have the grass characteristic of retaining green matter in the stem, after the head has ripened. One such plant, developed to withstand prairie field conditions, would serve a dual purpose. It is possible the grain might be threshed, the straw left to cure, later to be gathered and fed to stock as a valuable and nutritious forage.

Degree Of Stability

What value such perennial wheat have in the western farm economy? Simply this: it could provide a permanent cover crop, capable of preventing much of the dangerous wind and water erosion that threatens the very life of some of our soil. Perennial wheat could mean a degree of stability never believed possible in this country. But between the present lines and the development of a strain hardy enough to withstand the severe winters of the west lie years of painstaking work of breeding and cross-breeding, selection and rejection, all the "disappointments and the shattered hopes the plant breeder knows so well.

Dr. Harrington, who is in charge of wheat breeding at the university, states that the greatest achievement in the result of work done by Professor L. H. Reisenauer of the university field husbandry department, when he was at the Dominion Rust Research Laboratory at Winnipeg. Reisenauer crossed Agrogyron elongatum, a hardy grass, with Chinese wheat in 1930, and back crossed the grass-like hybrid with Chinese to get a moderately wheat-like progeny. Successive generations of selecting to breed a satisfactory wheat-like plant of perennial habit was interrupted from 1941 to 1945 and resumed in the fall of 1945.

Research Begins

Although Russian scientists are believed to have been working on perennial bread-grain crops since 1928, it was not until 1935 that similar research began in Canada. This was undertaken actually in response to the need for new forage crops which would help solve the problems of drought and soil conservation. That work has the objective of a large-seeded hardy grass and is under way at the Dominion Forage Breeding Plant.

Plan New Road For Yukon

OTTAWA.—The government plans construction of an all-weather truck road in the Mayo-Keno mining district of the Yukon, Resources Minister Gibson announced.

The road, for which an expenditure of $400,000 was asked in the estimates tabled recently, would run from Mayo on the Stewart River to Minto on the Yukon, a distance of approximately 100 miles.

There has been a winter road over the route for many years, but when airplanes took over the contract for delivering mail, the overland freighters discontinued their service. Water navigation the only other means of delivering freight from Whitehorse to the various communities in the territory was not dependable.

A full scale program with several research people spending a large part of their time on the south would help in increasing the chances of segregating a desirable hardy perennial plant. 25 LBS. MARVELUBE No. 11 GREASE WITH ALEMITE HAND LEVER GUN
For his price, this little hand lever gun is a bonny. It was designed for use for greasing military vehicles in mobile warfare. Light to carry, yet it exerts enough pressure to force the grease through to all the bearing parts. Can be used for all types of light-bodied, high-speed car and farm grease.
25 LBS. MARVELUBE No. 11 GREASE WITH ALEMITE PRESSURE GUN
This pressure gun with flexible hose, which attaches on the cap of the grease container, is ideal for those who operate a lot of equipment. It is strongly constructed, yet is light enough to be carried anywhere. Saves time and keeps grease clean. Costs more than the hand-lever gun (above) but gives you high value for the money.
GREASE CUTS COST!
It's an old but very true saying that "cutting an ounce is worth-while out of a bearing, does cut's work in". Good lubricants of the proper grade, applied regularly, keep machines operating longer and at the same time reduce repair bills. And which help us cut costs. With either of the above outfits, you can keep all implements well lubricated, whether indoors or out in the fields.

Marvelube No. 11
IS THE IDEAL FARM LUBRICANT
Marvelube No. 11 is bright, clean, never resinous, soft enough to be forced through fine channels, yet has enough body for full protection. It's the ideal grease for farm machinery.

Your Implement Dealer Says:
LESS LABOUR NEEDED
The ingenuity of man has provided the farm with power and machines to make possible the increasing crop production in spite of the demand for labor in carrying on the world's otherwise and complex war. When industrial developments or simple trades grew up in cities and attracted laborer from the rural districts inventors soon began to improve the means of preparing seedbeds, cultivating, harvesting and simple processing on the farm This development was slow at first when manufacturing was small-scale and crude.
Those were the days when plows were changing from the wooden wood forms to shaped wood and then to metal shod wood to metal and finally to the polished steel; the days when reaping equipment was changing from the hand lifting sickle to the back lifting scythe and cradle. the days when man was slowly learning to use himself and his wife by using animal power—cattle, camels; horses; mules.

Progress In Housing

THE HOME TIME HOUSING has been one of Canada's foremost problems and in spite of efforts which have been made to solve it, it appears that there is no immediate prospect of an end to the present situation with such undeniably progress has been made. While the attention is most complained in the larger cities, there are few communities in Canada which have not felt the need for improved housing facilities during the past few years. In a recent report to parliament on this important subject, Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Reconstruction, said that in completing 300,000 houses since the end of the war, Canada had done as well as any other country in home construction during this difficult period. In 1945, he pointed out, more than 86,000 houses were built, while the figure for 1946 was 67,000 and for 1947 77,000. There were also 45,000 houses commenced, but not completed last year he said.

Many Vacant Farm Homes

Mr Howe told parliament that there is at present no bottleneck in building materials, but that there is a shortage of labor in some branches of construction work. While costs of materials were "levelling off", he said, labor costs are rising, making it difficult to determine whether there is any decrease in building costs. During the discussion of this subject in the House of Commons, it was suggested that some of the congestion in the larger centres was due to the fact that during the war many people moved from farms to work in industries, and as a result there are now a large number of vacant farm houses. A movement of population back to the land, would, it was suggested, to some extent alleviate the housing shortage in cities.

Problems Now Being Studied

There has been need, however, for attention to rural housing problems also, and an important step was announced in the Commons when the government announced that the standard of farm houses might well prove an important factor in encouraging people to leave the land to live in cities, to return to the land. In recent years it has been realized that too little attention has been paid to the housing problem in rural areas, and all possible research is being carried on in the universities and the Prairie Provinces in an effort to improve the standard of farm homes. The design of farm houses, insulation, heating, rural electrification, water supply and many other related problems are now being studied and some of these matters are important to all types of homes the results of this work may prove of benefit to the entire country. While there is little hope of an early solution to Canada's housing problems, it is encouraging to know that efforts are being made not only to build more homes, but to improve building standards, especially on the farms where the need for such improvement has long been evident.

Alberta Man National Barley Champion

REGINA – Alberta and Manitoba split the four major awards in the $25,000 national barley contest of 1947 Alberta winning first and second prizes, Manitoba third and fourth.

The national champion is 28-year-old James W Binney, who farms a section of land eight miles north of Andrew. His runner-up was A. J. Hardy, Legal Alta.

Last year's national champion, George G Ekas Hamlet, Man. won second prize and fourth place was taken by J F Bradley Portage la Prairie, well-known farmer of the Portage district.

R. thatcher-grown growers, handicapped by a bad season which made production of high grade barley practically impossible in some of the best barley growing areas of the province, did not place in the 1947 national competition. Jack A. Wylie, Norquay was the Saskatchewan champion in 1946 and placed fourth in the national competition, was champion of his province again in 1947, but his entry was not good enough to take second national prize.

The Harrassed Debtor

Harrassed debtor replies to bill in exasperation. This is an actual letter: (The names are fictitious)

Dear Sir:

In reply to your recent and many recent requests to send you a check, I wish to inform you that my present cluttered condition of my bank account makes it impossible for me to take your requests seriously.

My present financial condition is due to the fact of Dominion laws, provincial laws, city laws, my mother-in-law, sister-in-laws, brother-in-laws and others, all of which have been foisted on an unsuspecting public.

Through all these laws I am compelled to pay business tax, sales tax, amusement tax, gas tax, school tax, excise tax, income tax, auto tax, hydro tax, syntax, and educational tax.

In addition to these irritating taxes, I am forced by the strong arm of the law to get a permit for these things and a permit for that thing. I am required to get a business license, a city license, a provincial license, a auto license, a dog license, a trailer license, a radio license, a liquor license, not to mention a marriage license. I am also requested and required to contribute to every society and organization which the inventive genius of man is capable of bringing into life. To the society of St. Jean-Baptiste, the Woman's relief, the new Edsel relief the unemployed relief, and the gold-digger home, also every hospital and every charitable institution in the city, the Red cross, the black cross, the white cross, the green cross the flaming cross and double cross.

For my own safety I am required to carry life insurance, fidelity insurance, burglary insurance, property insurance, tent insurance, fire insurance, compensation insurance, accident and collision insurance and business insurance.

The government has now on governed my business that it is no easy matter for me to find out who owns it. I am expected, introspected, suspected, disrespected, examined, examined, informed, required, summoned, fined, commanded and compelled until all I know is that I am supposed to provide an inexhaustible supply of money for every known need, desire or hope of the human race and simply because I refuse to donate to each and every request that I get and go out and beg, borrow or steal money to give away, I am accused, discussed, boycotted, talked to, talked about, lied to, lied about, held up, held down, and robbed until I am nearly ruined. I can tell you honestly Mr. Johnson, that failing a miracle you won't be paid just now and the only reason I am making extra life is simply to see what in hell is coming next. Yours respectfully – J D.

Plan Rain-Making Tests This Summer

OTTAWA – Trade Minister Howe said in the Commons that aerial rain-making tests with dry ice will be started this Summer by the National Research Council.

The test will supplement laboratory experiments now being conducted by the Council, he said, replying to Max Campbell (SAL)F – Battleford).

Park Maarose (PC – London) in an apparent reference to flood conditions asked Mr Howe with a smile why the rain-making had to be concentrated on Western Ontario.

Prospectors Ready For Gold Rush

Mounted Police To Patrol New Camp in Yukon Territory

FORT ST JOHN – With mounted police prepared to make a spring patrol of the new gold camp on Pitch River, Yukon territory, it began to look like a stampede with aircraft playing an important part. Inspector H. H. Cronkhite said that the Pitch River was the toughest part of North America so far as climate is concerned and owing to its isolation navigating into the new boom area are taking a terrific chance.

Parties going in without good equipment and lots of supplies will be in great danger," the inspector said. Never before a prospector who has smung the first with Gilbert Labine to stake ground in the rudiom discovery area at Great Bear Lake left here by plane, bound for Pitch River.

Fairbanks, Alaska is the jumping-off point for a group of American prospectors using aircraft. They stalked on Firth River last summer and will carry on operations this spring. Prospectors are already gathering at Fairbanks, 1,000 miles from Pitch, dash by dog team to the scene of action. Boats are already chartered to push off after break-up in Herschel Island, in the Arctic Ocean. While Herschel as a base, it would be 50 miles up river to the gold area.

Parties are planning to reach the new camp from Fort Nelson on the Alaska highway by using rafts to follow the river system to tidewater on the Beaufort sea. Others will mush in with dogs over the Yukon trail which runs from Dawson City via Old Crow over the divide.

Wheat Board Has Large Surplus

OTTAWA – The Canadian Wheat Board has built up a surplus of $158,427,000, equivalent to about 37½ cents a bushel—on the wheat it has so far marketed during the five year crop pool, parliament was told.

Details of the operation of the five-year pool, which started August 1, 1945, were given in the board's annual report, tabled in the Commons by Trade Minister Howe.

The surplus was built up on the 376,396,000 bushels of wheat the board had bought under the scheme by July 31, 1947, for which it paid producers $736,762,758. Its sales and stocks on hand then amounted to $629,244,687, against which had to be charged its operating and administration costs and the cost of the 10 cents a bushel additional payment made on the 1944 crop.

The board had sold 539,683,718 bushels from the pool by last July.

PLAN HOSPITAL FOR AIRPORT AT EDMONTON

EDMONTON – To overcome shortages of hotel accommodation for air travelers, the city plans to establish a hostel at the municipal airport. It is negotiating with the federal Government, for use of a large, H-shaped R.C.A.F. barrack block, which could provide a large cafeteria, a lounge room, and 20 bedrooms.

The city hopes to buy the building, "if the price is right", Mayor H. D. Ainlay states. Otherwise, it will seek a lease-transfer agreement.

YELLOW FOR HUNTERS CAPS

TORONTO, Sask. — The Torkton board of the Fish and Game league drafted a resolution at the annual meeting requesting the provincial government to make legislation the official color for hunters' uniforms rather than red or white as at present. Members contended that yellow offers a greater measure of safety than any other color and can be distinguished by color blind persons.

MORE PENSIONERS

EDMONTON — More than 12,000 persons now are receiving old age pensions in Alberta. The list of pensioners now on the provincial Old Age Pension Act removed the section requiring proof of British nationality

Drag Levels Land Easily

WHEN land has been roughly levelled by ordinary means and it is still desired to produce a more even surface, none of the usual implements will do the job. There is times for the farmer or gardener to retire to his workshop and build himself a plank drag to serve as a hand float.

The accompanying drawing shows a plank drag of garden planker, which is very useful for smoothing uneven land for planting small seeds or lawns. This type of leveller is used very largely for preparing seed beds for horticultural crops. This drag should be made from planks 3 by 12 inches, but if these are not available planks a few inches narrower can be used. The angle is secured by bolting the front edge of all planks behind the first one on top of the rear edge of the plank ahead.

Correct angle of the front plank is secured by bolting it to the under sides of the runners bolted to the top of the drag to widen it. These runners should be shaped so as to nudge against the upper side of the planks.

Holes burned through the front plank serve nicely as anchors for ropes when hitching. These holes should be reinforced with steel plates. A chain hitch similar to that used on the drawbar of a harrow is suitable for this drag.

A drag such as this is very good for preparing a seedbed. When the land has been worked up to a fine seed bed, which would be considered ideal for ordinary farm crops, something more is needed before it is good enough for vegetable seed. The surface must be well leveled and the clods must be crushed so that fine soil only will come in contact with the small seeds. The planker is just the thing for these jobs.

Where the acreage to be smoothed each spring is considerable it pays to reinforce the projecting edges on the underside of the planker with angle iron

This diagram illustrates the construction of a land drag or garden planker; excellent for putting the finishing touches on a land levelling job or a garden seed bed.

Sunflower Industry Growing in Manitoba

The growing of sunflowers has become a million dollar industry in Manitoba. Because of better yields and higher oil content this year a group of 900 farmers in the southern section of the province who raised sunflowers in 1947 will split a gross return of $1,200,000. The provincial department of agriculture estimates the average yield at 800 pounds per acre on 25,000 acres of sowing, making a total yield of 20,000,000 pounds, at a price of six cents per pound.

"Advance" a new hybrid sunflower which was developed by the dominion experimental farm at Morden was sown for 98 per cent. of this year's crop.

Favorable fall weather is said to be the reason for the high oil content of the seeds this year. Sunflower oil is still in good demand by packing plants for shortening and salad oils, and for other purposes for confectionery and medicinal purposes.

Personal Stuff

By A. W. E.

When I hear people grumble and grouse about the cost of things they have to buy and complain about the low price they are forced to accept for the things they have to sell; and when I hear them shouting at the housetops about the rotten governments we have and the rotten way in which they conduct the daily affairs of our country; and especially when I hear people say that life would be worth living almost be as acceptable as the one which we enjoy here, it raises the hair on my head (what little I have) and my anger becomes such that I have considerable difficulty in maintaining a civil tongue.

It would be unjust on my part to maintain that all is perfectly in order and desirable here in Canada. Such a statement would be easily discounted by all of us who know everything we cherish, the great opportunity to forge ahead by their own individual efforts and the right to say who shall govern and who shall not.

Today we hear a great deal of talk about Communism and the very great threat to democracy which it has become. True it is that on the surface such a threat does appear to be raising its ugly head, but the under that surface is the ever present undisputable fact that the good people of Canada have never seen fit to endorse any such radical political parties as the Communist or anything closely resembling such.

I venture to say that during my time and yours, these people will continue to ignore the political aspirations of the groups of the C. P. P. and Communists. So from the political point of view it seems to me that we are safe. Some people that in order to make this fact absolute certainty we should outlaw such groups and thereby make it impossible for them to function. I do not agree with such a theory for by so doing we step in the same practice as those whom we abhore. The best theory is to let them carry on in accordance with the laws of the land and so educate the people that the things such groups stand for will become abhorrent.

The talk that life would almost be as desirable under Stalin as under the Government which we have here in Canada is to be likened almost to the prattle of an eight year old kid. Perhaps the source of most of this kind of talk comes from the farmer, arena of Canada where burdens are more numerous from a buying and selling point of view. But take a look at things from a realistic point of view and you will discover that perhaps in no place in the world are the farmers in a more favorable state (possible exception, U.S.A.). Now take a look at Russia where you do not own your farm and where you grow what you are told to grow for the State. You farm on a communal basis with no hope of ever calling your land your own and with no hope of ever reaching that state of independence to which you and I as Canada aspire and many reach. Let me give you an example or two of what is required of the individual in order to obtain some of the most necessary things of life: In Russia, which is one of the richest countries in the world, it takes a man a month to earn enough money to buy a pair of boots. In Canada it takes but 8 minutes; in Russia a quart of milk equals 45 minutes of toil—in Canada 12. These are just two examples of earning capacity of working peoples. Now, take Russia for another example. First let me ask you a question. Do you suppose that in Russia you could stand up in public and openly criticize Stalin and all that he now stands for? You could. But what is to become of you? The very fact that you can criticize condemns in the mind of your state is prompt enough that you do enjoy freedom. You may now do I know these things are not in Russia? Well frankly I have never lived there nor have I any desire to. My information comes from reliable what has been written by men and women who have seen these things, and I have found that all that we now believe is something. It was not nothing to believe or cling to this life would surely be soon. The only possible way is to sift through it all, picking here and there the things which seem reasonable and true to you.

I read an article the other day in which it was said that Communists in Canada had been instructed to go as far as to join Churches in order to get in their sinister work. Now mark that well. They have been instructed to GO SO FAR as to join a church. It is apparent that such a step is distasteful to them the same as it would cause as much to help the cause. We in Canada, or at least a goodly per-centage of us, find Churches and attend services as a matter of part of our national life. We go to our churches as part of our program to make of our lives the best that we can, not to plot to ruin and destroy. Canada is high on the reward as a nation of church goers; Russia is low down on the list for on the Communist element is concerned. Do you believe that such a Godless people can take over things here?

There is only one place where Communism can prosper—Russia—and that is where you have a people who are sadly discriminated. It is foregone conclusion that discontent will breed isms of all kinds. The solution then seems to be to create a perfectly contented people. This will never be done and the only alternative is to keep them as much contented as possible. In this way Communism will be short lived.

Though things are not ideal over here in Canada, the country which is envisioned by thousands of those unfortunate Europeans as the modern Garden of Eden, they are far ahead above conditions existing in many lands across the ocean, on when you get into your all too present state of mind, reflect on those things which you have and enjoy and which are denied others. Count your blessings one by one and your trials and tribulations will sink into the abyss of forgetfulness.

My information comes from reliable what has been written by men and women who have seen these things, and I have found that all that we now believe is something. It was not nothing to believe or cling to this life would surely be soon. The only possible way is to sift through it all, picking here and there the things which seem reasonable and true to you.

I read an article the other day in which it was said that Communists in Canada had been instructed to go as far as to join Churches in order to get in their sinister work. Now mark that well. They have been instructed to GO SO FAR as to join a church. It is apparent that such a step is distasteful to them the same as it would cause as much to help the cause. We in Canada, or at least a goodly per-centage of us, find Churches and attend services as a matter of part of our national life. We go to our churches as part of our program to make of our lives the best that we can, not to plot to ruin and destroy. Canada is high on the reward as a nation of church goers; Russia is low down on the list for on the Communist element is concerned. Do you believe that such a Godless people can take over things here?

There is only one place where Communism can prosper—Russia—and that is where you have a people

It costs you more to live these days.

And it costs your bank more to provide efficient banking service.

Bank staffs are more than half as large again as before the war; payrolls have nearly doubled. Taxes are up. So is the cost of everything banks buy.

Yet you pay no more for banking service than you did ten years ago. Today 7,000,000 Canadians are bank customers—striking evidence of the ever-widening usefulness of competitive banking in our national life.

In most families everyone has certain responsibilities—tasks of which they are capable and which they are expected to attend to as a matter of course. Being given such duties is a sort of badge of belonging; that's not awarded to visitors and guests.

He keeps the washing machine humming for the weekly wash . . . turns the suction fan in the vacuum cleaner when the rug needs cleaning . . . keeps the refrigerator cold so that food will not be wasted . . . quickly heats the electric range at meal time . . . in fact he is busy at dozens of things all day long. # THE FARM ACCOUNT BOOK AND INCOME TAX GUIDE SAVES FARMERS TIME, TROUBLE AND MONEY

SAVES YOU TIME—You will find that a few minutes a week keeps your Farm Account Book up-to-date. The first 15 pages of your Farm Account Book tell a straight story about what is required from farmers. Your problems are dealt with in question and answer form and an index refers you quickly to the section you want. The pages and columns for accounts are numbered to correspond with the items on the Income Tax Return form itself. You can make an accurate record of all farm dealings as you go along.

If You Haven't Received Your Copy, Get It Now— FREE AT YOUR POST OFFICE

SAVES MONEY BY SHOWING YOU HOW—Every farmer legally is entitled to deductions for a wide variety of expenses. Your Farm Account Book has 12 pages devoted to columns for these. You are reminded of items which otherwise you might forget. Depreciation, a big factor, is covered on 75 named articles in common farm use.

You are shown how to establish claims for a Basic Herd and make a Three-Year-Average of your returns. This latter gives you the advantage of the lowest possible tax and it may be dated back to 1946. These are direct money-saving advantages entirely to your benefit.

THE THREE YEAR AVERAGE

You can't lose if you take advantage of this. Two things are necessary to average your income for the fiscal year (ending December 31, 1948. First your 1947 return MUST BE FILED ON TIME—that is, by April 30, 1948. Then when you file your 1948 return in 1949 you may make application to average your income for 1946-1947-1948. This averaging of income continues yearly so that in each year you are taxed only on the average of each three year period.

REMEMBER — HALF CULTIVATED LAND YIELDS A POOR CROP—HALF KEPT ACCOUNTS GIVE POOR RESULTS TOO

Last year Canadian farmers—and there are nearly a million of them—produced over $2,000,000,000 in farm produce of all kinds. No other single industry approaches agriculture in volume of production. And as in every other business—even the smallest—every farmer must file an account of his transactions with the Department of National Revenue to qualify for the many tax exemptions which are allowed.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

What Do You Think?

By ALAN TAYLOR

WAS it love or a matter of business? I've made up my mind but you'll have to make up your own.

Let's start with this thing called love. To hear the young folks talk you'd think it was something invented special for them. Well, if they're thinking about spooning in a parked car or holding hands on the sofa maybe it is. But that isn't the kind of love I have in mind.

The kind I'm thinking of reaches way down inside. It's deep and powerful like a pool covered with lily pads.

That's the kind the sentimentalists say came to Bill Hendricks after he settled in our town to open a bakery store. On the other hand the more material minded said it was just a smart decker on Bill's part and love had nothing to do with it. This kind would look shy as if they knew everything about everything. That kind gets chap is pretty smart," they'd say.

Like I said, after you hear what happened you can make up your own mind. And after you do I think I'll know more about you than I do now.

It started when Bill found nobody in the town here After he'd given up them to the "Orphan's Home" for two weeks he began to think something queer was going on. He couldn't see it was nothing wrong with his pies because he used the best ingredients and prided himself on knowing how to put them together. His cakes and buns sold like all get out to add to the mystery. Even the competition. Fanny was sure they were delicious but didn't let on to her husband Sam. his head and adopted different tactics. His mind, Mrs. Graham, what is he's wrong with my pies?"

"I'm sure there's nothing wrong."

"Then why don't folks buy them," exploded Bill.

Fanny smiled in a pitying way. "Why, most likely it's you Hannah."

After Fanny had gone Bill pitched Ed Peary at the Eagle. When he quit listening to Ed he knew as much about Hannah as anybody in town.

He knew she ended pans in her kitchen and toted them on a little red wagon that Mack Jamieson, the blacksmith, had built special. "Yep," Ed had said, "I remember when she came from Ireland. Worked for the Fairchilds before they moved to the city then she kept house for Judge Benton till he died and left her the cottage on Maple Street. Took to baking pies and mothering all the boys in town. No, never did marry. Had plenty of offers though. Said she didn't have none of us in a marrying way, but I suspect she was too busy looking after other folk to find the time."

But my aweake longer than usual that night. A bachelor and turned fifty he wasn't a grasping man but figured he was entitled to a share of the pie trade That's why he put a sign in the window next day announcing a price cut. Then he sat back and waited. Next day the sign said "Half Price". His sat and waited some more but when he looked up he was desperate. Desperate enough to phone Fanny and ask her right out why she bought Hannah's pies instead of his. He detected a chuckle in Fanny's voice.

"Well, it's kind of hard to explain to a man," she said.

"Try," pleaded Bill.

"When Hannah calls around on women pay for more than just a pie. We get a piece of gossiping, too."

Bill's bushy brows shot up. "Gossip?"

"Yes, she leaves some of it everyplace she goes." Then, as though it were an afterthought, "Besides there's always time for a little gossip."

Bill quit baking pies and spent the time thinking hard on what Fanny had said.

When Hannah showed Bill into the parlour he took an immediate dislike to his own room. The Dresden and Wedgwood started it off. The wingchair and glowing coals finished it. Looking into twinkling blue eyes he knew he shouldn't have come. Nevertheless, after clearing his throat he moved to the attack. He pointed out how tiring it must be having to pull a wagon all over town and wouldn't it be much easier if she sold to him wholesale.

Hannah smiled and Bill had a premonition of defeat. "If I thought you doing it, it can't rightly be called work, can it now."

Bill could only clear his throat. "I love to bake," Hannah went on, "and as for pulling the wagon, now and that's just visiting and what woman doesn't like that?"

Bill coughed. Things weren't going right.

"I'm lucky," Hannah said, "Most women don't get time for visiting."

Bill knew when to let go. He regunted once or twice then got up to go but somehow he got his hours and several pieces of pie before he got around to saying goodnight.

After that, Bill became a frequent visitor to the little parlor and folks wondered. But by several beauty checks in seen with daffodils from the first shipment.

Fanny said it was the beauty of the curve Brahman Phaseof over a man walking along the track, his back to the train.

The brakeman signalled the engineer to make an emergency stop. The train ground to a halt.

But the man, his back to the train, kept walking.

The brakeman clambed from the engine, walked after the man and attracted his attention by tapping him on the shoulder.

The walker, John Kline, Eatonia district farmer, stepped from the right-of-way.

The train started again and as Brahman Phaseof climbed back into to the cab the crew considered how fortunate it had been that the brakeman had signalled the engineer to stop rather than blow a warning blast with the whistle.

Mr. Kline, the crew found, was deaf, had been unaware of danger until the brakeman had tapped him on the shoulder.

OIL WELL BLOWS IN AT PINCHER CREEK

CALGARY. — The Gulf Oil Company's Pincher Creek No. 1 well blew in again and produced slightly more than 12 barrels of 34 gravity oil hourly through a three-quarter-inch choke.

It is reported here that the accompanying natural gas flow was between 10 and 12 million cubic feet a day.

Many oil men in western Canada think that any successful opening of a well in this Pincher Creek area may mean that Jones, Westminster district engineer for B.C Public works, ministers of the four provinces are honorary officers to figure the "dope" on the breaking

"Iceologists" Of The North Busy Guessing Dawson Ice Breakup

DAWSON, Y.T.—With signs of spring in the air here in the northland, hundreds of Yukoners are looking to the big Dawson ice guessing contest to be decided by the breakup of the Yukon River ice six or seven weeks hence. Due to failure of the electrical timing device last May, last year's pool amounting to close to $4 000 was held over and will be decided on this year's breakup.

Consequently if the winner of this season's pot" should also hold a similar number on last season's ticket, he or she will be richer by almost double the original amount.

While final figures will not be available for some time yet, this year's pool, it is estimated, will run between $3,000 and $4,000.

Residents of the north are having a hard time this spring trying to guess to the second mid-weather of the year.

Exchange Of Ideas

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE INTERCHANGE of ideas between countries has long been recognized as one means of breaking down racial and religious prejudices and laying a foundation for enduring peace. Within the British Empire there has, in the past, been considerable encouragement given to the exchange of teachers between schools in different parts of the Empire, and also to the exchange of pupils, that they might learn at first hand the problems of countries other than their own. During the war, schools of this kind were of necessity curtailed, but interest has again been shown and there has already been a revival of farmers' practices in this branch of education. In Britain plans are at present under way to establish as many as possible, a body officially designated to concern itself with the planned visits and exchanges.

* * * * *

Will Arrange For Exchanges

The proposed body will be called the Central Bureau for Educational Visits and Exchanges and its chief function will be to keep in touch with the activities of the many agencies in Britain and other countries concerned with the matters and to assist them in any way possible to make necessary arrangements for schemes connected with such exchanges. In the past many organizations have been dealing with educational visits, including individual schools and colleges, the Ministry of Education and other educational bodies, but there has been no central organization for this work. The new bureau will arrange for exchanges not only within the Empire but with any interested countries. At present, restrictions on the taking of British currency out of the country will somewhat hamper activities in regard to educational exchanges but there is still much that can be accomplished by such a body, now, and in the future.

Bring Fresh Points Of View

The practice of Canadian teachers exchanging with teachers from various parts of the United Kingdom has long been familiar in our schools, and it has been without doubt, most successful. Such teachers bring to their classrooms fresh viewpoints, and at the same time gain from the experience of travel and of teaching for a year under an educational system other than that to which they are accustomed. Both parties benefit similarly when they are privileged to visit other schools on exchange. It is to be hoped that, with the leadership and advice of the newly formed organization, exchange schemes in educational fields will progress and that Canada will be among the countries to benefit from this work. In dealing with the complex problems of our times, tolerance and an understanding of ways of life other than our own are of the greatest importance.

Australia Forbids Jap War Brides

CANBERRA, Australia — No Australian soldier soldier or civilian who marries a Japanese woman will be allowed to bring her to Australia, the government has ruled.

The federal minister for immigration A. A. Calwell, said "If an Australian soldier wants to live with the Japanese wife he could do so in Japan."

He said no obstacles will be placed on his way of getting passport facilities to leave Australia.

No Australian woman whose son or husband is buried in New Guinea or other Pacific battlefields will also have her feelings outraged by any Australian who would marry a Japanese woman before her eyes. Unwell said.

TALKING

Talking is like playing on the harp, there is as much in laying the hands on the strings to stop the vibration as in sweeping them to bring out their music.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

A constant governance of our speech, according to duty and reason, is a high instance and a special argument of a thoroughly sincere and solid goodness.—Saint Bernard.

Not only to say the right thing in the right place, but far more difficult still, to leave unsaid the wrong thing at the tempting moment.—George Augustus Sala

A great amount of time is consumed in talking nothing, doing nothing and indecision at to what one should do.—Mary Baker Eddy.

He that thinks he can never speak enough, may easily speak too much.—Quarles.

Talk often, but never long in that case if you do not please, at least you are sure not to live your hearers.—Lord Chesterfield.

Plan To Spend Huge Sum On Breeding Land

Prairie Provinces To Benefit In Improvement Scheme Conducted By Ducks Unlimited

WASHINGTON—Trustees of Ducks Unlimited, Inc., has appropriated $225,000 for conservation of wild duck breeding grounds in Western Canada this summer.

Morton W. Smith, president of the sportsmen's organization, said it was the largest such appropriation in the club's 11-year history. The appropriation for 1946 was $200,000.

Smith, a Minneapolis grain broker, said Ducks Unlimited complements in Canada the wild-life management and conservation efforts in the United States of the Fish and Wildlife Service.

The organization has completed about a third of its long-range program to improve 3,000,000 acres of Canadian nesting grounds, he said.

For Prairie Provinces

The field work this summer will be in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, summer home for most of the wild ducks that migrate across the United States.

All its annual trustees dinner, interior secretary Julius Krug told the organization's mid-winter survey shows that the decline of recent years in waterfowl population has been halted.

We can do everything in our power to improve the annual inundation of waterfowl population of the wintering grounds, as well as the nesting conditions of the summer breeding grounds" Krug said.

"Our technique is not perfect but I think it is fair to say that we have more accurate information on which to base regulations today than we have ever had before.

"We had the information made available by Canada's game experts and those of Ducks Unlimited and other private organizations."

Canada Enjoys Record Boom, Says Abbott

Gross National Production Increased From 11 Billion In 1945 To Over 13 Billion Last Year

NEW YORK — Canada is enjoying a boom of unprecedented proportions even if the people do not seem to be aware of it Finance Minister Abbott said here.

Public uneasiness of the boom and the high cost of living is the only way in which the usual barometer the stock market, has been acting.

Our gross national production has increased from $11,600,000,000 in 1945 to over $13,000,000,000 last year," he said in describing the proportions of the boom In 1926 it was $5,100,000,000."

"Activity of this degree of intensity naturally exerts a severe strain on our economy and on our cost and price structure" the minister said in an address prepared for delivery to the Academy of Political Science.

Discussing taxation and inflation Mr Abbott said that I shall be reporting to Parliament in a budget speech a few weeks hence another surplus of such a magnitude as to bring a glow to the heart of any Canadian minister of finance. He says no hint whether he would seek a similar surplus through tax cuts in the budget

He questioned whether higher interest rates would lead to a less inflationary situation.

Farmers' Income In 1947 Reached A Record High

OTTAWA During 1947 Canadian farmers' cash income reached a record high of $1,301,000,000 This is about 14 per cent. higher than in 1946, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

Prices for things the farmer has to buy, however, were also rising. The price index of commodities and services used by farmers including farm living costs) advanced almost 10 per cent. during 1947 On January 1, 1946, the index was 168.5 on a base of 1935-39 equals 100

Farmers in Alberta received the sharpest increase—over 20 per cent. —but they were closely followed by farmers in Quebec and Ontario with increases of 17 and 16 per cent respectively.

All other provinces showed gains ranging from about 10 per cent to 13 per cent, except for Nova Scotia where farm income was slightly lower than in 1946

Cash income from the sale of farm products in the nine provinces were as follows: Alberta $285,000,000 in 1946 as against $351,000,000 in 1947, Manitoba, $171,000,000 in 1946 as compared with $186,000,000 in 1947, Saskatchewan, $300,000,000 in 1946 as compared with $413,000,000 in 1947

In British Columbia farm income jumped from $39,000,000 in 1946 to $65,000,000 in 1947

In Ontario cash income from sale of farm products jumped from $173,000,000 in 1946 to $196,000,000 in 1947.

"Although the output of some farm products in 1947 was higher than ever before, the increase in value was relatively less than in other lines of business. The gain in cash farm income can be attributed in higher prices, an increase in payment on wheat participation certificates and a small reduction in farm inventories.

Only 4,311 workers worked in Nebraska industrial plants in the 1946-47 fiscal year, compared with the record of 26,745 in 1943-44

TITLES FOR HER—Teamed again with Robert Taylor, Elizabeth Taylor, with whom she finished third in the point race at the Olympics, pretty Brunette Mercer figured in two championships at the Canadian tournament in Calgary, the senior pairs and the junior. ## DO NOT FAVOR DUCK HUNTING BY FLYWAYS

WASHINGTON Duck hunters received notice that the United States Government will move slowly on any proposal to regulate shooting by flyways rather than by zones.

Fall hunting seasons now are established annually in well-defined zones throughout the United States. Many proposals have been laid before revisionists along flyways—the regular south-bound migratory routes —would be more fair.

But Interior Secretary Krug told Ducks Unlimited, famous sportsmen's organization, that the flyway plan is "such a new concept we must go a little slow in applying it."

TAXATION AND SUBSIDIES

A good deal of discussion is taking place throughout Canada about the amount of taxation prairie farmers are paying or, are alleged by some persons, not to be paying. As labelling citizens, of which our prairie farmers are good examples, naturally expect to pay their proper amount of taxation. These, however, who seem to think that prairie farmers are not making their proper contributions might be reminded that our prairie farmers indirectly are paying more taxes by far than any other group of people in Canada. It is, of course, general knowledge that our prairie farmers are supplying wheat and coarse grains and an indirectly large and increasing products to the people of Britain and to the people of Canada at prices which are far below proper market prices.

These subsidies in effect are a severe tax on farmers. I calculate that the total cost of these subsidies to prairie farmers comes to a sum somewhat greater than all the taxes paid by all the people of Canada together for the year 1939. Surely this is a remarkable contribution by our prairie farmers to a cause which otherwise would have to be borne by all the people and tax payers of Canada. — H.G.L. Strange.

First Atomic Hen Lays First Atomic Egg

Professor J. B. O'NEIL of the poultry department, University of Saskatchewan, demonstrates the Geiger ... ray, which measures the amount of radioactive phosphorus in eggs laid by the "atomic hens". It is the ... those at right receive radio-active phosphorus in their mash. Laboratory workers are able to trace the movement ... of phosphorus in the body by means of the Geiger counter, and exact phosphorus requirements of the individual bird may be determined.

By T. R. MELVILLE-NESS
Central Press Canadian

REGINA, Sask. — Dr. James S. Thomas, president of the University of Saskatchewan, as well feeding when freshly laid eggs and, experiments in Saskatchewan that the ... atomic egg had been laid by the first chicken hen. It happened at the University of Saskatchewan where there is an experiment under way now at the University, in which laying hens are being given radio-active phosphorus in their feed. Scientists are cautious people, but even they admit that this use of radioactive tracers in feeding tests, may prove to be one of the most important developments of the century as a nutritional agent.

Already Dr. J. W. T. Spinks has become internationally famous as the man who gave the first chicken hen in the world radio-active tracers in their phosphorus bones. This in itself is a great deal to talk about as any visitor passing within a few ... expects for it is believed to be the first application of atomic energy to the study of plant nutrition. But now Dr. Spinks and Professor J. H. Ferguson of the poultry department are conducting an experiment of lasting ... importance in the use of atomic energy in poultry research.

This is how the experiment is being ... Radioactive phosphorus is fed to hens in their laying mash. Then the hen and the egg is investigated by using an instrument called the Geiger counter. This is a gadget ... at the mysterious corruption developed by ... a student in the ... and measures the amounts of radioactive substances present. If the egg is up for examination it is placed on a small tray within range of a rod. If the hen that laid the egg has eaten a ration of atomic mash the dial before a series of lights begin to blink rapidly on the panel of the machine. The lights convey a message to the experimenter operator, as there is a ticker arrangement which is quite audible several feet away from the machine. To an audience of laymen who saw a demonstration in Saskatoon recently the lights and the ticker indicated only that there was in the egg certain ... which within Dr. Geiger But Professor Ferguson and Dr. Spinks who staged this demonstration were able to read the message of the lights and the ticker—and tell how much phosphorus was in the egg.

Initial Stage

The key to explaining that experiment on the fact that phosphorus ... is one of the ... energy, ... phosphorus ... through all its functions, whether in a wheat plant or in the body of a chicken.

Included in the knowledge gained by experts was the fact that phosphorus in the hen's feed shows up in the shell of the egg in 24 hours, but not ... white and yolk for a period of several days to the ... of the yolk. In the chicken shell phosphorus appeared in the leg bones in 12 hours after feeding.

Due to the Best Laboratories ... of radiation that explain ... how ... be able ... to measure ... the ... of phosphorus used by a chicken in its various body functions. By properties the ... it is ... further they will discover ... what ... but the need for phosphorus varies ... from ... to ... hen to hen ... from breed to breed, or possibly from ... to ... season. But the important ... Dr. Spinks ... consider in this experiment, is that this line of research definitely will ... stop a phosphorus ... Dr. Spinks says that practically all the elements ... in ... feed poisons can be made ... radio-active, and the same research ... can be applied to all of them.

The poultry experiments now being established are still in their initial stage, and it will be a long time before scientists can ... safe feeding instructions. But ... per ... knowledge ... that ... can ... radiation ... in ... poultry ... feed ... is ... necessary ... rather than ... a ... of ... feed ... and ... that ... a way ... which ... deficiencies ... can be avoided ... as never ... # Community Society Dance At Lougheed On Friday, May 7th

PLANS BEING MADE FOR MAY 24TH SPORTS

As far back as the present youngsters generation can remember, "May 24th at Lougheed" has been the big opening gun of the sporting activities of the year, and 1948 promises to embrace the record already set in past years.

At a meeting held on Tuesday of this week, the Sports Day Executive met to iron out details for the big day, which this year falls on a Monday. The Community Press has been informed that among the various attractions to be presented at this year's Sports Day, will be daily aerial favorites as senior and junior baseball, men's and ladies' softball, races for the kiddies, public address system, hot dog booths and games to test the skill of all.

During the afternoon there will be a picture show entitled "The Outlaw", a daring and action filled picture of the old west.

Then in the evening the gaety of the day will be prolonged with a grand dance in the Memorial Hall.

The committee is working on the prospect of obtaining new attractions to be added to the list, which we will have more to say later, so make your plans now to "meet your friends at Lougheed on May 24th."

BEE LORE

In so far as Bee diseases are concerned, this district has a clean sheet; yet there is always a danger of here and weed bee supplies being brought in from other districts where American Foul Brood or Disease has occurred. The Bee Diseases Act is designed for the protection of our beekeepers and the Apiculture branch of the Dept. of Agriculture at Edmonton is at your service. Anyone suspecting the presence of disease in any hive must report these suspicions to the Dept. of Agriculture and action may be made.

All Beekeepers must register with the Dept. There are penalties for contravening the provisions or carry out the provisions of the Act. The inspection service is free.

In respect to the use of 2-4D, the only concern our beekeepers need have would be in so far as it was applied to the crops on which bees are pollinating bee pasture. It does not directly affect the bees, says W. G. C. Maisey, Provincial Apiarist.

Any observations members of our Assn. make with regard to the effect of 2-4D on bee pastures would be appreciated by the executive of the Sedgewick District Beekeepers Association, A. H. Bawtree, Pres. W. J. Wright, Secretary.

'WHERE'S MY MONEY' PLAYS TO FULL HOUSES

Under the directorship of Mr. C. Morris, instructor of fine arts, the Dramatic Class of Central High presented their three-part comedy entitled "Where's My Money," last week to appreciative and capacity audiences at Killam and at Sedgewick. As the plot unfolded reward the climax of this mirth-prompting comedy, the audience shook with genuine laughter at the precarious positions in which the various play ers found themselves as suitcases after suitcases was unfolded before their eyes.

To pick out a star in the cast would be difficult, as the entire troupe performed with a degree of professionalism which was perhaps entirely unexpected. This verse to theodore rubber hesitant to stat ing that the Misses Rosemary Cunnon of Lougheed and Patsy Randall of Sedgewick, with leading roles were outstanding in theatrical ability. The entire cast showed the superb time and effort had been put into the play, and Mrs. Morris the director are to be congratulated on the fine performance.

An amusing sidelight of the play, was the appearance of Mrs. Jack Thompson, who, as the young coloured was forever saying, "I'm Hongry, and proving the statement by consuming everything eatable in the family cupboard. We would say that young Sandy should be ashamed of himself for his actions, but we didn't register the soothing help of a brome-calmer, she was in such a state of frustration that she just didn't care.

MOTHER'S DAY SUNDAY, MAY 9TH, 1948

So swiftly move departing years. But they remember—when in tears We come to them as babe and boy Then turn our sorrow into joy.
They feed our needs and give us of Heeding to our beck and call. They never pause to count the cost And always feel that day is lost When to our lives they cannot bring, Some bountiful and lasting thing. They want no praise — of losers none other Than "You're My Child and I'm your Mother."
No prejudice of race or nation Unselfish love is their creation.

D. A. COMMENTS

(By W. A. Mosey — Dist. Ad.)

Dr Billig, local veterinary, advises me that he is called upon to examine cases of Mastitis in milk cows. He finds in several instances that the Mastitis is caused due to freezing of udders. This starts to Gangrene and complications set in

The adult committee of the Camrose Shorthorn Jr Breeding Club made a trip to Calgary and purchased five very fine Shorthorn heifers from Mr Wm. Allen at Lyalta. The committee also optioned two heifers from Mr A. Emsley, Didsbury. This committee consisted of D. C. Fraser, A. G Wilson, E. H. Church, W. Ellis and W. A. Mosey.

Mr Allen led a very good discussion of fertilizer for pasture plots He says that year he fertilized a portion of the pasture field with 11-48 fertilizer. He points out that cattle have the ability to detect fertilized pasture and will graze there constantly in preference to pasture that is not fertilized. Mr G. Simms of Ryley follows the same practice Mr Lyons told me that he had some breeding difficulties year in and year out He attributes the success to the extra phosphate in the soil he uses.

Mr A. G Wilson, Duhamel tells me that he uses the fertilizer after he has seen the drill in broadcast grasses and legume seeds To do this he removes the spouts of the attachment from the shoe runs, and in this way the seed is broadcast on the surface and is covered by the chains behind the drill.

We have received the 1948 census figures for the M. D. of Camrose and I note the total acreage of cultivated land is 16,824 acres. 3 cities under that head have a total of 6,580. as well as 12,000 horses. I suppose that the horse population is down by most of the present time but there would be about 15,000 cattle and horses in the Municipal District of Camrose. Therefore there should be about 50,000 acres of pasture and hay meadows, so we are short about 10,000 acres to make it 1 to 1 and fully aware that we are dependent on sloughs for the supply of fodder and water supply is not good while enough to maintain over 50,000 head of cattle without rain. There is more land should be sown to grasses and legumes

Can Cerenan be used on damp grain for seed? NO! Unless sown immediately This refers to dust treatment. Liquid Cerenan can be used on damp grain and stored for a week or so.

National Wild Life Week The recent observing of the Canadian National Wild Life Week, with its motto of conservation of Canadian wild life, should have a very significant value to us of the Prairies, as the Western Canadian prairies has been the haven of hunters for many years, and special care should be taken that we do not destroy the beauties that we have been so favored with. In an article "Jack Miner's Philosophy" written by Margaret Wade-Deacon, Jack Miner's philosophy is that "Nature can be directed quietly to trouble spots to direct rainfall, light and heat and water, the departments through a central, behind sheltered station."

May Explore For Oil And Gas In Western Manitoba

WINNIPEG.—Unconfirmed reports say that as much as two million dollars may be spent this summer in southwestern Manitoba on oil and gas exploration

The reports are rife in Regina, which is sixty miles southwest of Brandon.

The work may be undertaken by a large oil exploration company which has interests in the United States.

The area in the survey would be part of the known river basin.

A New Orleans man, O. E. Kinsley thinks that natural gas may be found in commercial quantities in this area. Anyway, he plans to dig some exploratory wells.

Last summer Standard Oil of California spent about $500,000 in the district. And it may return again to test out their theory.

There may be fortunes ahead for the land owners in the district. Most of the owners have little to sub-surface rights.

Oil Production May Equal 1942 Boom Record

CALGARY—Alberta oil production is climbing back toward boom records set in 1942 when Turner Valley was in its heyday. Production then at one time reached 30,000 barrels a day. Production in January, 1948, was up almost one third over the 1942 figure. It stood at 21,500 barrels daily and was climbing fast.

Figures released by the Alberta Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board reveal that in January, 1948, Turner Valley production was 15,046 barrels.

Alberta still hung on to its position as Canada's No. 1 oil producer in January it turned out 667,417 barrels of oil compared with 73,753 barrels produced by Saskatchewan. Small amounts were produced in Ontario and New Brunswick.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. E.—

I received this week from the office of Mr. W. A. Mosley, a report of the survey which he conducted to ascertain just what thought farmers are giving to their farm problems. Perusing this report of no small importance to farm people, I reproduce the report below:

WHAT THE FARM PEOPLE THINK!

For the purpose Mr. Mosley prepared a suitable questionnaire and farmers were asked to give answer to the questions.

Given below is the result with shows which problems are the most important in its more and in which they are giving most thought:

1st place: How to Control Wild Oats — 153 votes.
2nd place: How to Make Soil Uet More — 134 votes.
3rd place: Easier Hay Making — 122 votes.
4th place: Farm Water Pressure Systems — 121 votes.
5th place: How To Clean Seed Thoroughly — 118 votes.
6th place: Rural Electrification — 112 votes.
7th place: Weed Control — 111 votes.
8th place: Forage Crops For Pasture and Hay — 106 votes.
9th place: Balanced Farming — 105 votes.
10th place — Feeding Cattle
11th place — Supplements and Minerals for Cattle, Hogs
12th place: Co-operative Control of Insect Pests — How to Use in Dairying.
13th place — Co-operation Among Members of Families.
14th place — Insect Pests.
15th place — Usefulness of Perennial Weeds.
16th place — Suitable Varieties of Cereal Grains.
17th place — Suitable Varieties of Forage Crops.

Other problems were: Mastitis in Dairy Cows; Purebred Herds; Cereal Weeds; Planning Barnyard; Mixed Grain; Purebred Cattle; Machinery Repairs; Schools; Dairy Cattle Improvement Clubs; Community Schools for Farm Boys.

WHAT DO WE FIND!

In the top part we are subjects to dealing with cropping practices one with pressure water; one with fertilization; and one thing of them all namely; balanced farming.

Four years ago [Mr. Mosley] conducted a similar survey. At that time the leading problems were weed control; livestock disease and livestock problems. The present survey shows a swing of interest to growing crops.

To supplement the list of given items, "Free" answer questions were given.

Question One—"In your judgement what are the most important problems confronting farm families. As expected, the answers to this question covered very many topics. By grouping these answers we find that one-third of the families problem for better living. They are definitely concerned about it. Here are some of the comments: Lack of markets; fertilizer; pressure of the system; rural electrification; fair labeling; poor housing; poor quality of goods.

The second group dealt with the classified as facilities, as roads, schools, recreation; health; value hired help; high cost of equipment.

The third group dealt with the subject of too high prices of things purchased.

The fourth group most need no sufficient income.

The fifth small group, singled out some. A few farmers mentioned terms of several interest, one said soil erosion and balanced farming.

The second free-answer question was: "Name the factors that limit the farm income." Here are the answers grouped:

1. Farm Management.
2. Drought
3. Cost of Repairs
4. Taxes
5. Prices
6. Hail, Weeds, Help Problems
7. Cheese Farm Layouts.
8. Low Yields

These comments were made that boys and girls leave farms for the cities. The question is, can farmers industry provide living for all boys and girls who grow up in the farm homes? I am not so sure of that.

One farmer says: "Too many farms in the fire to do each one efficiently." It appears to us that this comment has a great deal of merit. Another commentator says "Inefficiency of most farm buildings and layouts." In this field we have son made as much progress as need ed. Streamlining the production units, made much easier the production units I mean, eg. — chemical dairy units, poultry units, and other applications. The mixed orchard unit; pasture and hog unit etc. Here is one comment that has to do with applications: "I think a lot of farmers have more land than they have help to handle properly." says one chap. Examining the 1946 census figures, I note that this M D. has over 900,000 acres of land (over 500,000 acres are cultivated With exception of woodlots, most livated land is too expensive to own on account of taxes. How to conserve economically the uncultivated land into pasture and hay meadows, is a needed development.

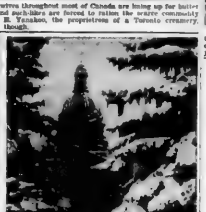
CANADA'S WILDLIFE—At this time of the year Western Canadian forests and streams are beginning to teem with birds, beasts and fish, and the recent "National Wildlife Week" observed was pleased to conserve the wildlife, which help to beautify and make our land attractive. The Fawn, the Canadian Goose, and the Canadian Raccoon, are a part of Canada's teeming wildlife.

INJURED STUDENT GETS $100 FROM CHUMS — The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Ogilvie, York township, Ont., was a hive of activity as friends of their son, James, 17, gathered to welcome him home from hospital following a motor accident in his home, the student was confined to hospital for 10 weeks with a broken neck. Proudly showing the cheque for $500 donated by fellow students, he said his friends' efforts "helped considerably while I was in hospital. The cheque also will help considerably in paying expenses," he added. The students raised the money by holding concerts and dances. James is shown with Marilyn Crisp.

LINE-UP FOR BUTTER COMMON SIGHT—Lineups were throughout most of Canada are lining up for butter these days. And as in the picture above, most dairies and such-likes are forced to ration the scarce commodity to one pound per customer. Everyone including Mrs. R. Yeaman, the proprietress of a Toronto creamery above, seem to be able to smile about the whole thing, though.

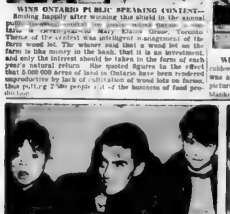
QUADRUPLETS' FOURTH BIRTHDAY PARTY—These youngsters don't have to call in any outsiders when they want to do some chortsing as a quartet. They are the Lariet quadruplets, of Brooklyn, who are all set to do some singing around the festive table as they mark fourth birthday. They are from left to right: Elaine, Benjamin, Isador and Ellen. Benjamin adds extra touch with horn-blowing.

WINS ONTARIO PUBLIC SPEAKING CONTEST—Smiling happily after winning the shield in the annual public speaking contest for high school pupils in Ontario is seventeen-year-old Mary Elaine Grose, Toronto. Theme of the contest was intelligent management of the farm wood lot. The winner said that a wood lot on the farm is like money in the bank, that it is an investment, and only the interest should be taken in the form of each year's natural return. She quoted figures in the effect that 5,000,000 acres of land in Ontario have been rendered unproductive by lack of cultivation of wood lots on farms, thus putting 2,000 people out of the business of food production.



WINTER QUIET — With Alberta experiencing the coldest April in years, and with a record for cold, this was a typical scene at Edmonton up to recently. The picture shows the Alberta legislature seen through snow blanketed trees.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King at the far (left) was also given an honorary degree.



FORCED TO FLEE WHEN FIRE STRIKES — Fourteen persons, five of them children under six years, and four brothers, were forced out in their night clothes when fire gutted second floor apartments of a Toronto rooming house at 1.30 a.m. The fire started in the rear apartment, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Horth, who suggested a sprinkler seen twice on a portion of flat roof outside their window, may have started the blaze to cover up theft. All their clothes were lost in the blaze. Mr. and Mrs. Nick Horth and their three children were among those forced out of the apartment by the fire. Mrs. Nick Horth is pictured with her children, Bill, Jimmie and Bobbie.

N.B. TEAM WINS FIRST PRIZE IN POTTERY MEET — The Canadian Guild of Potters opened the annual ceramic exhibition in the Art Gallery, Toronto, with more than 100 pieces of work from the U.S. and Canada. Fine utilitarian and decorative objects were on display. Judging was done by Frieda James, interior decorator; Roddy Kenny Cottier, painter, and Florence Wyle, sculptress. Third and fourth place in the Canadian show resulted in ties. A flat blue bowl done by Elva and Keld Deichmann, New Brunswick husband-wife team of potters, won first award; a tall blue vase by Mary Dickinson, Toronto, was second, and third place was tied with a fruit bowl by Helen Turner and a ceramic sculpture by Dora Wechsler. Fourth place was shared by Mary Dickinson with a ceramic bull figure, and Mary Salterly with a casserole bowl. Dorothy Mills, (absent), submitted a bust by Arthur Tracy.

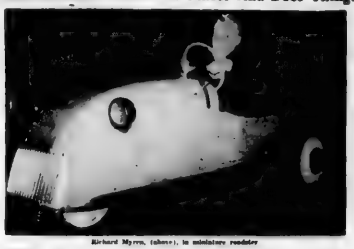
:: Builds Roadster That Goes Places And Does Things ::



Richard Myren, (above), in miniature roadster

By GEORGE H. MURPHY
Central Press Canadian

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. — Joe Myren, 37-year-old mechanic of Swift Current, has been making things since he was a boy, and in the last four years he has turned out two masterpieces.

His first major undertaking was a steam engine, an exact model of the kind that used to drive the threshing machines in days gone by. The material cost less than $10 but he has been offered $25 for the engine. However, he's still holding it for his six-year-old son, Richard, to operate when he is a little older.

The boiler holds three quarters of a pint of water, and is heated by a miniature gasoline burner. The amount of water in the boiler will run the engine for half an hour. There is a whistle on the engine too, which Mr. Myren made out of "just a few odds and ends."

Envy Of Boys

But today Richard Myren is the envy of every other boy of his age in Swift Current, for he has a roadster that goes places and does things. The cost was $70. It is six feet long, 22 inches high.

Myren, a body man in a Swift Current garage for years, has had a lot to do with taking kinks out of old cars, so he decided to build a new one. His working model will travel at approximately eight miles an hour, and can go in reverse. The fenders from a 1947 car were used for the body. The radiator was made out of a piece of the grill from a truck.

The fenders of the car were fashioned from the metal parts of the glass bulbs on top of old fashioned filling station gas pumps. The lights, which work, were at one time the parking lights on a car. The car is a three-wheeled model with only a single wheel on the front. All wheels were tail wheel on aircraft. The steering wheel is made out of a piece of copper pipe off a plane and part of a model "T" shaft.

Reverse Gear

The operation of the car is controlled by three pedals. One to go ahead, one to reverse, and one to brake. It is a "hip-belt drive system," Mr. Myren explained.

Red leather plane cushions are used in the seats and the lights are operated from a two-volt radio battery. A horn and bumpers will be added later. The car is propelled by a washing machine motor.

Mr. Myren was offered $200 for the car by a couple of farmers who wanted it for their boys. All offers were refused. "There'd be a hot time in the Myren home if I sold Dick's car," Mr. Myren said laughingly.

OCCUPATIONAL ECZEMA SOMETIMES AVOIDABLE

Industrial workers can escape occupational dermatitis (eczema) if certain rules are adhered to. Dr. Samuel M. Peck of New York in a paper read in Chicago some months ago, he said, discloses that:

Machine shops should be cleaned daily, all around be filtered to eliminate metal slivers; workers should take daily showers and use clean linen, and clean clothing every day; wastes should be treated to prevent skin irritation.

In the case of workers in certain trades there should be effective dust control while workers should use protective ointments. Machines should be enclosed.

As for housewives and others who suffer dermatitis from the use of soap flakes, rubber gloves, cleaned at the wrists by a sewn buttonhole over the glove, should be used. If this did not help, soap substitutes should be used and the hands lubricated frequently with an ointment containing animal or vegetable fats.

TOP AGE LIMIT FOR RESERVE FORCE COMMISSION

OTTAWA — Temporary top age-limits for men seeking Reserve Force commissions were announced by the army. For armoured corps, artillery, infantry and army service corps units the maximum is 28, engineer signals, ordnance and electrical and mechanical engineer units, 30 medical, dental, pay personnel and intelligence corps, 35; chaplains 50.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

EARNESTNESS

Earnestness is a continuous tribute to your Friend.

The more important man you are, the greater your need to be earnest; and a sober heart makes just the right companion for a sober mind.

The man who is not earnest in the things of God is not earnest in anything.

Earnestness cannot be counterfeited. It is genuine, or it is not at all. It is the very life of character.

With all earnestness on my part, great is the reward; for it gives Heaven to the earnest man, and to no other.

Be earnest, and you will be ready to be honest, orthodox, popular, or anything you want.—Bayne.

Canadian Navy Adopt New Flag

OTTAWA — A distinctively Canadian flag to be flown from the ships of the navy Canada's officers present and at sea in both Canadian and foreign ports has been adopted by the Royal Canadian Navy, it was announced by Hon. Brooke Claxton, Minister of National Defence.

The flag will be triangular in shape and will be dark blue with a white St. George's cross.

Up to the present it has been the practice for the senior officer present afloat to fly the same pennant as that worn on the mast-head flown by the Royal Navy.

The new flag, regular blue flags will be flown to the senior officer of any group of Canadian naval vessels. The only exception to the rule will be when the senior officer is an admiral or a commodore when the flag or pennant of his rank will be flown.

The man at the rest desk says he won't have real equality until they put the six-day bicycle racers, too, on a five-day week.

GARDEN NOTES

Tree Pests

Two points which the gardener must keep in mind at this time are cultivation and pests. A garden kept well cultivated up to the middle of June will stay clean with little trouble from them on. Pests and the troublesome weeds are much more easily handled if caught in the earlier stages. Cultivation will take care of the weeds in most cases though in lawns or in large and well established flower beds of the first sprays are advisable. Bugs and diseases should be attacked just as soon as they show themselves. Commercial sprays are available at any seed or hardware store.

No Rush Yet

A few days of warm sunshine seem to put a lot of people into a fever to get all their seeds planted. This is a mistake. Seed and plants are rushed into the ground and they are liable to be neglect later on. In practically every garden of the country both vegetables and flowers can be planted successfully in regular intervals right up to the end of June. Beets, carrots, beans, spinach, lettuce, radish, etc., can be planted every other week or so right up to late June, and the harvest will be spread accordingly. Flowers, too, can be spread over several weeks. Some things, however, like grass seed, nursery stock, garden peas, sweet peas, are best all planted early. But bedding plants like petunias, snapdragons, stock, asters, calendulas, cabbage etc. should not be set out until all danger of frost is over. Tender things like gladioli, cannas, marigolds, squash, corn, etc. can come in this category.

Thinning

A common mistake of the new gardener is to sow seed too thickly and to allow plants to grow too close together. Petunias, sweet peas, annuals and other fast-sized flowers should be thinned to at least 6 to 10 inches apart. Carrots, cucumbers, onions and other things grown in individual hills should also be thinned to not more than three or four plants. Crowded plants will be weak and spindly.

UMBRELLAS TREASONABLE

VANCOUVER — Vancouver newspapers that print pictures of people holding umbrellas over their heads commit "treason", Leo Sweeney, local booster, told a civic meeting here. "As free developers are means from heaven; they're good for the complexion," he said.

Production of stoves and ranges totalled some 4,400,000 units last year (1947), topping the 1946 record by over 1,000,000.

WORLD ... HAPPENINGS ... BRIEFLY TOLD

Blocks of new traffic lights in Canada at the end of 1947 totalled 650, 100 more than the previous year, and next year should see even a great ago.

Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh will attend the annual Dominion Day dinner of the Canada Club in London July 1. It was officially announced.

The first commercial jobs fleet to be operated with new developed radar is coming from [illegible] berths at the Sydney, N.S., docks.

Wing Cmdr. A. J. Shelton Potter, Canadian born pilot has been appointed chief of all-weather flying training for the R.A.F. the air ministry announced.

In its efforts to encourage young men to settle in Canada, the Agricultural Institute of Canada is offering six scholarships of $500 each to cover the cost of the third year.

Australia Claims To Have The World's Largest Ranch

Herd Of 140,000 Head Of Cattle And 35,000 Calves Are Rounded Yearly In Victoria River Downs Estate

Although current world food shortages and the demands now being placed on Australia for more food, may shortly cause the sun of re-assumption to cut considerable shine from its 13,000 square miles acreage, Victoria River Downs cattle station in Australia's Northern Territory is the largest in the world.

Bigger than Belgium, its immensity makes Alberta's King Ranch look like a market garden.

The boundaries have never been completely surveyed, but they have been "calculated". If you doubted the calculation, you would have to ride 2,000 miles for a check-up! And if you wanted to make a more or less rough estimate you could ride 150 miles in a straight line and still be on the cattle run.

This gigantic land area was originally leased from the Crown in 1878. It has passed through several hands and Australia's fabulous "Cattle King," Sir Sidney Kidman, was one of the various owners.

The ranch takes its name from the Victoria River which winds through it for a distance of approximately 200 miles. Its tributaries, the Wickham and Armstrong rivers, along with their innumerable tributaries, develop what are some substantial streams and usually contained water in the boundaries.

The Victoria River herd is estimated as it is to one head of cattle and about 35,000 calves are branded annually by the six stock camps which do the mustering for the cattle control of this gentle.

Commissioner Isaacs states of the ranch has the appearance of a small township, dotted about six numerous buildings, include residences, stores, garages, workshops and blacksmith shops.

With such an immense area of land, even a hereditary is necessary for communication on function. What is known as the Victoria Stock Route is the line which camps are from Brunswick, Victoria, to Darwin, a distance of 1,000 miles, passing through Melbourne, Sydney, Broken Hill, Tennant Creek, Alice Springs and Katherine.

Each camp is a self-contained unit, also is usually manned by a white man, a couple of white women and from 10 to fifteen Australian aborigines who act as stockmen. Sometimes there are more.

As the Northern Territory climate is unusual, with an abundance of weather extending from April to October with practically no rain and extending from November to March the bulk of the work has to be done during the dry season. Heavy rains transform creeks into torrents, and the bluish soil plains become quagmires.

During the wet season the men engage in horse-breaking, rope making and other odd jobs.

Bullock mustering begins as soon as the "wet" ends. Quotas of stock required are given to each head stockman, with the place and date of delivery. The number of bullocks is based on the breakings made during the previous season, and is roughly in the vicinity of five thousand.

Mustering and delivery is a massive performance worked to a tight schedule.

Plans are now on hand for heavier stocking to cope with increased British beef demands because much is expected of the cattle station which proudly boasts of its uniquely vast acreage.—Montreal Star

Dominion-Wide Conservation Board Planned

CALGARY — A drive to form a dominion-wide conservation board has been inaugurated by the western Canada and Yukon fish and game council, it was announced here.

It is hoped that the proposed organization will have representatives from all provincial game groups in the country much along the lines of the western council, which is the central organization for British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba Fish and Game associations.

W. F. Tisdale of Winnipeg, president of the Western council, has asked the federal department of mines and resources for assistance in forming the group.

He advanced the following problems which he said he believed should be dealt with at a meeting of Canadian sportsmen and government officials:

The Migratory Bird Conservation act. 2, Drainage and submarginal marshes and lakes. 3, Conservation of waterfowl food. 4, Education in conservation. 5, Other advertisement to promote duck and game production.

Previous attempts to form a national fish and game organization have failed through lack of support from the dominion government and provincial governments.

The first attempt was made in the early 20's and the organization functioned for three years. An attempt to revive the national organization was made in 1938, but the organization disbanded shortly after the start of the Second World War.

Solero Comes Into Its Own This Season

Spring fashions reveal prominent (as ... the bolero—the tiny jacket that can be worn without or without the dress. The bolero here, modelled by a New York designer (Gaultier) features the contrasting of white pique, (at right), is ideal for weekends. The whole pique and red ribbon tie give it a crisp, cool look. Better still, you can take off the jacket and underneath you have a sun dress with shoulder straps.

THE SPORT WORLD

Saskatchewan Angling Seasons Open May 16

REGINA—Angling in Saskatchewan will open for sportsmen May 16 and season will run to March 31, 1949 for some species of fish, it was announced by Hon. T. H. MacDonald, supervisor of fisheries, announced.

Residents angling for valid in all waters in 52—resident fee for waters designated by trout or grayling, $1. Children under 16 years do not require a license.

Non-resident anglers must pay $2 for a permit valid for all waters other than those frequented by trout and grayling, and $6 for permit valid in all provincial waters. Those under 16 years require no license.

Softball in the All-American Girls' league can really be called baseball now. The pitchers will throw overhand this season.

Attention all mother baseball fans: Bill Veeck, president of Cleveland Indians, is toying with the idea of having a nursery installed at the stadium ... women can park their youngsters and watch the ball game in comfort. It would have playpens for children, taped over to sta. That's for afternoon games only. At night he thinks children should be left home.

If you're feeling frisky you can pick up $1,000 on July 1 by climbing Mount Revelstoke at Revelstoke, B.C. The mountain top is 6,000 feet above sea level and a trail about eight miles long unvirtually takes between four and five hours.

Cardston, Alta. Shooting Stars are the western senior women's basketball champions. They defeated Vancouver 37-36 to take the best-of-five series 3-2.

Heavyweight champion Joe Louis received house from his European exhibition tour and reiterated he expected to make short work of Jersey Joe Walcott in their return bout. "This will not be a very hard fight," he said. "I am just fight 1 made the very bad mistake of dying out the last few days."

Don Suttie of Detroit entered a steam-powered car in the 32nd annual ... mobile automobile race May 31 in the Indianapolis speedway. The car ... not been road tested. If the "Suttie Steamer Special" performs according to the builder's expectations, it will be the first steam-powered car ever to reach the qualification trials for the big race.

PERFECT FLAME THROWER

In North Carolina a state fire warden perfected a special flame-thrower for use in quickly setting back fires when forests are threatened.

AMMUNITION WAS SCARCE

In colonial North Carolina ammunition was so scarce that every person not armed in the state had to pay a tonnage duty in gunpowder, gunshot and flints.

Spring Flowers Add To Table Attractiveness

Spring is a time of promise. Life begins again in the flowers of spring—and in the high hopes of hearts reared from the grey dreariness of winter. So let hearts soar and promise be the theme of your dinner table setting.

Whatever the season or the decoration, a fresh linen tablecloth is the beginning of an attractive setting. It may be one of the new damask patterns which are now being imported again, or it may be an old cloth with all of its original beauty brought out by perfect laundering.

New designs are also available in china and there is glassware is being imported, more is being made in Canada and the United States. And all the stores are showing attractive china patterns and new designs in sterling and in silver-plated flatware.

But fortunately new table appointments are not needed to make your spring table attractive. Every spring brings its unlimited gift of flowers. There radiance will complement the instruments of everyday china and glass. So why not concentrate your efforts on a lovely centrepiece if you are not ready to choose new things for your table.

For an effective centrepiece fill a glass bubble bowl with dainty sweet and plant it close, in spring flower bed fashion, with Chinese lilies. Pre-candlestick, use sand-filled glass custard cups, and fill with orange and yellow pansies. The arrangement is just enough different to give the whole table a smart new look.

Believe Homing Instinct In Birds Just A Myth

ITHACA, N.Y.—Birds turned loose in a strange place far from home do not "home" back to their nests, guided by some mysterious instinct or sense hidden power that we earthlings have not. They cruise in curving lines, with a suggestion of spiralling, apparently getting home by plain ordinary exploration.

This is the conclusion reached as the result of experiments by two Cornell University ornithologists, Drs. Donald R. Griffin and Raymond J. Hock, long-range findings in the forthcoming issue of Science.

In the first experiments the birds were easily given at a distance, and because it was safe to assume that they had never of their own accord gone far from the roost.

They carried a number of them including the Canadian maritime province of New Brunswick, where they were turned loose to find their own way home. Half of them they followed in an airplane, at a safe distance, and observed the rest they left unaccompanied to see if the manner of the plane was a disturbing factor.

Only two of the birds flew in anything like a straight line for the coast, and both of these turned at the first angles before they reached the shores of the Bay of Fundy. The others flew in all directions, sometimes making many turns and loops. There was no tendency whatever of a persistent "sense of direction".

The first gannet to get home arrived at its nest in 24 hours; others required up to 70 hours. Four failed to get back at all, though one of these was in good condition upon release.

Pigeons have travelled as one day was 88 miles. This compares with a high of 141 miles for the seagull and a low of 17 for the starling.

Helpful Hints

Store both crackers and cookies in airtight tins jars or boxes. Don't keep them with bread as they will absorb moisture and lose their crispness.

When bad weather keeps the children indoors, a simple cooking lesson will help pass the time. Even a very young child can front graham crackers for inside.

To soften stubborn grease that refuses to melt, soak it leaving a shallow pan of household ammonia in the oven overnight. With a damp cloth the softened grease should come off easily.

When shoe laces lose their tips, as they are apt to do, make them last a little longer by twisting the ends and dipping into clear nail polish. Let dry thoroughly then give them a second coat if necessary. Try the same thing on cord or heavy thread when stringing beads.

BEARS IN RESIDENCE

VANCOUVER — Men and women prisoners in Oakalla prison, in nearby Burnaby, will receive vocational education. J. D. Hobden, secretary of the John Howard Society, said prisoners and others skilled in trades will teach prisoners so they will have an occupation when released.

China's coal reserves are estimated at about 243,670,000,000 tons.

Purdy-Makers

Wolves Killing Moose In Northern Manitoba

CRANBERRY PORTAGE, Man. — Timber wolves are killing moose in northern Manitoba and are "terrific" as has been investigated by Joe Robertson, game warden. Wasyle Avalon is hunting with a load of fish for one of his prize takes was a wolfhook by part of the struggle between a lone bull moose and two wolves and reported the fight to the game warden. Avalon and Joe Robertson discovered evidence of the fight the moose had put up and found the carcass of an eight-year-old bull moose. The animal with the two wolves moose are reporting to the warden has not trapped and others to report against it for the use of poison in order to kill of the wolf population.

NEW MACHINE DEVELOPED FOR SUGAR BEET FARMING

LONDON — A French machine to take the backache out of sugar beet farming by thinning crops at the rate of one yard a second is being demonstrated in England.

The machine demonstrated to English farmers by a French engineer, already in use on the continent, it is operated by an electro-magnetic "brain" which reacts in the touch of metallic fingers on the leaves of the plants.

It feels for and selects the plants to be left standing in rows.

Official tests are to be conducted by the National Institute of Agricultural Engineering in May.

STORY ABOUT FROG CARRIES A LESSON

Ever hear the story of the frog that was caught in a deep rut in a road? In spite of the help of his friends, he couldn't get out. They left him to despair. Next day, one of his friends saw him hopping about, as chipper as could be, and no longer in a rut.

"What are you doing here?" asked the friend. "I thought you couldn't get out of that rut."

"I couldn't," said the frog, "but a big truck came along and I had to get out."

"But it is my pochota."

DOC KELLY'S BOY

By JIM DYGERT

EVEN since young Tommy Winters could remember, his mother was always telling him that he should be more like Doc Kelly's boy. He expected to hear it once again when he spotted his mother coming to the garage.

"Ho, you're here fishing all day again, Tommy, what's the matter? Don't you appreciate our sending you to school?"

He finished hanging his pole and turned about to defend himself. "Aaaw, Mom. It's not that. I just get sick of going to school every day. A fellow has to have some kind of freedom in a while."

"I should think Saturday and Sunday should give you enough time! You don't see your father hooking school whenever the notion strikes him."

Last, Mom. You don't understand. "Oh, you I do. It's getting to where I can't do anything with you. Ben, if you could be more like Doc Kelly's boy. Now there's a fine, upstanding young lad for you! Never getting into trouble and—"

"Never doing anything," Tommy interrupted, "just an angel with wings. Everyone would be a whole lot better off if he would use those wings to fly away with."

"Tommy! Don't be so sarcastic. And didn't I teach you better than to break into my conversation like that? Do you think Doc Kelly's boy would do something like that? You let your life be wasted!"

She looked down at her son's clothes for the first time. "Tommy, what did you do? Fall into Bear Creek? Oh, Tommy! You might have drowned. Hurry and get those clothes off before you catch a death of cold. When you are finished, come downstairs. I'm going to heat your supper over."

Sarah was just about half way to the store when the telephone rang. Miss Tetchell was on the line. "Is Tommy all right?"

"Why?" Sarah inquired.

Well, I saw him coming down Main St carrying little Bert Stevens. And Sarah, both of these were struggling wet and little Bert was crying aloud, like I could see in! He pushed me in!" So, I thought I'd call to let you know that your Tommy has done!"

Sarah uttered a faint "Thanks" and hung up. "How hoohey isn't enough," she thought. "Now he's going about pushing six year-old boys into Bear Creek. So, that is his reward for being nice! Just wait till he comes down!"

Tommy came down all washed and ready for supper. He always fixed up a little extra special for supper on Wednesday nights. After all, his mother didn't bake a chocolate cake that night, just to please herself.

"You must have had a good time fishin'," Sarah said quietly.

"I caught a lot of them. Ma I gave them to Widow Stevens. Her little boy, Bert, likes fish. In fact, he was down at the creek today trying to catch some himself."

"Son, that's the way I like you to be thinking. It isn't all fishing and to the good things. And there are so many good things that need doing."

His gave her words time to sink in. Then she said, "By the way, how's Bert?"

"O.K., Ma. Except that he fell in the creek. That's how he got wet."

As she looked at the boy, she thought, "He never thought of asking to be. He never did that before. He always told me not to bother him at breakfast."

After enjoying his plate, Tommy remained at the table waiting for the chocolate cake.

Get on to bed, Tommy," she commanded coldly, breaking the Wednesday night precedent. She had developed into a habit.

"But—the chocolate cake!"

"There is no chocolate cake. Get on to bed."

She watched her disappointed son walk up the stairs and seated herself in the nearest chair.

Upon hearing the doorbell ring, Sarah walked to the door. She expected to find Widow Stevens and Bert.

Where's Tommy?" Widow Stevens asked excitedly. "I just can't wait to thank him. He saved little Bert's life today!"

"Saved his life?" Sarah was puzzled. All the dubs I make never did call-it for Tommy to come down.

Widow Stevens told Tommy's head and spoke of Tommy's heroism. "Tommy Bert has told me about the brave thing you did today. So, I went to thank you from the bottom of my heart. You see, Bert's all that I have now and if it hadn't have been for you—"

Mrs. Stevens' words would have of Tommy and attempting to be it herself of Tommy's modesty. "Tommy's not ready. Tommy" Widow Stevens said. "There are many things we can't think about when we're young. Like Bert and I were hungry for chocolate cake when Widow Stevens said. They

Farmer Sold With Organic Matter Humus Restores Soil Vitality

Humus (three to six percent (by weight) of most farm soils consists of organic matter, humus, the remainder being mineral matter It is the humus that sets soil apart from rock. Without its organic matter constituent soil would not and could not be productive for crop growing. Be Vital is its relation to the well being and good performance of soil that it may be well regarded as the life blood of the land

Unfortunately, humus disappears from the soil; it is destructible, perishable. Fleeting years had devoted centuries of time to the accumulation of organic matter in and on soil. The additions of dead plant material exceeded normal loss by decay, enabling nature to make one inch of surface soil once every 200 years. But, compared to grain has caused more noise and little chance for input of organic matter During the pioneer period, farming got by by draining off the little of organic matter already lodged in the soil through the centuries.

* * * *

Restock the Original Content
From now on out, however it seems clear that we will need to restock the soil to keep up dirt if we'll gone out incident to growing commercial crops.

* * * *

Note For The Setting
Among these sources of organic matter, soda stand in key position and must be looked upon as a valuable addendum in any scheme looking to permanency of soil fertility, and we are thinking of the best, supply 2½ to 4½ pounds (a large of dry wt.) of substance to an acre when plowed. Alfalfa and sweet clover or either of them with brome and also crested wheat furnish the largest volume of material of any soils avail able for turning back Common experience is position. BUILD UP the SOIL FOR BIGGER CROP YIELDS.

"DEACON DUBBS" PRESENTED TO ENTHUSIASTIC CROWDS

Presented by the Dramatic Classes of Central High, under the direction of Mr. C. Metz, the three-act comedy play "Deacon Dubbs" was presented to capacity crowds in the town of Strome, Killam and Sedgewick during the past week (Sat.) after the doors opened, the "stand ing room only" signs had to be hung up. Even those forced to stand were well satisfied with the evening.

Director Metz and the casts are well pleased with the response in theatre goers and are appreciative of the support given the two shows.

FACTS ABOUT M. D. FLAGSTAF:

Some Facts About M. D. Flagstaf

According to 1946 census the total number of occupied farms in the is D. were 1754. Total area occupied farms is 372,251 acres. Total in proved land is 164,566 acres. Improved land and pasture 11,136 acres Improved land in summerfallow 7,875 acres Woodland, 74,585 acres.

The total cultivated land by including green feed, is 2,426 acres.

Total number of cattle, 20,375 Cows and heifers one to two years kept mainly for milk purposes, 2,841 Kept mainly for beef purposes, 2,595 Cows and heifers 2 years and over kept mainly for milk purposes, 2,556 Kept mainly for beef, 5,305

Total number of sheep 2,567

From the above figures we feel that the acreage of cultivated hay and pasture is not adequate to maintain without under cut, the cattle number that in in the M. D.

From the figure above it would appear that more than half of the cattle number is kept mainly in milk purposes. If that is so, why do little logistic for better dairy stock in looking over these figures we feel that we need better and more per manent forage and hay meadows. Also we feel that more cattle should be culled, bred and improved in dairy purposes.

From Wood Fiber Humus circulars Day will be held in Camrose, Tentative date, June 7th.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. B.—

This is the Springtime (although you would hardly think so at this time When Mother Earth is everywhere proclaiming the promise of bounty. Yet today millions go hungry. Food, a great making force of God, has been made by men a mighty divisive power. For food today has become an ideological weapon. In many nations men have sold their freedom for bread. Because their stomachs crave food they have accepted ideas which their minds and hearts have always rejected.

The need of the hungry nations has just begun in a all-out earnest effort to serve, feed and clothe humanity. Can humanity feed hungry Europe? And will Europe feed in Democracy the answering idea to fill the void left by F. scism, Nazism and turn the tide of Communism?

To me that is the question of the day, the answer to which will mean the stability or fall of democracy

Canadian farmers raise much of the food that has kept Europeans alive. But will they live for the Our need can strengthen them to fight another war or is can set ourselves to fight for peace Europe needs food, and desperately, but food alone will not satisfy the hunger When men are hungry they may respond to a materialistic appeal for food, but the answer is needed only fills the stomach It cannot satisfy the hunger for a decent world. Europe needs hope and faith for those held responsible for it. That hatred cannot be cured by bread alone, but by the peace that builds a new world, where none need go hungry Impossible you say? I think not. I did not say "where none will go hungry", but, "where none need go hungry". A passion to build can only come when the heart is free from self-interest and the "gimme" spirit, purged of all but the clean drive of love for God and much better world.

Perhaps the answer is to produce an Inspired Ideology for Democracy We can do it. It will grow quickly We can meet the needs of human nature—a change of heart and, perhaps most important, an obedience to God. We shall reap a harvest of moral fibre and team-work in the nation When we have obtained this we can expect it along with our food This will teach men how to live in peace and plenty.

ooOoo

Yes, spring is here, and almost with the first day of same I observed a few brave souls out warming up on the local ball park. Watching these enthusiasts bang the ball between still present snow drifts, I began to see why baseball managers call it a crazy game. Along this line of thought, Paul Talbot came up years ago with this answer to the question, "What is Golf".

"Golf is a form of work made easy enough for business men to enjoy. It is what letter carrying fitch-hanging, and carpet beating would be if they all had to be performed on the same hot afternoon. The game is played on carefully manicured lawns. Little white balls and as many clubs as the play or can afford. A golf course has 18 holes, 17 of which are unnecessary and are put in to make the game harder. A golf ball is a ball in the centre of the green. A green is a small parcel of grass resting about $1.65 a square foot. A bunker is located between a brook and a couple of trees or a lot of undisturbed stones and sand. The object of the ball from a given point into each of the 18 cup zone with the fewest number of strokes and the greatest number of words. The ball must not be thrown, pushed or carried. It must be propelled by about fifty words or various insulting impediments, supplied by caddies to pro-ake the score. After the final 18th hole the golfer adds up his score and has a shower to get rid of the ill. He then has a shower, a pint of..... ale a "Sweet Adeline with six or eight other lies and calls it a perfect day.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Dear Editor

Note off to our Central High School and to Mr. Metz. The performance of his Drama and Music Classes show what can be done with our young students, under proper guidance. The three R's are indispensible, but the fine arts are equally so We are fortunate indeed, that this side of our high school course is being handled so efficiently Many thanks Metz.

An Appreciative Parent

Dear Sir

I believe it to be my duty to correct an erroneous impression which has been given the people of Sedgewick and district regarding the attitude of the local branch of The Canadian Legion concerning the community hall.

After giving the matter serious consideration the Legion decided that the project of erecting a hall suitable to fulfill the needs of the present community was too large an enterprise for a handful of returned men to undertake but was one which would receive the entire support of the Village and district if it could be operated as a community undertaking the Legion would be more than pleased to offer all support available

An invitation was extended by the Board of Trade to other bodies and numerous to attend a meeting concerning the possibility of such majority in the district. This we did, but due to a misunderstanding the invitation failed to make an appearance, and thus the Legion is responsible for the rumors that the Legion is entirely disinterested in having a community hall is concerned

I should like to impress upon the minds of the people of Sedgewick and district, that the Sedgewick Branch of the Legion is and always will be interested in the operation or building of a hall, and that any other project which will prove to the betterment of the community I sincerely regret the misunderstanding which caused the failure of our delegates to attend the meeting in question.

I shall be pleased if you will see fit to give this letter space in the columns of your paper.

Yours very truly, C. F. Harris,
Legion President, Sedgewick

High Living Costs

DURING THE PAST YEAR there has been considerable concern over the rising cost of living in Canada. Such conditions as now exist were to be expected after price controls and other anti-inflation measures enforced during the war, were removed. It was inevitable that these controls should be removed, but it is regrettable that the resulting adjustment is proving a slight overdue matter, than about. Recently the Family Welfare Division of the Canadian Welfare Council made a survey throughout the Dominion of the effects of rising living costs on the average Canadian family, and the results of this survey show so that there as indeed cause for anxiety over some aspects of this problem. Although incomes have increased and there is little unemployment it was evident from the report that many families are experiencing great difficulty in meeting present price levels.

Feel A Lack Of Security

As a result of this situation the Welfare Council reported in many cases savings which had been put aside for emergencies or for use in later years, have been drawn upon to augment the family income at this time. The use of these reserves and inability to continue any systematic savings because of the high cost of living, has given rise to feelings of insecurity which are harmful to the welfare of the family. In this connection the report said in part "this never-ending struggle to stretch an inadequate income to meet basic needs will in time be frustrating to even the most stable men and women increasing family tensions, affecting health and in some cases endangering the security of children and aged people."

Low Standards Of Nutrition

It was also noted that in some cases debt is becoming an increasing problem, while in others the high cost of living is causing standards of nutrition to be lowered, with resultant lack of proper nourishment, undesirable in children and in sufferers from diseases such as diabetes where adequate diets are of great importance. The re-establishment of some prices controls, unemployment insurance, family allowances and other anti-inflation measures were pointed out as possible "shock absorbers" in relieving the present situation, but it is realized that underlying causes will have to be dealt with before there can be any permanent improvement. The problem is a complex one resulting from the economic upheaval which always accompanies war. Canada has been more fortunate than many other countries in this respect, but the situation here is nevertheless serious, and it is to be hoped that an early adjustment may be found to the present high price levels in this country.

GARDEN NOTES

Spare is Important

After the first planting is up the next major job is thinning and spacing. This is vital work and applies to either flowers or vegetables. Crowded flowers will grow thin and spindly will not bloom freely and the largest plants will topple over in the first storm. They should have half as much room between as they will grow tall. This means about four or five inches for things like nasturtiums, less for alyssum, much more for tall marigolds, common or spider plants.

With the smaller vegetables, a couple of inches between plants is sufficient. This applies to leaf lettuce, early carrots, beets, etc. Beans and peas should have from four to six inches between plants, and as all the seed usually germinates it should be planted alongle that for space. Corn should be from fifteen inches to two feet apart. Corn is usually planted from three to six seeds in a hill, about eighteen inches apart each way or rows two to three feet apart. Tomato plants require at least eighteen inches each way, melons, squash and cucumbers three plants to a hill, and hills about two to three feet apart.

Second And Third Plantings

Too much stress cannot be laid on continuous planting of [illegible] vegetables like lettuce radish, leaf carrots beets, corn etc. All of these will taste much better when they just begin to reach proper maturity. Most of them especially the lettuce corn and such things begin to get tough if left too long. The only way to assure a proper succession is to keep planting them. If you are in quite possible to keep planting many vegetables right up to mid-July.

Protection

Best protection against pests in a healthy, fast-growing, clean garden. Cultivation and fertilizer will help in this. Second defense is to be ready with the proper sprays and dusts the instant a bug or disease attack starts.

Medical psychology is less than a century old. 2774

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

FLUORINE EVENT OF DENTAL DECAY

The new ray of hope in the dental profession's fight to [illegible] teeth decay of dentists was stated by the Canadian Dental Association in a Message to the Health League of Canada issued in connection with the recent national Health Week observance.

The statement says that if water supplies can be [illegible] and trained with the required amount of fluorine without harming people, we can look forward to a gratifying decrease in the future in the prevalence of dental decay.

Fluorine is an element that, in a pure state, is poisonous, but it occurs in very small proportion in almost all water supplies. # French Master Gives Free Singing Lessons Performing Valuable Work In Canada

MONTREAL — A film commemorating the history of the Carnegie Hall revealing the artists who won for that hall the triumph of their career and the greatest musical performances which occurred there. But nowhere in the film there is a Canadian artist who was forgotten in that film. Not an artist who eventually at Carnegie Hall reappeared with his most brilliant success. An artist who didn't appear in the film, but who, a still living. The man is the great French singer Jose Delaquerriere who is performing extraordinary work in Canada.

In 1932 Jose was singing at the Vaudeville and the Rockefeller Center Radio with Claudia Muzio and Salazar at the piano. He obtained this scene at Rockefeller Center when he created the Storm of Bliss under the direction of Lawrence Schmidt. He sang at Carnegie Hall when he created the famous Death of Cleopatra as first composer of the Schola Cantorum and the 200 voices under the direction of Karl Schinder. He also created the Fox, of Stravinsky under the baton of Leopold Stokowski. Then he made a real triumph in New York later on he began all three concerts at the Philadelphia Music Academy under the direction of Stokowski.

However, Jose Delaquerriere was used to greater success. He had studied the singing art with his father, Louis Delaquerriere who was one of the great singers of the Opera Comique of Paris and one of the greatest singing French masters of his country. Louis Delaquerriere was the teacher of Emma Calve Lawrence Tibbett, Reval Edmond Clement and of the famous Lucien Fugat.

Jose Delaquerriere received his general and artistic education from La Tourbette Institute, Charles Bordes, Jean Cavaignac, Desmoz Paris, Rodolph Vigneau, Emile Bremont and Lugne. He began practically every singing career of orchestra. He was eight years old when he made his debut at the Trocadero where he took the place of his father, handkerchief by name and sang the part of Christmas Oratorio by Bach.

Composes Songs

Later on Jose became the well known author of the Operettes that sang more than three times in France and Belgium. Among the most famous are the Merry Widow and Rose de Nuage de Cuisto de Lumiere, Souffle de la Gare Lorraine, he had real triumph in les Cloches de Corneville and Mogol, Paulus, les Saltimbanques.

Jose has always been a busy composer of all kinds. He was an Officer of Light Infantry of Paris During the Great World War he volunteered with the First Algerian Division, becoming band master of the regiment and later receiving the Croix de Guerre

JOSE DELAQUERRIERE

Around 1930 Jose opened a singing school in New York and transferred his private school to Montreal in 1935. Then he remembered the special work we had used by the great French artist, Mr. Gaudrey, to create in Canada a choir under the title of Chorale de France. France's Choir. Jose organized this choir in April of the same year and began to give the young members singing lessons absolutely free of charge. Since 1938, more than 3 000 young Canadian boys and girls have been admitted to this free singing course.

Without any payment, whatsoever they received four hours of singing class each week based on the principles and technique of the French school. For 10 years Jose Delaquerriere has been giving freely four hours and more of his time and his talents to cultivate young Canadian voices.

Students Find Success

Each year the Chorale de France gives a group of carefully selected old and modern French songs. During the war this choir made the tour of military camps in the province of Quebec, entertaining the soldiers with songs. More than 200 boys and girls are present each night at the free singing school of this artist who now gives his lessons in 30 classes where half the pupils of the singing school took the official name of the Conservatoire Populaire Delaquerriere a Delaquerriere Popular Conservatory in Montreal.

Thousands of Canadians heard the Chorale de France in concerts or at the radio. Jose Delaquerriere is also well known as a radio artist. From his fine singing school young singers have emerged and achieved great success. One of those is the well known soprano, Simonne Plante, who in 1940, won the first prize at the "Singing Stars of Tomorrow" program in Toronto He recently gave a performance in Washington and is now performing at the La Scala of Milan

As a result of this man's work thousands of young people, who have real singing and unique capacities, which otherwise would have been lost, are discovering constantly His achievement is unique in Canada and United States

ROYSTON, Hertfordshire, England — Four men have designed a 16-ton "land yacht" to beat Britain's petrol shortage.

Only the wind is used to drive the "boat on wheels" which accommodates three adults and two children.

The land boat's 22-foot mast has been designed to collapse if its top touches an obstruction, thus preventing damage to telephone lines.

There's one drawback, the designers can't "tack" on a road, so they work out their route according to the wind's direction.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Rufe Finds Katy

By T. W. TOBIN

RUFE LARKINS was in trouble, but he didn't know it. He didn't know he was in love but he didn't know that love was causing him trouble That's what love does to people

It was Saturday night in the little town of Bellville and as usual Rufe had driven the twelve miles from the farm to get shaved buy some chewing tobacco and a few nails What he really came to town for was to see Katy McCollum

There were others there too, farmers just like himself, in town to buy a few things and to talk crops Rufe seldom talked crops He'd just listen, offer an opinion and now and against the front of the post office which was just across the street from old Bob McCollum's hardware store where Katy worked

Rufe was tall and thin. His face was normally sad—its eyes reminded one of a lonely bloodhound.

Every Saturday night, rain or no, Rufe hauled up on the hitching rack, got a barber shop shave and bought some nails. He didn't need any nails There were plenty at home, but when he bought nails he got to talk to Katy McCollum.

What are you going to do with all those nails?" Katy would ask

Oh, I got a little fixin' up to do on the corn crib," he'd answer

Seven kegs of nails for a corn crib last month," Katy would say as she weighed out a pound or so

No that was the keg per se the windmill I forget which

One Saturday night the 1 group in front of the post office was sensible than When Rufe got there his heart seemed to stop the hardware store was closed

Week like a things out your way," asked Farmer Jones

Mahnen Katy?" What's the matter with the hardware store?"

Old McCollum died," said Katy could go to the carnival

Where's the carnival?" asked Rufe

Why, you came by it comin' to town!"

Come to think of it I did see a bunch of lights and tents on the edge of town but didn't pay any attention," said Rufe

Rufe suddenly had business elsewhere He turned and walked down the street to see Katy. He just had to see Katy, carnival or no carnival Her smile and voice were all he could go around

Mahnen Katy," he was in his self-driving back the way he had come Katy for up the western border of the province came busily before the house of commons on the subject of changing committee R B Moore, C.C.F. member for Churchill, asked about the possibility of the mounties taking into that region in view of the active and pressing labor exploration now going on up there

But R C Vaughan, C.N.R. president, thought it a bet premature to be talking about a railway to Lynn Lake for up to the present time there has been used with great success, especially where shadowing is necessary More will be used as they become available

In the far north at Dundas Harbor police, through its aperture-ed, installed three radio apparatus according to written instructions Now they have regular contact with the Hudson's Bay Company station at Pond Inlet and the Department of Transport, station at Arctic Bay, both more than 100 miles away to the south on Baffin Island.

Whenever police have had to radio reinforcements for hearing horse thieves or cattle, privately-owned radio sets have been helpful In June 1941, 13 people died in Banff in the conflagration of burning fuse containing wood alcohol Thanks to the radio communication with the local station, seven of others got to hospital in time for their lives to be saved.

The publicly-owned Canadian Broadcasting Corporation frequently cooperative, as in the broadcasting of a missing person letter from the states at Watrous, Saskatchewan.

All ships of the R.C.M.P. marine service are now equipped and many are fitted with direction-finding gear, along with apparatus for long-range navigation and developed during the war, when they were doing a new hazard to run-running hazard. Their search and rescue and other humanitarian ways The ship-shore facilities of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals are also regularly used by the police marine division, and by those communicating with headquarters on shore

Besides the aircraft of the R.C.M.P. aviation section, as well, are fitted with the most up-to-date wireless and radio automatic direction-finding apparatus available

How will technology affect police work of the future? Nobody can say with certainty, but it is expanding in so many directions by leaps and bounds that very often a piece of equipment is no sooner on the market than it is rendered obsolete and another more modern device is substituted

However, radio facsimile, smaller and better walkie-talkies, radar speed-gun improvements, improved methods of communication, and ingenious burglar alarm systems with photo-electric cells are among the amazing visits of possibilities. Infrared or "black light" devices, such as the snooperscope that came out of the war, undoubtedly will have many uses in police work. Indeed, some of these wonders already are proving their usefulness — Ottawa

FUEL COMING, BOAT BENT—There is nothing to indicate that Canada will have to ration gasoline this year, Rt Hon C D Howe minister of reconstruction and supply told the house of Commons at Ottawa "I know of no circumstance this year which makes rationing any more likely than last year or the year before," he said. "The government is taking every precaution to see that nothing interferes with the normal movement, and at the present I do not anticipate the need for gasoline rationing next winter

Biggest Dam Project Attempted By Canadians

By T. R. METCALFE NEWS Central Press Canadian

SASKATOON Sask — Important milestone in the giant $15 million irrigation scheme, the St Mary-Milk River development in southern Alberta was made recently when the crew in the tunnel broke through a rock reef on the middle and completed the 2 700-foot project

When the last six-foot wall was knocked away and the smoke and dust cleared away there were several sighs of relief from the engineers Engineer Wally Ross P F R A was in charge of the biggest dam project ever attempted by Canadians and was the other from the contractor who undertook the big job a year and a half ago. The two sections of the tunnel did not join almost perfectly but were scarcely an inch out either way

Soon Completed

The work of lining the tunnel with concrete started some time ago, will be completed this spring, and the river water diverted through the tunnel Bed of the river where the big dam is to be located will be drained, and the main part of the project started

The diversion tunnel which will be about 10 feet in diameter when finished after lining employed an average crew of 300 men since October 1940. The irrigation tunnel, now started, will be 2,500 feet in length when finished diameter of 17 feet This will carry water from the reservoir to the irrigation system

The St Mary-Milk River project when completed will irrigate annually the present irrigated area in southern Alberta and in addition provide as yet undertaken by P F R A

Upper portal of the St. Mary diversion tunnel, through which water will be flowing this spring. Bed of the river will be drained along the same when the dam will occupy and work of the main structure will be rushed along that summer.

(By W. A. Storey, District Ass't)
One Of The Best Ways to Control Weeds Is To Sow Clean Grain

One acre has 100 square rods, or 4840 square yards, or 43,560 square feet. If we are going to sow 1½ bus. of seed, we'll be planting in the neighborhood of one hundred and fifty thousand kernels per acre. A bushel and one half of barley weighs 72 pounds. If there are no wild oats per lb. ... will not ... 720 wild oats per acre, or 6% wild oats—per sq. yard. If the land is clean this is a new matter. It is good of barley to have 100 wild oats

W. A. Storey 1½ bus. of seed will contain enough wild oats to sow 15 bunch of it per square rod. Th...

I am satisfied that on the Municipal basis there will be at least 10 per cent of the land that will contain in the neighbourhood of 100 wild oats per pound I hope not, but I am sure of it. The point is to sow clean seed, and the word clean means that there should not be more than one seed per bushel. This is too high a rate for 95 p.c. of the farmers to achieve this year, but it is hoped that by a good many of the farmers will be sowing seed that is clean.

It is our considered opinion that we will have to do more spraying to control wild mustard. Since most of the soil will be too wet for tillage equipment we need an alternative. We would like a number of farmers to compare tilling with chemical spraying. Any farmer attempting this, please let us know so that we could assist you in the matter.

We need co-operators to demonstrate methods of controlling Tartary Buckwheat. Any farmer desiring to do this contact us as soon as possible. We want several farmers to try spraying at the time of seeding; this is called a pre-emergence treatment. Be sure and compare this method unless you have committed to beforehand.

We need several co-operators who will use 0NB Barley to control wild oats. We need such information as time of seeding, rate, and observation on time to mature

We need in the neighborhood of 30 co-operators to assist us in carrying out these projects. If anyone is planning on it, please let us know so that we could interview you as soon as possible

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. B.—

Men of high character leave their stamp on their country for generations. It often seems to a seemingly unaccountable sense of local pride and community spirit. Many an Alberta town got off to a good start in pioneer days, because of the influence of a few such citizens. Men who became their own home title were sound, knew how to care for their neighbors and their town. They were able to judge between right and wrong and were therefore wiser counsel and impartial in the administration of public affairs. In their own lives, each men put God first—building a church by the corner of their bodies and out of the produce of their own soil. Then they built good schools and good roads. They were leaders because they cared more for the welfare of their community than they did for their own comfort or profit. As the years went by, they proved to have the virtues incorporated, they advocated for a public library. they supported newspapers generously and they organized a local Fair.

Today we have inherited those advantages. Are we living on what we have received, or can we care for our community like our forefathers building for the future?

In reality, caring for the community means caring for the people in it. For their sakes, we deal in town, encourage clean local sport, turn out to vote, elect men of integrity and help police to enforce the law.

Real community spirit is reminded by unanswered among citizens each helping neighbors and their town. Some communities have been known to have no community spirit and therefore have the courage to fight for what is right.

Next Monday, May 24th, will see the big game of the sport season becoming with each season at the old stand, Lougheed. The day is a legal statutory holiday, school will be closed for the day, business places will shut down, and even the local farmer (notwithstanding the hot season) will come from his haters to join in the fun and excitement.

May 24th is the date, Lougheed is the place and all day is the time.

Encouraging The Arts

THERE HAS BEEN CONSIDERABLE COMMENT in recent years on the fact that more emphasis is placed upon the importance of scientific and technical progress than on the advancement of the arts. The complexities which characterize our industry and the urgency which has at times been placed on the gaining of advanced scientific knowledge, have resulted in great progress being made in both these fields, while much less attention has been paid to the need for encouraging painting, writing and other forms of creative art. In spite of this, Canada has produced fine work in each of all branches of the arts and there are many Canadians who feel that more encouragement and support should be given to those who are engaged in this work. To encourage the arts in a country is to support the very foundations on which rest cultural standards throughout the country and to say that side of our cultural life to the level of the Dominion's international status in scientific and commercial fields.

Proposals Made By Arts Council This subject was discussed at a recent meeting of the Canadian Arts Council, a national research body which is deeply interested in the cultural aspects of our national life. At the meeting a number of proposals were made which would be in the interests of raising cultural standards in the Dominion. The suggestions included the establishment of a national library and of an organized representative national theatre group which might occasionally pass on other countries. The introduction of better methods of teaching art in the schools and of training art teachers was also proposed and it was suggested that the scope of community centres should be enlarged to emphasize not only physical recreation, but also creative and appreciative activities. Increased recognition of the work of Canadian sculptors in our architecture was advocated by the Council, as was the encouragement of Canadian musical composers through direct subsidies so that their work could be published and heard more widely.

Canada Still A Young Country It is common belief that an effort pointing made to encourage the creative work of Dominion composers and to foster knowledge and appreciation of their work on the part of the public. Canada is still a young country and it has been necessary that a great part of the energies of her people should have been directed towards the more practical work of nation building. Nevertheless, Canada has produced writers, painters and musicians of a high order many of whom have won international recognition. Western Canada is well represented in all forms of creative endeavor and the West has among its people of foreign origin a wealth of culture which has already contributed a great deal to Canadian art and literature and potential material support and widespread public interest have been done much to bring Canada to the fore among other nations in science and commerce and it is not unreasonable that the Canadian Arts Council should seek support in raising the cultural level in Canada so that the world may receive recognition nationally and internationally, in keeping with that which has been achieved in other fields.

Safer To Live In Canada

TORONTO It is nearly one-third safer to live in Canada than in the United States Lloyd A. Blanchard of the General Safety Council, Washington said at the accidental death rate in the U.S. is 74.8 per 100,000 population and in Canada 56.6.

Industrial fatalities in Canada have been reduced from the annual average of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association but industrial injuries had increased.

Mines and railways were still the most dangerous places to be, safety experts said, as 1,700 accidentally killed met death in accidents of this job. About 55 per cent of all-job fatalities happen in both. Chances were two to one against of an industrial worker being injured on the job than in a factory.

In the factory and in the home "poor housekeeping was the cause of most accidents, he said.

ARTIFICIAL RESPERATION: Prone Method

Some injuries such as electric shock, drowning' gas poisoning and choking interfere with breathing and may cause asphyxiation, unless normal breathing is promptly restored. Artificial respiration should be restored to bring this about, but remember, SEND FOR A DOCTOR IMMEDIATELY.

Lay the patient prone, (face down), the head "downhill" if possible, with one arm extended directly overhead, and the other arm bent at the elbow to form a resting place for head, so that nose and mouth are free for breathing.

Kneel, straddling the patient's thighs, with the palms of the hands on the small of the back, and fingers resting on the ribs, the little finger just touching the lowest rib, and the fingers extended straight down.

With arms held straight, swing forward slowly bringing the weight of the body gradually upon the patient, so that the shoulder in this position is directly over the heel of the hand at the end of the forward swing. Do not bend elbows. Then immediately swing backward, so as to remove the pressure completely. After two seconds, repeat the pressure and release, the complete swing forward and backward to take four or five seconds, or 12 to 15 times a minute. Continue without interruption until the patient breathes naturally.

Patients have been revived after as long as four hours or more by this method. Keep up the artificial respiration and do not allow patient, even if he starts to breathe naturally, to stand or sit up. Keep patient warm and if doctor has not arrived by the time the patient has revived, give light stimulants, 1 teaspoon of aromatic spirits of ammonia in a small glass of water, or hot drink of coffee or tea. Watch patient to see that normal breathing continues, and if natural breathing stops, begin artificial respiration again. If necessary, to change operator, the change should be made without losing the rhythm of respiration.

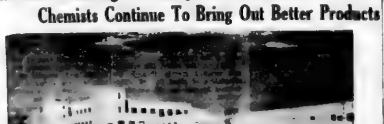
Canadians Becoming Extremely Paint Conscious
Chemists Continue To Bring Out Better Products



Canadians will spend more than $70,000,000 on paint this year. Here we see the newest addition to Canada's paint industry—a $2,000,000 enamel plant recently opened in Leaside, Ontario, by Imperial Oil Limited. It ranks as one of the most modern plants on the continent.

Be Loaded Films Together

CANADIANS are becoming extremely paint conscious. Last year's paint sales set an all-time high of $70,000,000 and this total is expected to be topped as paint manufacturers report a record first half sales volume. These almost triple the $25,000,000 expenditure in 1926, when some 50 years of progress were commemorated. Today there are 140 Canadian factories that paint has become a big business in the country.

One of the most significant advances in Canada's expanding paint industry is the new Acadia one enamel finish recently opened in York Township on the outskirts of east suburban Toronto. The plant carries on the latest scientific developments and embodies many features new to the industry on this continent.

Enamel finished here will be seen on many new Imperial automobiles, as well as on refrigerators made by Canada's leading kitchen cabinet and household appliances.

The process of manufacturing and finishing finds Acadia far ery from that of 1917 when finishes used on motor cars were chiefly slow-drying coach japans and a small. Many coats were necessary for a complete job. Such finishing was the worst stumbling block to mass production of the motor car.

Resin Developed

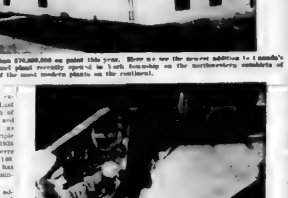
In 1921 a big development in synthetic resins was developed which permitted a fast drying lacquer finish on automobiles. Overnight the time required to paint motor cars was cut in half. Two weeks to two days! Production methods were still not satisfied. Five years later there came out with the first synthetic resin enamels of importance which established phenol-formaldehyde resins. During the same period



A ripping pattern is traced by the stream of enamel as it emerges from the spinning rolls of a five-roll mill, one of the several types used for grinding paint in modern plants. Enamel mill stones are still employed for this work, but are becoming obsolete with the advent of high speed machinery.

another synthetics, resin was developed using as base materials glycerine and phthalic anhydride a coal tar derivative. This was the origin of the resins now being made at the York Township paint plant.

In modern resin making the process is entirely mechanized and invisible. Oils, glycerine and phthalic anhydride are poured into 1,000-gallon stainless steel kettles and the mixture heated by a high-temperature vapor until ingredients are chemically combined. A robot control panel shows exactly what is happening inside the kettles.

During cooling, all air is expelled from the system and is replaced by inert gas to eliminate any danger of fire. When the batch is fully reacted it is pumped into a thinning tank where solvents are added. It is then forced through a filter and pumped to 1,500-gallon storage tanks in the enamel building.

Equipment and control instruments in the resin building permit the co-ordination of the entire resin manufacturing process from coal tar to finish—a periods in the production era in industry.

Ingredients used in making enamel consist of pigments, solvents and resins. Pigments give permanent color and hiding power. Resins provide the film forming properties. Solvents add fluidity and spraying qualities.

The process starts on the third floor of the plant. Here in the pebble mill are found the ingredients on the way to the remainder of the resin and other ingredients collect on the five-roll mill, resin and pigments are first mixed into a paste in a mixing tank, then dropped through pipes to the roll mill on the second floor. Here the paste is ground by the steel rolls.

The enamel may also be ground in a battery of ball mills suspended from the ceiling of the second floor. These are large drums partially filled with 4-inch steel balls. When the drum rotates, the sliding action and cascading of the balls grind the enamel to a fine texture. ## Chilling Of Chicks Causes Deaths

Chilling is a frequent cause of death among baby chicks and any precaution that can be taken to prevent such a happening are essential. Overheat with too much heat may result in the loss of an entire brood of chicks. The effects of chilling appear suddenly with diarrhoea, loss of appetite being the first symptoms.

Overheating is the result of placing the chicks too near the stove or in the start it is probably that the brooder stove be hit and kept going for about three days before the chicks are put in. This drives out the cold and dampness, warms the brooder and gives the chicks a nice, comfortable place to live.

The brooder house should be large enough to provide one square foot of floor space for every two or three chicks, but by the time they are two weeks old it won't be any too much. An unusually large floor space makes it possible for the chicks to move to the coolest or best spot in the house and to return to the source of heat as they wish. This hardens the chicks and allows for normal and healthy growth of feathers.

A covering of cardboard or similar material about a foot high and a foot away from the brooder is desirable for the first few days. This will prevent the chicks from straining away from the heat and getting chilled, and will keep them from crowding into a corner. Crowding whether in a corner or near the heat, is all responsible for loss. A guard should be moved a little farther away from the brooder each day until the end of the first week or so, when it can be removed. Before the guard is removed, however it is desirable to round off the corners of the pen to prevent the chicks from crowding into them with the possibility of suffocating.

The action of the chicks is a good guide to temperature. If they pant and their wings, and scatter as far away from the source of heat as possible they are too hot. When they are too cold, they crowd together and chirp loudly. If the birds are distributed evenly about the edge of the canopy they are apparently comfortable. A temperature of about 90 degrees F is most required at first, and this should be lowered gradually after a few days.

Don't make the mistake of wearing a short slip with your new, long dress. It's sure to spoil the "set" of the short.

A full gathered or gored skirt in solid-colored silk, linen or lightweight wool teamed up with the blouse of your favorite, but now dated print dress, will give it a new lease of fashion for spring wear.

Pressure-cooker gauges on the canner need to be tested each year for safety's sake. Be sure to have yours tested this spring before doing any canning.

The atmosphere established by thoughtful selection of perfume may be destroyed if an evening scent is carelessly dashed over a daytime scent. To retain its greatest effectiveness, perfume should be applied only to clean skin.

WATCH YOUR PROTEINS

Do you know that serious protein deficiency may result in retarded growth susceptibility to infection, tiredness dullness, poor condition of hair and skin, and other ailments?

Well, it is true and Single Service News reports that the Michigan Department of Health which has made an extensive study of the role played in the important food component, protein, that close attention be paid to the diet in order to insure the value of the daily protein required.

The protein requirements for each age group are given as follows. Children under three years need 16 grams daily. The requirement for early preteens is 70 grams at ten years of age, and 90 grams at fifteen years. Starting with the teens it has been found that there is a difference in protein requirement by later age groups according to sex.

Boy's Requirements

Girls from sixteen to twenty require 75 grams daily, but boys at that stage require 100. After the eighteenth year women require 80 grams daily and men about 70 grams. These figures should be kept in mind menus one must bear these figures in mind, and relate the size and type of the boy or girl to the groups being fed.

The following chart prepared by the Michigan Department of Health indicates the amount of protein supplied by an average serving of the foods normally forming part of the diet:

|---|---|
| One-half pint milk | 8 grams |
| One egg | 6 grams |
| One ounce (dry weight) of cheese | 7 grams |
| One fourth pound serving meat, fish, poultry | 21 grams |
| Luncheon meat | 21 grams |
| One-half cup serving vegetables | 1 gram |
| One medium (three ounce) potato | 2 grams |
| One slice bread | 2 grams |
| One cup cereal | 4 grams |
| One tablespoon peanut butter | 4 grams |
| One cup cooked navy beans | 12 grams |
| One-half cup cooked soy-bean | 11 grams |

Science Discovers New Drug For Hay Fever Sufferers

NEW YORK.—Science has three drugs to aid hay fever victims this year.

The newest of these is antihistamine, which in recent tests has shown to have fewer bad side-effects than the other two—benzedrine and pyrrhalamine.

Dr. Martin S. Dresher, Jr., a fellow at the Mayo Foundation, reporting in the current issue of the Annals of Internal Medicine, official publication of the American College of Physicians, reported on testing the three drugs at the Umatilla Ordnance Depot, Oregon.

There, he said, the situation was particularly favorable for the appearance of hay-fever, asthma, and various symptoms of allergic manifestations, as the depot is located on a large plateau of sand and desert vegetation and because of the continuous activity of the wind, pollens, dust and animal emanations are widely disseminated throughout the country-side.

He reported that the patients under study were subjected to natural laborers at the depot, or civilians living in the area. About 170 persons participated in the test, the average time being 30 days.

He found that benadryl and pyrrhamine both were more potent than antihistamine, but that each had disadvantages in that they caused drowsiness. He found that antihistamine, while a weak agent against the so-called histamine fraction of the weed pollen, was more effective in treating hay fever, ragweed pollen and the like.

Antihistamine, he reported, has an extraordinarily wide safety factor, appears to prevent relapses in hayfever and also ruptures due to hypersensitivity.

Dr. Kleckner said that indiscriminate use of benzedrine, pyrrhenamine and antihistan "should be discouraged because of the severe side effects encountered, particularly with benadryl and pyrrhenamine." He said that further studies of all the drugs should be made.

Hay fever season in Canada is divided into three parts—spring, summer and fall.

CANADA HEADS MOST ATTRACTIVE STAMP

NEW YORK.—The world's most beautiful postage stamp is the Canada 1851 twelve cent dark blue issued in 1929 and depicting the schooner "Bluenose", a group of 60 well-known American philatelic experts have decided after meeting in New York to pick out the best from 50 specimens submitted to them.

Canada has produced many excellent designs but the "Bluenose" stamp has been ruled the most beautiful on more than one occasion by philatelic societies.

Surface Appearances Are Often Deceptive

CHICAGO.—Nobody knows anyone else's troubles says Sydney J. Harris, famous columnist. "But you don't realize when you're young and filled with your own personal perplexities.

"I spoke to a group of vets the other day, who were worried about their future. They have a right to be worried, too. But they also seemed to think that trouble was exclusively theirs.

"God gives and God takes away. There is no balancing of the books. The richest man I know is desperately unhappy — and the old gag about money making the unhappiness endurable is the bunk. The trouble he's got, money can't cure.

"Life is a give-and-twenty, and preoccupied with ourselves, we tend to accept surface appearances. We look at the family across the street, so happy, so prosperous, so well-adjusted, and a twinge of envy runs through us. Life is unfair, we philosophize in our callow way.

But if life is unfair, it spreads out the unfairness pretty evenly.

I know how the public envies a Clark Gable and I know the troubled people of my acquaintance. Yet the public is true to envying them. There is no more happiness in the Pumpkin Patch than at the corner drugstore, and probably less. Too often, misery in the price-tag that goes with success and influence. Nobody sells Faust found out, has to be paid for.

HIGHER PRICES BOOSTED DAIRY PRODUCTS INCOME

OTTAWA.—Farm income from the sale of dairy products in February is estimated at $12,982,000 compared with $13,494,000 in February last year, a decrease of $512,000, it was reported.

Higher prices were largely responsible for the advance, the weighted average price being 1.6 cent per pound of milk compared with $2.53 in February, 1947.

FRENCH SURGEON GOT DIVORCE WITHOUT FUSS

The biggest fee in medical history was paid to the French surgeon Jean Petit by the Electer of Saxony, Augustus the Strong. Petit performed an operation which cured him in eleven minutes. He received a fee of 10,000 florins, travelling expenses of 1,000 thalers, a diamond ring, several other valuable presents, and a life annuity of 1,500 thalers. Altogether his fee for the single treatment was the equivalent of $40,000 today.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—
Worth A Broken Jaw
By THOMAS W. TOBIN

IT ISN'T every day that a fellow meets a girl like Mollie Ryan, but when a fellow like Tommy Murphy gets his heart set on a girl like Mol he thugs are bound to happen. And they did.

It was Tom's birthday and all six feet of him was celebrating. Not proudly, you understand, but in a good old Irish way. There had been a few Scotch which Tom had enjoyed a lot he long some of the contenders as was one. But no one was hurt seriously and they all appeared in the nearest taxi as soon as each brawl was over to have a few drops of alcohol and tell each other what a good fighter he was.

Tom was not only big he was friendly. The only time he fought was when he had nothing else to do. His big frame was usually quite full of curly hair which became about as he wanted and shaked amongst the losers. His nose which bore evidence of previous encounters was always ready to take another right cross. But all this changed on this particular birthday and it was all because Mollie Ryan didn't like fighting.

Tom was whaling the daylights out of a longshoreman who wasn't much bigger than he was when the incident happened which changed Tom's life.

There was quite a crowd around watching the bout which was taking place in front of Dugan's. Two of them all the boys were missing out on the fun because they were delegated to watch for the cops. They watched for the cops all right, but kept let Mollie Ryan through. That what changed both the course of a good fight and also the course of an Irishman's life.

Tom had just knocked the longshoreman down for the third time when he heard a woman's voice. It wasn't an unusual thing to hear such as the way it and it.

They should put a stop to this street fighting. Doctor!" and the voice.

When Tom heard it he lurned his head in the direction of the sound. The voice filled his every faculty. It was beautiful and so was she was out and lovely, and so was she. He had never heard a voice so real and lovely in all his life. "Hello, beautiful—" he started to say, and then he blew fell.

It seems the longshoreman recovered from the last bout in the jaw, and he wasn't bothered by peaceful girls with beautiful voices. So he got wisdom over and let one fly at Tom's busted-up profile. And that did it. Tom folded up like a jack-knife a tornado.

Months later, Tom with up in his new-really longer than that, but it didn't bother Tom any because he woke up in heaven to Mollie's voice. As he opened his eyes Tom looked into the eyes of an angel. Funny, they looked just like those of the girl he had seen for the first time only a month before. She had her arm under his head and seemed to be talking to someone else. Doctor," she said, "do you think he'll live?"

Oh, he'll be all right, nothing serious answered a masculine voice.

Tom tried to rise up and tell the world that beautiful creature's love, that it was his birthday and he was all right. But he couldn't rise up and he couldn't speak only

Then he realized he was moving and that he was moved around he noticed that he was stretched out on the rear seat of a limousine and the voice of the girl were acting on the extra seats. Again he tried to speak but only managed to groan.

Poor fellow, he has a broken jaw and mouth painful said the cool voice and a soft hand touching him his forehead. Never give him another drink, Doctor, don't you think so?

The doctor thought and soon Tom was here to painless sleep.

When Tom woke again he was in an immense bed with posts on each corner. He was alone, but not for long. It was daylight, and as he tried to peer out of the curtained window he heard a door open. It was the girl again. Behind her stood a nurse who had charge of Tom's case.

Mollie Ryan, Tom's voice was a soft husky whisper. Tom has forbade Doctor gives him another drink. Doctor

BEE LORE

(By A. H. Bowler, President)

Our local Beekeepers Assn. has lost it's Secretary, in Mr. Wright, our beekeepers have had a capable and courteous Secretary who was always willing to assist even the new beginner to get off to a start in this lucrative though at times, disappointing occupation. We will be greatly missed and all our beekeepers wish him well in his new undertaking. You can't keep a good man down.

Mr. Hamilton, Pool Elevator Agent, has consented to act as Secretary pro tem, until the rush of the spring work is over and we have the time to arrange a successor.

The past week has been ideal for the bees. Bee that they have water handy, and examine your hives to make sure the queen is doing her work properly.

PERSONAL STUFF

— By A. W. E. —

I have heard via the C. B. C. that they (the CBC) are going to allow radio stations in Canada to broadcast the prize of articles which are advertised over the air. In other words the CBC has at last seen fit to allow something to come over the air waves which should have been coming in years ago. Almost the same arguments could be put in with regard to television. For the long a period now the CBC has had too much control over the development of television. Their action have retarded this field of endeavor for years, and when at last the field becomes opened to the small people Canada will lag far behind most of the more enlightened countries. In England television has been given to the people for some time, and in the land in the south of us this new entertainment is enjoyed today by thousands. Yet, in Canada we are denied this right through the CBC and its ritidish stand that the time is not ripe. With the CBC constituted as it is today, the people of this country will never enjoy the free class of radio entertainment that they just right. It is our opinion that Mr. McKenzie King will take the CBC with him into retirement come August.

Indications last fall were that the local acreage this year would be somewhat greater than in 1947, but as a result of the late season, it is said that not that find just the case will be the case. Instead there will be an increased acreage sown in 1948 to be harvested in 1949. This adds summarizes which will interest us, as usual, to fall rye.

I notice that little seeding has been done except in District number 1 which is in the southern most portion of the province. This year the seeding was not general until about May 20th, the time when most other years such work is finished. However, this will be offset somewhat by the fact that the season is starting off done lucky, with many big outfits being used on a 24-hour schedule

I have seen some of the fall rye produced by late seeding and this year looks like another one. We never know. If the rains come, and the frost doesn't, if the sun shines a the hail fails to appear, we may a good average 1948 crop.

NEWS FROM THE WHEAT POOL

Pool Reserve Purchase

The Alberta Wheat Pool has mailed cheques to a value of $602,501.84, covering the purchase of Pool reserves from the estates of deceased Pool members who attained the age of 75 years as at Dec. 31, 1947.

In recent months the Alberta Pool has also redeemed, to the value of $50,731.39 from members who had passed their 65th birthday on December 31, 1947, and who had ceased to have any interest in grain producing land.

The total payment in redeeming all categories of reserves during the current year was $653,583.23. The reserves then redeemed were contributed by the membership between the years of 1923 and 1938.

Reserves are purchased on one hundred cents on the dollar. They will be re-issued in the form of patronage dividends to the patrons of Alberta Pool Elevators

Coarse Grains Adjustment Payment

The Alberta Pool mailed cheques totalling approximately $520,000 to farmers who delivered oats and barley between August 1 and October 31, 1947. The payment was 14½c a bushel on barley and 10½c on oats.

From August 1 to October 31 of last year the federal government maintained ceiling prices of 65c a bushel for oats and 85c a bushel for barley, basis Fort William. Farmers who delivered those grains in that period had to accept these prices. On October 31st the ceilings were removed and prices advanced sharply, creating an unfair situation to those who delivered oats and barley earlier.

This matter was discussed at the annual meeting of the Alberta Wheat Pool held last November, and a decision was reached to refund certain earnings on the volume of oats and barley delivered prior to October 31st to the farmers who had made such deliveries.

Grain producers can increase their Pool reserve holdings by patronizing Alberta Pool Elevators. Alberta Pool reserves are valuable property. Make this year a "Pool Elevator Year".

LOUGHEED SPORTS

The annual May 24th sports and ball tourneys at Lougheed last Monday drew one of the largest crowds this scribe has seen there for quite a few years. With fine weather prevailing throughout the entire day, the various events were run off fairly well on schedule. A large crowd saw the picture show and an over flow throng of merry makers took in the big dance at night.

The Strome girls softball team maintained a steady winning streak, when they won all with top honors. Sedgewick's younger boys took the ball honors in their division, with Galahad taking senior awards.

In baseball, with Lougheed, Killam, Wyoming and Alliance sufficient initial issues, the battle is coming down the home stretch found Forestburg and Sedgewick teamed up in the final game. Forestburg took the encounter to wind up as the undisputed champions of the day.

The kiddies had a fine time at th racing grounds and the tug-of-war was well looked after with two refreshment booths on the grounds.

Climatic and weather conditions are the greatest single factor affecting farmer's annual success. Certainly no doubt about it this spring.

This farm labor situation is coming a far deeper groove in our affairs than we are apt to admit. On entire Canada we have a shortage of labor. During the last few days we have visited farmers in the Eastern part of the D.A. district. In interviews with farmers, it is very much evident, in some cases, that entire farm enterprises is governed by the labor situation. In some instances practices adopted are even detrimental to the best soil management farming. To improve the situation there is need for clear-cut thinking and planning among farmers, laborers and labor agencies.

Production and Costs Of Spraying

The total production has a very direct relation to the cost of producing each hundred pounds of milk and pound of butterfat.

"Advance Harmony Pete" a pure bred Holstein cow has recently completed a 365 day record on 2X milking as a nine-year-old of 22,000 lbs of milk, 1,350 fat, with a fat 2.98 percent test. This is the second highest butterfat record ever made in 2X milking, and the third highest milk record, and is the highest record for both milk and fat made in Canada during 1947.

Funds For Education

WHETHER EDUCATION SHOULD BE under the control of the individual province or under the control of the federal government is a question which is frequently discussed by the press, the government, and the people of Canada. Because there are advantages and disadvantages to both sides of the question, and all the influence of the climate and the geography of the land on the interests and occupations of the people, it is clear that there would be many reasons why each province might be capable of dealing most wisely with its own educational problems. On the other hand, another, with its own educational standards. Another reason for uniform curriculum, and the free movement of teachers from province to province, would undoubtedly promote national unity, and would overcome the difficulties which some areas when pupils leave from one province to another, which has different educational standards. Another reason is when Federal control might prove beneficial is that of school finance which frequently constitutes problems to local educational authorities.

Problems Are Pointed Out

[illegible] Canadian Teachers Federation in the letter it was stated that the Federal Government should bear a share of education [illegible] provinces cannot afford to develop, or raise sufficient revenue to meet the increased cost of educational facilities. To raise the necessary funds, property, personal income and corporation taxes would be increased to the limit. Small incomes [illegible] which education is financed, the cost per pupil is low, and the quality of education is poor. The subject is too far-reaching to be discussed in detail in a single editorial. The subject is further discussed at a conference to be held in the Canadian Teachers Federation at Ottawa this summer.

Present System Is Inadequate

As an investment among our economic resources education is one of the most important. Provincial governments have brought enormous advantages to many parts of the country. Recently, governments have increased their expenditures for education, and [illegible] the amount of funds. These increases are rising more rapidly than the increases in the expenditures of governments for other purposes, and in the expansion of buildings and equipment, teaching aids and materials. Following the close of the war, rising costs of construction, and [illegible] which will increase the demands that have to be met. It is [illegible] that governments will be compelled to give support to a national [illegible] education. It is a matter of concern to all [illegible] of the teachers' organizations, but [illegible] all who are interested in the welfare of education in Canada.

Prestige Of R.C.M.P. Regarded As Highest Of Police Forces

By Stanley G Matthews B.A., in Montreal Daily Star

PRESTIGE of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police is probably higher than that of any other police force in the world. It enjoys the esteem and its respect of all governing groups as an efficient, honorable and fair organization. It is famed of course for always getting its man but the days when the force Mounted could bring in a desperado with hardship on every ordeal they ever existed. For this it now has police that has conquered and of the North West Mounted Police that were borne to quelling the Riel rebellion and in guarding Canada's precious northland against the wild men.

It is a force that uses aeroplanes and motor cycles and automobiles but mule be between 21 and 20 years of age and must be unmarried during the period of training. They must meet certain standards of physical fitness and must be of good character. Applicants are given a thorough examination by a medical officer. Better Living on the Prairie Farm
Agriculture's great need today is better living. Better living starting in each home is a well-planned livelihood at all seasons of the year, and the proper living. In the home better living means a more comfortable environment at all times.
Better living means an ever increasing desire to improve the environment at all times.
Better living means a desire to make the home more attractive, more convenient and more healthful.
Better living means a desire to give a better return on the labor and money invested.
Better living means a desire for more leisure time for reading, for visiting with friends and neighbors, for attending community activities and for taking part in them.
Better living means a desire to have a high quality product to sell.
Recently a Better Rural Homes Survey was conducted in a number of districts in Canada. The purpose of the survey was to find out what people in rural districts thought about better living. Information was collected from the people themselves in their own homes. Here are a few of the things they said:
Better living means better health.
Better living means better food.
Better living means better clothing.
Better living means better recreation.
Better living means better home-building.

It was with regret that the people of Sedgewick and district learned of the death at Red Deer on Sunday, May 23rd of Mary Ellen Sharpe, perhaps better remembered here as Mrs. W.J. ### PERSONAL STUFF

— By A. W. E. —

It would seem that floods and the aftermath of floods is still very much in the news. Just around to television served by the newspaper of course, the danger of any flooding condition is long since past, but in other sections of Alberta and Canada the threat is now at its peak in B.C. and more especially in and around Kimberley the scene of the floods has been of wide interest to our readers, as we have many of our former residents and there who are suffering the loss and work which accompany such conditions. We understand that a number of the several people from here were domiciled, was swept away by the flood, 25 years.

This week I was in receipt of a letter from Stan Rooney of Winnipeg and it brought back to my mind the days of quite a time ago when this same called baseball was played in those parts as the game was really intended to be played. Those were the times when you had to have a wealth of baseball ability to even catch a place on a team; days when an argument total of a game between starters started the management on a hunt for baseball talent that knew how to play. The first baseball team my mind each names as: Sig Hoodrichson, Dutch Vogt, Slim Callahan Billy Anderson, Andrew Haynes, Don Conklin, Ludger Lewis, Leroy Goldsworthy, Bunky Lewis and Bob Turner, first catcher Henderson, the guy with the whiskers and outing tobacco. In those days they neither was glad to be around just to carry the bats.

Of course we do not mean to say that in those days the boys never made an error. Sure they did. Sim in the time in Killam when pitcher Bill Strachan threw the first ball sent the ball clean over the catching rink; on the time when Bill Muzzy made several with the bases loaded and the time when Bill Reed threw home and caused the ball clear over the ball stop. Yes, many things happened. I was there for two of them and Bill tells the last one on himself.

It seems hard nowadays to find players who are naturals for certain positions. Take the pitcher's box and each head first catcher It is a long cry from baseball to today, but he is the right guy for the right position for that I mention You just throw the ball and that's that. Not from fancy stretched every whichway and ends up with the horsehide. Yes baseball has changed since the days of Ed Mattison, Harold Stott, Gene Iriele [illegible] et al

On your chart of future dates in the world of sport, mark the following for future reference Strome Irma and Killam Sports on the 30th of June; Hardisty Sports on Baseball on June 16th Killam Star Path and Calahoo Sports on June 23rd and Sedgewick Sports July 1st

According to the Wainwright Star it was only the prompt action of four boys which kept a large rat from escaping into the country? The most frequent method of travel for these rodents is by C.P.R. boxcar from provinces where they have been quite troublesome. We in Alberta are free from this menace and it is up to us to see that we remain so. We are asked to keep a watchful eye and to have no hesitation in destroying any such animals should you ever see one.

I have been asked what I mean of this "New Look" that we are being purchased from bank these days The subject is being was of any long discussion, all I can say that has too much "face" and not enough "look".

Our personal opinion of course.

District Ag's. Weekly Corner

(By W. A. Mosley, District Ag.)

This spring we have experienced a flood in this district when it broke back to our mind some of the reports in the newspapers about the other areas What can be done to prevent the freqs ency and the occurrence of such conditions in the future?

W. A. Mosley

As the Province becomes more and thickly populated and certain areas become deforested, the problem of serious floods will be increased Here are some suggestions which should mark out the areas which have been flooded this should also include adjacent areas that may be flooded in the future.

Some thought should be given to conserving land into river beds, and the removal of farm buildings from other land is dyking worthwhile improvements in drainage bypass It is requested that all people concerned in this matter should thus it over, and we would like to get suggestions and letters as to what can or should be done.

Chemical Weed Control

The poke is running high about Chemical Weed Control. An enormous entertaining farmers in each community are going to try it. Also there are a few other men who have made up their minds against it. In any case Chemical Weed Control is here and it is going to be used. Here are some of the problems involved in using it. How can we be sure that the machine or tractor is traveling at exactly 4 or 5 miles per hour? This is an important factor. Unless you are spraying a field half a mile long, the speed is quite difficult to measure. If a new machine is set up it is very important that all the piping and the connections be thoroughly cleaned before nozzles are put on the machine. Your farmer to do this will necessitate at least half a day of work in cleaning out the nozzles Should you need to do this the best for movement from here to place, it should be with cloth and tied securely so that the dust does not get into the pipes Also the nozzles should be cleaned with cloth for best trips. Brengge five of here clean with cloth the water on your farm to, it must be strained. For this purpose a lens

Canada's National Parks

ONE OF CANADA'S GREATEST ASSETS is the wealth of natural beauty which is to be found in all the provinces. In our many lakes, rivers, forests and mountain ranges there is wealth in the form of natural resources but they also combine to make Canada one of the most beautiful countries in the world. Visitors from other lands are always impressed with the magnificence of the Rocky Mountains, the extent of the Great Lakes the splendor of Niagara Falls, and the richness of our farm lands and forests. In many parts of the country the Dominion government has set aside as one of the finest scenic areas for national parks. In these areas the natural beauties are being preserved, and good roads and other facilities are provided for tourists, making it possible for many thousands of Canadians and visitors from other countries to holiday there each year.

Will Improve Western Parks

It has recently been announced that the Dominion government will spend $7,372,000 on national parks in Canada during the fiscal year 1946-47, and of that sum, more than $5,462,000 will be spent on the parks in Western Canada. While much of this money will be used for extensive improvements to the mountain parks at Banff and Jasper, Alberta, considerable sums have been allocated for work on the Prince Albert National Park in Saskatchewan, where $200,000 is to be spent, and on the Riding Mountain National Park in Manitoba where expenditures will amount to $487,000. Improvements are also to be made in other parks in the West including Fish Island Park in the Williston Lake National Park, and Glacier Park, in Yoho Kootenay and Mount Revelstoke National Parks in British Columbia.

To Encourage Tourist Trade

The improvements to be made in these national parks are a part of the government's plan to encourage American tourists to come to Canada this year and to spend United States dollars on this country. The Canadian Rockies and beauty spots in the Prairie provinces have for many years attracted people from all parts of the United States and no doubt the information that the national parks in these regions are to be further improved will encourage a great many American tourists to visit them this season. The full potentialities of Canada as a tourist land have not yet been fully developed, but in adding improvements to the many fine national parks, a further step is being taken toward making the most of this very valuable asset.

New Method Of Irrigation To Substitute Ditch Method

REGINA A new method of irrigation with the latter ready to be established soon was described to the C. K. Gra. superintendent of water development P.F.R.A. at a meeting of the northern Saskatchewan branch of the Irrigation Farmers Association.

This method—a substitute for the ditches which irrigation engineers consider a waste of power and land—is called the "Big Gun." It is a machine capable of throwing water as far as 150 feet and of covering a 60-foot strip each side of the pipe. The method is already being used in the United States and Mr. Gra.

The system is also available in Canada but is not generally used. Some of the reasons are high cost of the machine, the water available for irrigation purposes and the danger of soil drifting, although the latter is not considered a serious drawback.

Cost of the equipment was also mentioned as a drawback to the use of the system. The machine costs $1,000 and the pipe $1,000 for each 1,000 feet. Power is also a factor. The machine requires 10 horsepower for each 1,000 feet of pipe. The method is already being used in the United States and Mr. Gra.

GARDEN NOTES

Best protection against disease and pests is a healthy garden grown in good fertile soil. Most weeds and unhealthy crops are the things harmful to man and still is big money, and a fair price are huge with the public. Many Poison will control them. The new bugs have come into the area and the plant with other Two must be attacked with a spray that will both disease and insect pests. Bordeaux mixture is the old reliable and standard fungicide for the control of blackish spots of tomatoes, celery and lettuce. Dusting with sulphur are used in this case. One or two good treatment will be enough, but in things like that of Peppers and potato bugs which are eaten, a stiff application of poison is necessary to kill the young ones as they appear. Most diseases have their potency in time as a fresh supply of fresh poison is necessary.

Later Care

Other plants I am running about the early summer care the garden should need will be thinning weeding and cultivation. If the soil is very dry it is advisable to water. With the latter job one should bear in mind that one good soaking, whether with sprinkler, flooding or hose is worth a dozen sprinklings. A little chemical fertilizer applied carefully according to directions is also a good thing at this time. It will bring about growth and with vegetables will increase production. When the best is after sets on it is as well to cut down grass too frequently and the rest as short. This protects roots from the burning sun.

There is nothing quite like the thrill of being able to boast to a neighbor that your flowers or vegetables are days ahead of his. And there is also some solid satisfaction in having good and healthful things from the garden long after those next door are done. Perhaps the commonest mistakes of all amateur gardeners are planting too soon and slapping too soon.

With vegetables, especially most varieties should be sown at least three times, and many things like beets, carrots, peas, green onions, radish can be planted regularly up to July 1st. This will keep a fairly supply of the freshest vegetables coming along.

Canada's Pickled Horseneat Rare Delicacy In Europe

L.-Leaning The Pull of pickled meat here are F. K. Ferguson, Lacombe, Alta., and C. Shirriff, Swift Current, Sask., newly appointed directors of the Horse Co-Operative Marketing Association, which has plants in Swift Current and Fleischer.

Her object was on display at a recent meeting of the Horse Co-Operative Marketing Association in Swift Current Sask. It looked for all the world like a huge can of beef before the contents had been cooked up with the humble sausage family.

But as the opening season of the annual meeting dragged on delegates who had hesitated curls began to eye the bologna-like exhibit with a hungry eye. In order to prevent a riot, the chairman explained that the "thing" simply wasn't edible in its present form.

Mare Industry

It was a pail of pickled horsemeat destined eventually for Belgium or Holland, to which country it is considered a rare delicacy. Some fifty tons of mincing and plants of smoking would be necessary before it could be eaten, but the chairman assured delegates it was a lucky morsel after it was properly prepared.

The plant was originally set up to rid the prairies of surplus horses which were eating up range grass, and depriving other more profitable types of livestock of a decent living, reported that 115,000 unwanted horses had been rounded pickled and otherwise disposed of.

Canada Is Third Among World's Seller Of Goods--Fourth In Buying

(By The Canadian Press)

Canada is third among the world's banks of goods, following the United States and the United Kingdom and the 1 ith among the buyers following close two countries and France.

This compares with her position of fifth among exporters and eighth among importers in 1938.

Figures of this sort are as old a story to Canadians up there now the top for a long time so old that they may be inclined to forget what they mean.

Some day Canadians have a sense of inferiority, which others deny vigorously, but if they have it is because they are placing in such a big league. They are being expected as full equals in competition with the large populations of the United States and the United Kingdom. They can be first per capita in many things, but the very words per capita have a sound of the hazy realms of economics.

However, it isn't hazy economics that's home. 12,000,000 Canadians are setting up marks undreamed of by any similar number of people. True, in case they should think too much of themselves, they are 12,000,000 people with the good fortune of having a half-continent and its resources at their disposal.

Export Surpluses

Large export surpluses of a growing number of staple commodities find, furs, wheat, lumber, newsprint gold and base metals — have been treated for capital goods necessary to develop the economy.

However The growth of Canadian exports reflects the development from an economy based largely on wheat to one with a much greater variety and a high degree of industrialism.

In 1913 farm products, fish and furs made up nearly two-thirds of the value of Canada's exports, roughly $200,000,000 of a total of $400,000,000.

By 1947 though the group had increased in value to nearly $1,000,000,000 it constituted only a little over a third of all exports. Wood products and minerals, on the other hand, as a result of the development between two wars, made up almost half of the large 1947 total comparing with less than a fifth of the small figure of 1913.

Manufactured goods also have risen to a position of importance among Canada's exports. In 1947 nearly one-fifth of the total consisted of goods in this group as compared with one-eighth in the interwar period and only about one-fourteenth in 1913.

When spring comes and trees burst forth with the tiny green buds and earthy smell is contagious and we feel somewhat renewed after long winter month It is time then to think of gardens and flowers. The first green patch of lawn creates a thrill in the heart of everyone, young and old alike.

There is much to learn about the new fertilizers on the market. Now to keep that lawn in shape we must of course mow it often. There is a new device designed to clamp onto the mower's guard bar and hold a long strip of abrasive material against the blades as they turn, thus dispensing with the delay of repeated sharpening. You simply continue to mow and blades sharpen themselves at the same time.

We have Lawn Mowers for sale and can service them. Have you seen the handy little canvas rack to be attached to the mower for gathering the grass?

MORE BREAD FOR THE WORLD

because Massey-Harris Combines enable one man in one day, to harvest wheat for 53,000 loaves

Yes, more food is available for the world today when its need is desperate, because Canadian farmers with only a two-thirds increase in numbers over 1900, are growing 4½ times as much grain, producing 3½ times as much milk, feeding twice as many cattle and 2½ times as many hogs, raising 3 times as many chickens; because they are providing food for 2½ times as many people in Canada and exporting 30 times as much wheat and 10 times as much flour.

Farmers are doing it because individually they produce more today than in 1900, but it means hard work. And there is no harder working group of people in the world than the Canadian farmers. But hard work alone would not be enough to accomplish such results. They do it by a combination of hard work and modern machines.

Typical of the great, efficiency-increasing machinery of the farm today is the Self-Propelled Combine, pictured above, which Massey-Harris first introduced in 1939. With this machine, one man can cut and thresh enough wheat in one day to make 53,000 loaves of bread.

Modern farm machinery has increased the productive capacity of Canadian agriculture to where it provides an abundant surplus for the needs of those in other lands, and makes an important contribution to Canada's great export trade.

Similarly Massey-Harris machines are helping to increase farm production in 72 countries of 6 continents.

STREPTOMYCIN AND TUBERCULOSIS

The use of streptomycin in the cases of high hopes of the treatment of tuberculosis, the Canadian Medical Association Journal comments editorially in a recent issue.

As in the case with all new remedies sometime is required for the appraisal of its value," the editorial says, and there are certain aspects in this case both of the remedy and the disease, which make the appraisal peculiarly difficult."

Referring to a recent survey on the subject by the Council of Pharmacy and Chemistry of the American Medical Association, which was reported in the Canadian Journal states that the conclusion to be drawn from the work so far is that definitive conclusion of the effects of streptomycin.

It had a favorable effect on most progressive or stationary cases, but in many it seems, the effect began rapidly and in the first day to, days, the editorial states. "Rarely did it produce a cure. Soon the relapse occurred and resistance to some times even whilst treatment was going on.

The main value of streptomycin in pulmonary tuberculosis appears to be as an adjunct to other measures, especially in certain acute phases in preparing for surgical measures. It should not be used in minimal cases.

Concerning the value of streptomycin in treatment of the disease in other parts of the body, the Journal says that in tuberculous sinuses "the effects have been strikingly favorable," and that perhaps the type of disease which responds most satisfactorily in this ulcerative form of tuberculosis and laryngeal tuberculosis.

Miliary tuberculosis, acute generalized tuberculosis, sinus and to be amenable to streptomycin treatment and it is felt that its mortality will be definitely lowered.

The disadvantages of streptomycin are also stated in tuberculosis because of length of the time it has to be used," the Journal editorial comments, adding that there is more toxic reaction.

The Journal says, however, that the whole subject is receiving intensive study and the outlook is very well summed up in the concluding sentence of the Journal of the American Medical Association's report.

"The slight and not entirely adverse results produced now by streptomycin in a limited section of the tuberculous may be replaced by a stronger instrument or a new pair of legs for the entire group."

Farm Machinery Imported From U.S.

OTTAWA — There are no prohibitions, restrictions or regulations forbidding or limiting the import of either new or used farm machinery from the United States into Canada, officials of the customs prices and trade board stated. The only way in which such imports might be affected would be by a revision of the Canadian tariff but imposing duties on farm machinery now imported free of customs and excise taxes.

These statements were made with reference to complaints that frequence. U.S. machinery agents are importing and advertising U.S. made farm machinery at prices high above the Canadian manufacturers' list prices. There have been a ban on imports of used machinery from the U.S. even during the war.

The outcry has arisen from two sources — Canadian manufacturers and the Canadian revenue department which sees Canada's precious supply of U.S. dollars being depleted by purchases of U.S. machinery which they claim that needs Canada. For the two months of January and February, 1946, nearly $20,000,000 of such U.S. farm machinery was imported against about $12,500,000 in the same period of 1946 and nearly about $2,000,000 in January and February, 1946.

HOME-BUILT POWER SAW

Those dimensions show the size of the motor and power saw in which the depth of cut is adjustable from a trench jack.

By L. W. VAN OENE—

Saskatchewan combines the features necessary for cut-off and rip sawing as well as the conventional stationary blade rip-saw. The carriage on this machine ranges from the base. All the mechanism is carried by the carriage.

The two threaded supplies at the base of the carriage are loosely screwed into the pipe legs and then are bolted to the frame. The threads provide a strong and durable bearing which has no end-play and yet is free and simple to assemble.

At the forward position of the carriage the blade is safely below the table. As it is drawn back by the vertical handle which is made of an old motor bumper jack, the blade begins to come up through the slot in the table. When the carriage is vertical an 8-inch blade will show about 2½ inches above the table.

A 1½ cross-cutting a piece of 2 by 4 on edge is nailed cross-wise of the table and the work placed against this for sawing. For mitre cuts the work piece is fastened to the table at the proper angle. For ripping and rabbeting the blade is set at the proper height by adjusting the threaded handle. A piece of straight board may be tacked on for a fence.

For those without hydro, one of the light weight gas engines could be used for power by strengthening the motor supports. For construction work a saw of this type is invaluable as the builder seldom needs to use a hand-saw, and for cutting studding and rafters it reduces time at least in half and makes more accurate cuts. In addition, any builder, etc., can be cut up quickly for fire wood.

The diagrams will explain the construction of the outfit except for a few things. The front motor is mounted square and rigid by careful bracing. One staple brace on each side, ends and bottom should be enough. All bolts are to be ½ in carriage.

The table can be made of ¾ inch or ⅝ inch veneer or plain lumber, having a slot for the blade. Make the machine narrow enough to go through a 30 inch door

The carriage is made of ¾ inch water pipe screwed together very snugly. Be sure to stuff the upper ends of the long pipes with rags before assembly to make it easy to pour the bearings later. The pipe rectangle is joined together by the union at centre bottom. Keep the horizontal top piece the same length as the union plus the two short nipple supplies at the bottom

The mandrel is ¾ inch diameter with ½ inch right hands threaded on each end and pressed on snugly. The bearings are made of high quality babbit poured inside the pipe rectangle.

To pour the bearings the mandrel is inserted through the assembled pipes at the top and the assembly is turned on its side so the shaft is vertical with the shoulder end down. Then the space between the shaft and the pipe is filled with dry sand up to the bottom of the upper tee. To bring sure the shaft is well centered the space in the upper tee is now filled with molten babbit.

Pull out the shaft, insert from babbited end, turn over the assembly and fill with sand again to the proper height and pour the second bearing. Fill both bearings quite full with babbit to provide a shoulder for end-wise play of about .01 to .02 inch.

The motor wires and extension cord are passed through a hole in the upper tee and bound to the frame. A 1-3 h.p. motor should be used. Pulleys can be of any size needed, one on the saw, with V-belt.

LAUDED BY DUCHESS — "The prettiest girl I've seen in a long time." That's what the Duchess of Windsor said about Margaret Mitchell—Miss Canada of 1940—as shown here. But she didn't know the whole story. Miss Mitchell, 20, is a war bride, complete with baby. She was talking about a baby. Now a student at the Academy of Radio Broadcasting in Montreal, attending music and dramatic classes, she is under a scholarship presented in Atlantic City last month. Margaret's athletic prowess also earned her honorable mention in the Miss Canada contest. She is a member of the Toronto Argonauts Rowing Club and a champion oarswoman, occupying the No. 5 seat. When the concert came to a close, the stand collapsed, the door of the duke's car refused to get started. As the two to get a chance, smiled at Margaret and whispered something to her companion. "Why don't you tell her that 'Prince' is the Frenchman for 'Duke'?" the Duchess suggested. So took Margaret by the elbow and said: "Look, old girl, you've the prettiest girl she's seen in a long, long time.

TWENTY-THREE STUDENTS GRADUATE FROM CENTRAL

Standing before a back-ground of contrasting decorations centred by a large crest bearing the words "Central High School", twenty-three young students received their diplomas from Principal C.E. Bickney, at the 1948 Graduation Exercises held last Tuesday evening, June 1st in the town hall at Sedgewick.

Students and invited guests sat down to a banquet at 6:30 prepared by the Ladies Aid, at which short speeches and musical numbers were enjoyed.

An overflow crowd of admiring parents and friends gathered for the Graduation Exercises later in the evening, where the graduands appeared in long formal gowns and well groomed suits Corsages and individual bouquets were also in evidence, lending a colorful touch to the proceedings.

The Address of Welcome was given by Mr. C. E. Blakeney, Principal of Central High, after which grades 1 and 2 classes rendered a chorus. The Rev. H. E. McClain, stressed in his address, the necessity of each boy and girl going out into the open world with a definite aim or object in mind. Setting a goal and working steadily toward that goal.

Addresses by Trustee T. Clements, who spoke in place of Chairman O. White, and by Dr. Chalmers, Supt., were interspersed with musical numbers by students.

The Valedictory was delivered by Graduand Ernie Davis, and appears in full elsewhere in this issue.

Students receiving diplomas were: Gloria Frasier, Daphne; Ruth White, Killam; Carrice Matheson, Lougheed; Beatrice Bechtel, Elk Island; Margaret Brodie, Killam; Bernice Baker, Dalroy; Gordon Gerow, Killam; Vivian Aitchison, Sedgewick; Jean Arnaud, Lougheed; Audrey Innes, Sedgewick; Francis Bodnar, Strome; Estella Cameron, Elk Island; Adam Mohun, Strome; Thelma Bohun, Strome; Jean Seward, Strome; Leslie Dunn, Lougheed; Earl Lawrence Lougheed; Ernie Davis, Sedgewick; Bob Burch, Sedgewick; Norbert Spahn, Strome; Dougie Wilson, Killam; Murray Tweedie, Killam; Neil Jamieson, Sedgewick.

The Honor Award, presented to the honor student among the list of graduands, went to Earl Lawrence, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Lawrence of Lougheed.

Valedictory
(By Ernie Davis)

We, the graduating class, are about to pack up our books and leave Central. It is not without mixed emotions that we are able to do this. For our friendships, habits and school ties are not easily broken. We have accomplished the task that we set out to do in our growing high school and it is with pride that we fulfill the trust placed in us.

Eight months and young grow by leaps and bounds and we can remember the days when we were timid and bashful. Our first days were filled with trials and tribulations, successes and failures but now that they are events in the past, human nature causes us to bring only the success and the lighter moments to mind. High School was entered with a run ning start and we felt that the task being surmounted all problems of education that had been placed before us up until then, those placed before us in high school certainly would not be too great. However, as time went on and friends were made, cliques began to fall out and leave school, we began to wonder, to ponder if things were really as easy as they seemed, and which of us would be next to go. Now that we have reached the ends of our rows we can see that all they looked mighty hard and difficult. But, as the boards are have often been blamed for our failures, so to them must we credit our success.

As the new phase of our lives is entered, it is with certain misgivings that we look toward the future We are entering the world as adults in our full rights at a time of great difficulties. The trust placed upon us to be here and responsible still seem may prove to be more than equal to our resources and experience. However, we feel that our education is going to help make our chances better for successfully taking our places in the kind of society that we have learned to appreciate here.

For many of us, this year means the end of our formal education From now on we shall be on our own. Some shall have the privilege of going on to higher institutions of learning. But no matter where the circumstances of our lots in life may lead us, we shall remember Central fondly. It is there that we first really realized the intricacies of life and what it could have in store for us.

So, this class of 1948 would like to express sincere thanks to the staff of Central High, to those who have borne with us through the years a our education, and to those who have foresight has made our glimpses in to the wonder of learning possible To those students who shall follow in the fourth graduating class we say that Central is a grand place and hope that you will try to make it even bigger and better, as we would like to feel that we have helped to do.

PERSONAL STUFF

— By A. W. E. —

The Federal budget which was brought down by Hon. Mr. Abbott on May 19th ever tainly aroused very little it any enthusiasm among the common folk of the country. However, it did do one thing if nothing else. It brought the fact home to us that there is to be no general election in the country this year.

* * * *

Now about this budget It would appear on the surface, that the only possible way to derive any benefit from it is to be 65 years of age or to be dead. But who wants to be dead! And who wants to be 65 if he can stay youngest. If you are 65 or over you get $600 more exemption. This at a time when your family has left home or at least should have left home ordering food tions, and at a time when the wants are few. While the younger ones whose family is just in his hairdo and whose children are still crouching the old man for the odd loaf for our two! Is handicapped by having Mr. Ab ott reach into his other pocket for an and all story about the frugal man's hard been overlooked by the other vultures.

Perhaps the most disgusting feature of the entire bud get is the removal of the luxury tax on alarm clocks. Mr Abbott is not in very close touch with his people or he would know that the alarm clock is not classed as a luxury by any sane Canadian. In fact this rude early morning bugger comes under the heading of public enemy.

To offset this piece of generosity Mr. Abbott has left on the luxury tax on such articles as radios, the daily washing machine and other electric conveniences.

The idea apparently is to make it possible for Big Bess to get you up earlier so you can make more money to buy less conveniences. Its looking more each available to meet Mr. Abbott's just and needy requirements.

We would like to be able to tell Mr. Abbott to get his hands out of our pockets but we know that would be quite unheeded. Next year will it all probability be the election year, and then we may expect from Mr. Abbott most glowing promises of tax relief Election years are great years for the peace of mind.

* * *

Mr. Low has come out with what is perhaps the most startling statement of our day when he predicted that the Social Credit Party will be victorious in the impending election in Saskatchewan. We concede that such a victory is possible (in this day and age anything is) but the thing is entirely not probable as we see it. Since Mr. Low feels safe in making such an out of line prediction we can also make one. We can't be ding any greater a chance

DISTRICT AG'S WEEKLY CORNER

(By W. A. Mosney, District Ag.)

Seed Grass Not Clean Enough

If you don t believe it just take a pail full of seed and spread it on a white surface and count the weed seeds Don't miss the bulked wild oats You may be surprised what's in it

Climatic Soil Zone

Many articles about farming and cropping practices appear in the daily and weekly papers Before we accept the recommendations at face value we must study and ask ourselves, in which zone the idea fact was developed. If you live in the dark brown and bette it would be folly to adopt a farm practice which was established in the black loam belt or vice versa. There are basic differences that must be taken into consideration.

W. A. Mosney

I find from two independent plantings that there is a newer way of applying 2-4-D chemical to control the Canada Thistle. I would like to locate about six co-operators who would try this newer method.

Spraying Cows and Heifers

Those of you who have been spraying your cows and heifers during the summer months should be a "must" in the routine of herd management Spray at regular intervals of 1 to 2 weeks How to do it? Mix one Lb. of 50 percent DDT water-dispersal powder in ten and a half to 5 gallons of water Then spray Care should be taken to see that all food and drinking vessels are covered before spraying as like most other insecticides, DDT is poisonous to livestock when swallowed in large quantities.

Pasture Report

This year the month of June may be the peak for prices of cattle It is a good time to sell a few cattle to invest in pasture to put in August and reach a low in October, barring unforseen events

The Dangers Of Soil Erosion

A PROBLEM WHICH HAS ALREADY received considerable attention in Western Canada, but which remains a serious one but only here, but throughout the world, is that of soil erosion. The loss of top soil through the action of the weather past methods of farming and other causes has already reached alarming proportions, and that country a great deal, but in spite of that my of more fertile soil than any the people in some other parts of the world. In a recent address on this subject Dr. Hugh H. Bennett, chief of the United States government soil conservation service, stated that the problem is one that is throughout the world, will literally starve to death within the next one hundred years unless more care is taken to prevent soil waste.

Shortages In Some Places

At the present time Dr Bennett said there are about 3 acres of crop land available for farming in the United States. It has been found by experts on nutrition that three acres of land are required to provide one person's needs for a "minimum nutritional diet". The population of the world is at present a little over 2,000,000,000 which allows an overall average of two acres per person now. What the situation will be one hundred years from now if the population increases at the present rate of one per cent per year, and the arable land continues to decrease through erosion, is alarming to contemplate. Should no land be lost, Dr. Bennett calculated that there would be only one acre of farm land per person, but if top soil continues to be lost at the present rate the nation would be considerably smaller.

* * * * *

Constant Need For Vigilance

In Japan there is now only one quarter of an acre of arable land per person, in China one half an acre person, and in India one third of an acre for each person. At present the situation on this continent is less serious than in Asia. However, there is reason for concern. Originally the top soil in America was nine inches deep, now it is only six. Dr. Bennett says that the crop land which is left is almost all subject to "serious flood and wind erosion." In contrasting this situation which could result in a considerable reduction of food production on the continent, the American said that it stressed the need for "comprehensive crop and soil conservation measures, contour cultivation, drainage of low lands, planting of grass on steep land irrigation and other modern methods of preventative conservation." In Western Canada an extensive program of soil conservation has been under way for some time, but farmers should be constantly aware for the need for continued vigilance in this important work.

Wheat Rust Victory Worth $60,000,000

Plant Pathologist Recalls Loss Of $100,000,000 In 1916 Through Wheat Rust

MONTREAL, Canada, through the advancement of modern agriculture, saved some $60,000,000 through the successful combatting of wheat stem rust, declared I. L. Conners, newly elected president of the Quebec Society for the Protection of Plants, which held its annual meeting at Macdonald College here He succeeds Fernand Ledboil.

Mr Conners who is botanical plant-pathologist Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, said that in 1916 the Dominion suffered a $100,000,000 loss through wheat rust. A start in the breeding of rust resistant wheats was made in 1925, and the economies are each here fruits in 1933.

Some four years later, he continued, rust resistant wheats had been widely disseminated and last year there was practically no loss from wheat rust of the type which was such a menace in 1916.

Mr Conners said that there was a constant race between the work of the scientific agriculturists and the menace of new plant diseases, insects and always disturbing weeds. This was illustrated he said, in a new blight of oats, first found at Ottawa and now in all provinces except Alberta. It attacked the Bravon and Garry varieties of oats. There was an urgent need to develop new varieties which were blight resistant, he added.

For the first time, declared Mr. Conners, a great chemical attack was being made against weeds. There were new chemicals, he said as well as technically trained men to use them. Alberta were a notable instance, and were imperiling good crops in some of Canadian forests and agricultural areas. Constant vigilance and an increasing amount of research were needed, he warned, as well as guidance on the part of farmers to use the methods which scientific agriculture could develop.

Pigeons Is Los Angeles Smart

LOS ANGELES—For a while W H South thought Los Angeles had the smartest pigeons he ever saw. Now the tinder from Chicago is convinced they're pretty smart.

South left his hotel, went around the corner and bought some fancier chicks. As he started across the street two pigeons started following him. They kept at his heels like hound dogs. If he stopped, they did too.

South reached an intersection, was held—by traffic. The pigeons circled him several times, as long as he was there. People began to laugh. South felt absurd. He returned to his hotel. There, a bellhop explained everything.

People are forever feeding pigeons in a square near the hotel. Smith [illegible] as a lark. The pigeons thought he was carrying popcorn or peanuts.

WELCOMING

OUR TOURING NEIGHBORS

By C. E. BLOOR, M.B.E.

WITH the increasing number of automobiles appearing on the highways across the prairies and the approach of vacation time attention is again focussed to the many of our American neighbors who make Canada their favorite vacationland, and will soon be seen on our highways, in our cities and towns. In a recent survey of its readers, the American Magazine reported that one of every two who intend to travel abroad this year will visit Canada, and that 74 per cent. will use the automobile as the favorite mode of travel.

With this prospect in view, and to Canada's need for an increasing tourist trade, especially in our prairie provinces, every effort should be put forth by the different organizations and the citizens of our towns and communities that such a welcome be given to create a friendship and a desire on our visiting tourists that they will have the urge to return.

Pretty To Other

The Western provinces have plenty to offer as tourist attractions in beauty and of natural nature

British Columbia with its majestic Rocky Mountains, challenges the mountain climber, and covers and lakes that are the delight of the fisherman.

Alberta, a province noted for its historic deposits, and beautiful hills and valleys, over which once roamed the buffalo. Edmonton is the starting point of the war-time built Alaska Highway, on which tourists may travel in the Far North.

Saskatchewan has still its marks of the Red Rebellion, in which little battles were fought between the Indians and the white man. It also has its share of scenic and historic beauty. Saskatchewan can be called the "Home of the Mounties" Regina is the training home of the famous Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who are known the world over as the police force that "get their man".

Manitoba, known as the gateway of the West, of which Winnipeg is the hub, have many markings of the days when settlers from the East came into the province with the ox-cart and caravan. Its beautiful scenery of trees and lakes is certainly attractive to the scenery loving tourist.

All these provinces have their national parks, and it can be proud of them, as they offer beauty, with resorts and homes that would please the most fastidious tourist.

Lack Of Good Signs

We of the West, perhaps, have not realized the importance of the many things that help in the welcome. It was the writer's privilege to travel through the central and northern parts of Saskatchewan and Alberta late last summer, and was amazed at the lack of signs and markings. One can motor many miles without knowing through the lack of signs and roadside markings. One could even pass through a small town without knowing the name of it. With about 1,500 miles travelled only three signs announcing the name of the approaching town were seen Mr. Larry Ekkroyd of Montreal, while addressing the Agassiz-Harrison B.C. board of trade on U.S. tourists to Canada and the need of providing signs and roadside advertising, said "Visitors are not mind readers and appreciate knowing where they are going." Besides announcing the name of the town or village on road signs the following could be added: the population, what the district is noted for, and its principal industries, etc.

Ways Of "Welcome"

There are many ways of saying a "Welcome" to our visitors, such as inspecting tourist accommodation: new restaurants and hotels to supply wholesome, hearty meals, to have attractive, and clean service stations: placing names of rivers and streams on bridges, markings for picnic camping and trailer stops, placing directions on highways to the nearest telephone, removing unsightly and tumbled down buildings. There is also a need for more rural municipal first aid stations.

Small Straws Again

The proof of results of having a neat appearing town and showing of kindness to our visitors can be seen from a letter recently received by Mr. R. J Campbell, editor of the Cut Knife Grinder, Cut Knife Sask., from one of our American neighbors. Besides praising Mr Campbell for his up-and-coming publication, he wrote the following "On our 8,000 miles of driving through Canada last year, we found Cut Knife the cleanest and neatest town of its size; the buildings well kept, and neat. The people were very kind to us. The citizens should be very proud to be a part of Cut Knife. We shall return next year Signed — C. D. Brandt and Family, Portland, Oregon."

"Courtesy keeps tourists coming"; so remember to be courteous and kind to our touring neighbors.

Two of the far too few road signs across the prairies welcoming our tourists. Manville is located about 13 miles west of Vermilion, Alberta. Elmore, in the beautiful rolling country of Alberta, is about 12 miles north of Three Hills.

PANCAKES

By JANE DALE

Lassie grease the skillet well, rub it round with bacon rind.

Set it warming while you mix up all the best stuff you can find

Flour and soda, salt and sugar, eggs and sour'ning and buttermilk.

Beaten up till light and frothy; mixture looks as fine as silk

Lassie grease the skillet well with the sweetest bacon fat

Sure your fire is burning brightly— can't fry pancakes without that.

Cook them quickly, turn them lightly, just the same up side or down.

You will set some heart a-yearning if you bake them golden brown!

Lassie, grease the skillet well, then there is no more or bother;

Flip them over when they're bubbly; when they're brown dryer in another

Serve them hot with bits of syrup, then just watch them disappear

Lassie, a man's heart is his stomach, feed him well and never fear!

RECREATION SAID HEALTH NECESSITY

Recreation—the spirit of play—is essentially basic and fundamental in growth and life, Dr. A. S. Lamb, Director of Physical Education at McGill University, Montreal, once said that the values of recreation are many and thus is true for all ages."

"There is perhaps no force so powerful in removing racial and religious prejudices, in bridging language problems, in developing co-operation and a social outlook," he said.

Dr. Lamb added, however, that skilled supervision and wise leadership are essential, because the leader or supervisor can make of recreation whatever he chooses.

It is the belief of those engaged in physical education that no program of health can be adequate without provision of physical activity or recreation. Similarly, no limited program of physical activity and recreation can be adequate without consideration of the broader aspects of health and preventive medicine.

It is suggested that while education has been made compulsory for all children the same has not been done for health, except to a limited degree. In this regard, it is the belief of some physical educationists that students in Canadian schools should not only be concerned with health knowledge and health practices, but they should also develop a sense of responsibility in identifying their own health problems, and also the problems of their homes, schools and communities.

It is suggested further that it is not too much to expect high school students to know something of the common cold tuberculosis, smallpox, typhoid fever, venereal diseases, whooping cough, and many of the other ills many of them preventable, which plague the human race.

Conservation Program Tour Across Prairies

WINNIPEG. — The annual campaign for forest conservation has started in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The Canadian Forestry Association started a three-month tour in Manitoba, with a party starting from Winnipeg, left in a new station panel truck presented to the association by General Motors of Canada. Members will work in co-operation with the Manitoba Forest service to secure public support in the prevention of forest fires.

Carried on the truck are a portable power plant, sound projector and carefully-selected films on the prevention of forest fires and how to fight them once started. Annually these tours reach hundreds of small communities in or near the province's forest areas, with their conservation message.

Stress will also be laid on the importance of waterbeds in controlling stream flow and soil erosion. In this forest conservation is an important factor as it is wooded slopes will hold rain which falls on it while an unprotected slope will allow the topsoil to be washed away Spring flooding is often due to run-off water from eroded hillsides

A similar party opened a tour of Saskatchewan points recently, while the association's "tree-planting" car is presently working in southern Alberta Later the car will visit points in Manitoba and Saskatchewan as well.

The best way to prolong the life of a rug is to keep it clean

In 1933 only 11 per cent of United States farms had electricity. Today more than 41 per cent. have it

May "Finger-Print Famous Large Jewels As Protection for Industry and Public

By JOHN PETERSON
Central Press Canadian

WASHINGTON.—The modern representative of the world's most romantic pursuit still rules the $60 000 Policeman has now again declared his attention at international peace parleys as the leader of gem identification.

The Policeman weighing between 15 and 16 carats was last heard of in the United States post war to the fateful Wall Street crash of 1929. It was last seen at a jewelers sale at Paris. Each where it was sold for an estimated $60 000.

Who actually bought the fabulous gem and its history in the intervening 20 years is a mystery swallowed up in the larger currents of international depression wars and monetary unrest.

Some jewelers say they believe they saw the sister of Burmese officials in Europe just prior to the present World War. Others vaguely hint at its occasional appearance during the war.

Although no one seems too certain as to just what did happen to the Policeman it must be remembered that in a period of five such as we are in Europe during the war, good use of the surest methods of international exchange by stateless refugees obviously is how to carry large quantities of goods from one country to another, worried gems on their persons to pay the way to freedom.

It is believed that the Policeman, whose very name would seem to indicate that at some time during its career it has belonged to a Pole, was one of those gems used in international bartering. But—who knows?

What is known in that Washington jeweler Theodore B. Gregg went to New York early this year on a shopping tour to replenish the supply of his store.

At the office of one New York jeweler he saw the unusually large ruby ring, surrounded by colored stones mounted in a platinum lady's ring mate with a baguette diamond of about 10 carats each weight on each side.

Gregg must be promptly felt in love with the ring, which I recognized as a collector's item. At the time I bought it I had no idea it was the Policeman.

I had of course heard of the Policeman but I had never seen it. All I knew was that it was the most nearly perfect star ruby that I have ever seen.

He wrought the stone back to Washington and for some time it remained in Gregg's safe. Then a travelling gem expert saw the stone and made inquiries it was the Policeman

Gregg says he was impressed, but still could not believe that he had stumbled upon the world's most nearly perfect Star ruby.

However, gemologists more have journeyed from all over the country and now even came from Paris to identify that the stone actually is the famous lost star ruby. There remains little doubt in Gregg's mind today that he does possess the Policeman.

In view of the problem of identifying the Policeman brought to the fore once again one of the biggest headaches of legitimate jewellers the world over.

For years the American Gem society, composed of 1,300 members even if recut into different shapes.

If the system works, of course, it will be a godsend to jewellers throughout the world, whose one constant fear worry is that they will fall victim to someone selling a stone which may eventually be identified as stolen, the seller contends it to be.

"There are innumerable stories of gems, priceless beyond description, throughout the industry Some of them form the basis for some of the world's greatest literature.

"Think of any great romantic," says Gregg, "but think of the poor man who gets taken on a gem deal—and swindled. Let's hope that the way finally has been found to make quick and positive identification of gems."

Decorative Plants Play Great Part In Making The Porch More Enjoyable

DECORATIVE plants play a great part in making the outdoor porch or lawnen a more enjoyable place during the summer months A wise selection of material properly placed and cared for adds to the attractiveness of any room, whether it be indoors in winter or on the outdoor living room at this time of year.

Hanging baskets, porch boxes and tubs, and bench-like plant stands, strawberry jars or merely a few cubes in or group of healthy water house plants in pots will prove that we have their particular value for the porch or for indoors. With all of these a good beginning is essential. Containers must have adequate drainage Soday over which concave pieces of crock or broken clay pots are placed. An inch or two of gravel or pebbles according to the size of the container should be placed over that before the soil is added.

A good general mixture suitable for many plants is one of equal parts of loam leaf mold or peat and sand. Commercial plant food sparingly over this will be beneficial as a first feeding and may be followed during the summer with applications of liquid manure.

Choosing Plants

Whether the porch or terrace is shaded or in sun most of the day determines the kind of plants most material to be used. Where shade predominates, as in the case of those protected from burning sun by blinds or climbing vines or an awning, you may make a green oasis which is refreshing during summer heat.

For the gardener who must have flowering plants there is a wide choice even for shaded corners. Green and white caladiums are attractive in porch boxes together with deep pink Begonia semperflorens. Lavender and purple lobelias, petunias, browallia or dwarf ageratum are other suggestions. Vinca vine with white variation is very New England and was fortunate in finding a striking combination of white or blue Campanula isophylla or star of Bethlehem grass if in summer dresses for the shaded porch.

In the summer, hanging baskets come into their own. One of the most important things to consider is proper placement. They should be suspended where the wind will not blow the vines and where they will not injure by contact. It is well to avoid passing beneath a weighty log basket which looked at is though it were attached to the ceiling by a thread.

Wire baskets may be lined with sphagnum moss and filled with any graceful trailer of another variety or to set within the framework. Tuberous begonias are usually grown in baskets, and it is also suitable for Campanula isophylla, ferns, vines or trailing plants such as balsam potamine.

Winnipeg Veteran Operates Ranch In Basement

WINNIPEG Did you ever hear of anyone operating a ranch in a basement? It's simple — if you have $1 250 to buy the right pair of animals.

Charles Addison, a 29-year-old ex-R.C.A.F. veteran believes that it can be done He runs a basement Jer-K in his home with the most extensive fur-bearing animal in the world—the Alaska chinchilla.

Fully grown, these button-eyed mammals weigh in at 16 to 22 ounces. At $1250 apiece they are worth more than their weight in gold. And the female of the species is more valuable than the male.

Chinchillas are rather exclusive property. Few people in Canada own one on the hoof and as for an Addison knows, no Canadian owns one on the shoulder. That's because there are only 25 genuine chinchilla coats in the world. At $25,000 a coat even the rich must wear mink and like it.

Addison isn't in the business to raise coats. Chinchillas are too sensitive to cold. Instead he sets up shop selling but cultivation for breeding purposes to get the industry on its feet.

This a spries even to the world's largest ranch Chapman's, at Inglewood, Calif. They have 2,200 animals (the equivalent of 88 full-length coats) and won't be getting to any extent until at least 1952.

Mr. C. Chapman introduced chinchillas to North America when he brought 11 from their native habitat in the Andes Mountains in 1930. Addison's are from the gold mines, like all the other animals in the 313 ranches in the United States and Canada, are offspring of those first 11.

They breed almost twice a year and can have young when they are a little as age of about nine months. Each will have from 12 to 18 years of service for being marketable at 18 months.

Chinchillas is no great problem on brain and patience They'll stay healthy if you keep them clean, out of draughts and in temperatures between 50 and 80 degrees. A chinchilla dines but once a day and the food bill for the whole year is only $3.

Chinchillas don't bite to live alone So, if you want a cooleoned animal, you'll pair him up.

A Letter For Mrs. Smith

By ADDISON H. HALLOCK

BILL lay in bed watching the activity of a new day being begun in Tom row he thought, will be Anne's birthday and he would have nothing to give her. He turned away from the window and looked at his wife How young she looked! And she would be forty tomorrow Unbelievable!

Anne opened her eyes and smiled Bill kissed her "Sweet," she said

Looks like we're going to have a nice day Bill said

"Jimm" Anne murmured. I'm glad We'll you didn't have to go to the office!"

He too said Bill, I'd just like to Le here all day with you" Anne said "Sweet." Anne said again She turned to face Bill "Oh, dear," she sighed. "I just remembered Tomorrow's

"Yes I know your birthday And I haven't the faint thing to Look, Bill," Anne interrupted hastily, "let's forget this one

"Forget your birthday! Have I ever"

"No, honey but when a girl is well, forteith birthdays should be skipped"

"You look like sixteen"

Anne giggled "Oh, Bill I look like an old hag and you know it."

The alarm broke in on them and Bill got up to shut it off

Five years ago Bill had gone berserk over Anne's birthday He'd bought her things other girls had, he had gone on a shopping spree that left him surprised Anne with a new radio, a fur coat. He had given her all sorts of extravagant presents every birthday When asked where all this money came from Anne would grin and Bill would say, "Don't you worry. It's a secret. Sometime I'll tell you about it"

"All these things are lovely, Bill," Anne had said, "but I shouldn't we be saving something?"

"Listen, honey," Bill had answered gruffly, "you deserve a break, and at least one birthday I'm going to have things just that enough"

Bill's bank account had been used for more than a year. Then, one day, Anne was sending for a letter one of Bill's friends from an overseas before from a local loan company had fallen from a pocket. Bill had the same home, she showed him the notice. At first Bill was flatly denied any knowledge of it. But Anne pointed out that the amount was all right, and Bill, pretending to be frightened asking questions in a frightened voice until Bill finally exploded "All right, all right," he shouted, "it's mine." Where did you think the money was coming from anyway?"

Anne stood trembling, watching Bill get into his shirt and coat. She was a nothing, felt nothing.

Just as now you're married, Mrs Smith." Bill said icily, "I'm to date more than five thousand dollars in debt!" Then he slammed out the door and went out, leaving Anne standing there

This had been the closest Bill and Anne had ever come to a separation Sometime after midnight Anne had heard the bedroom door open and Bill had crept by the bed and held her hand, asking her forgiveness.

"To think I could have become I love so much!" He had continued everything.

They had planned the sacrifices they would make to repay the money over the years, and Bill, lying in the sky heralded a new day. Bill had promised never to borrow again "But we got in a jam," he had said, "I'll tell you from now on we'll shoulder our troubles as well as our pleasures all of them

It had been a tough going They had been dimmed marvellously. Many of their extravagances had been sold Bill had had his job but, when Anne expressed her faith in him, he took another one in the same town although the salary was lower They had arranged and saved. But Bill had kept his promise... he had never broken again.

Bill was remembering all this as he walked home from work the next evening He was remembering how awful Anne had been the night it all began It's a wonder she didn't kick him out" he thought "I must have been out of my mind."

Climbing the hill slowly he became glummer and glummer. Anne's birthday, by a quirk of fate, was today Always before I've had at least a buck in my pocket" He could see the lights shining through the living room windows of the little home they had rented Those loan sharks! If I hadn't had to pay off that last dough just at this particular time—

Anne was waiting for Bill in the doorway when he opened the front door Anne, looking sweet in a dress six years old Anne, smiling Anne rushing into his arms

"Here—" Bill said. "Hap "

"Don't say it! Don't you remember? We're skipping this one"

Bill held her away from him a moment "Gee, you look wonderful" Then he drew her close again, and kissed her

Anne helped Bill out of his coat, took his hat. "Oh, I almost forgot," she said, going to the closet, "there's a letter

Bill looked down and picked up a letter lying on the little table in the hall. He glanced at the return address. "Mrs. Addison Smith" he said, trying to "her naked in a discouraged way

"Oh, let the letter go, until after dinner"

"Business before pleasure" Bill ripped open the envelope and quickly read the few large white sheet "Dear Mr Smith," he began to read uncertainly. "This is not a begging letter, in accordance with our records you have been overpaid $500 and—" he began to read again, his expression changing "—and as we have borrowed from no has been repaid in full, and your cancelled note is attached herein. Graduation Impressions

On June 3rd, 1948, was one of the big great days in the lives of 21 people. It was a night that will be remembered in their minds as one of the distinct milestones of their lives. It was their graduation night!

They will always remember the wonderful banquet supper they were served, but most of all will live in their minds the memories of the graduation exercises. Those speeches were so impressive to even a casual member, that they could not help raising a lump in the throat of the graduands that will leave it echoes as long as they live.

The graduands were all looking their best that night. All the nervousness they had for an hour and more, quite calmly as prominent people made addresses, and numbers on the music class paid their tribute to those important people sitting on the stage. Did I say they sat it calmly? Well that statement is in fact not really true. They were very calm and collected on the outside, but within, there was not one of them who couldn't have been on them who did not quake constantly with the excitement of the great moment.

Although these functions were not so great and fancy as you might expect to find at graduations from larger schools, the meaning for the graduands, and for their parents and friends, was just as great. We can tell how many hearts were with pride as the graduates were invited was called upon to step to stand and receive the symbol of all the work that had gone into twelve years of schooling.

So many thoughts must have been flitting around in the heads of the graduands as they sat there on the platform. Some would be thinking chiefly of what they are going to do when they leave Central and others the wider world that is awaiting them. But there were probably a few who were thinking just of the good times they were going to have on forever, of the hard work, the hopeless moments, but memories of the fun and jokes that were interspersed to make those twelve years some of the best years of their lives. Of course the thinking moment of them would have been a little back to, for surely there wasn't one of them who was not anticipating to his mind's eye his life in the future. But just as surely there couldn't have been one of them who wasn't at least a little sorry to be leaving Central and his school friends.

As I cause this, I can't help thinking of the school's motto "Non Scholae Sed Vitae." How true that is. But those people have struggled, and they have attained a victory. I extend my congratulations and well wishes to one and all. May their every effort be crowned with the highest goals of life. May your lives be successful and may your goals of high school education
